BOGAN HAS NEW SCHOOL PLAN

WORLD FLYER ON HOMEWARD LAP; RECORD IN SIGHT

Post Hops Off for Edmonton.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 21.—(AP)—Wiley Post, Oklahoma pilot, hopped off from Fairbanks at 5:45 p. m. [10:45 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time] today for Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, in continuation of his solo flight around the world.

He was ten hours ahead of the Post-Gatty time at this point.

Post was on the ground here seven hours and three minutes, after arriving from Flat, Alaska, where his plane was damaged slightly in landing in a cross wind yesterday.

Favorable Weather Reports.

His elapsed time at the takeoff was 162 hours 35 minutes, against a time of 172 hours 33 minutes he and Harold Gatty, navigator, had established at their hop-off from Fairbanks for New York on their globe circling flight in 1931.

The sun was shining and weather was reported improving all along his 1,450 mile route over the Canadian wilds. About 300 motor cars surrounded the field here when the airman took off.

In the seven hours since he arrived from Flat after a 375 mile hop, further repairs had been made on his plane.

Gets Bath, Shave, and Food.

"I want a bath, a shave, a big feed, and some civilian clothes," he said on reaching here.

He had been accompanied by Pilot Joe Crosson, pioneer arctic flyer, who had flown to Flat last night with a new propeller for Post's plane.

Friendly hands attended to his wishes and he applauded the efforts of Crosson, the mechanics, and airport attendants at Flat, who greeted him on his arrival there yesterday from Siberia.

"It sure was good to see old Joe Crosson at Flat last night," Post said. "The airport attendants, the wireless operator, and the mechanics there also did great work for me. It was a lucky place for me to land after losing my way."

Refreshed by Sleep.

Refreshed by six hours' sleep last night, Post seemed to be fit when he brought the Winnie Mae to a perfect landing here at 10:42 a. m. [3:42 p. m. Chicago time].

He said he expected to reach Edmonton, 1,450 miles away, at 6 a. m. Edmonton time [8 a. m. Chicago time] tomorrow morning, pause there half an hour and speed on toward New York, a distance of 2,200 miles.

He lost about 20 hours of his lead over the old record when he became lost over the interior of Alaska yesterday and then nosed his plane over at Flat.

The Post-Gatty elapsed time to Fairbanks was 166 hours 39 minutes. Post used up 155 hours 32 minutes in getting here. The Post-Gatty record he is trying to eclipse was 8 days 15 hours and 51 minutes, and his flight representative in New York said he has until 8 p. m. Sunday night to break the old record.

Unfavorable weather, which baffled Post as he flew in the clouds over the network of rivers in the Yukon valley yesterday, also delayed his start from Flat this morning.

Follows Alaskan to Fairbanks.

When the Winnie Mae did get into the air again Post chose to follow Crosson and his plane into Fairbanks, explaining that he had become so confused in getting off his course yesterday that he preferred the slower but safer method of following the Alaskan flyer.

Post and Gatty flew from Fairbanks to Edmonton in 10 hours 11 minutes after a six hour stop in Fairbanks. Post expects to negotiate the flight in nine hours. Post and Gatty were halted at Edmonton slightly more than eight hours, while Post hopes to be there only 30 minutes.

PLAY 5,860 GAMES OF PINOCHLE AND THEN THEY WED

Brewer and Miss Evelyn Warren, 23, agreed a year ago to wed when they made a million points. They made them and they're married.

Superior Judge C. A. Stutsman, in whose court Breker is employed, umpired the final game. The game score stood 3,090 for Breker and 2,770 for Miss Warren when the millionth point was reached. Judge Stutsman married them.

TELLS TEACHERS HOW HE'D MAKE 4 MILLION CUT

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

(Pictures on Back Page.)

Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan made a dramatic and unexpected move last night in the controversy over the $5,000,000 economy program of the board of education.

WILLIAM J. BOGAN.

Speaking of the program at a meeting of 20,000 teachers and others in the Chicago Stadium he declared that the orders of the board would wreck the schools and offered a substitute and compromise program of his own under which $4,000,000 would be saved in the next three and a half months.

His Plan Doesn't Please.

Most of Mr. Bogan's proposals were received with applause by the audience, but later various proponents of the massmeeting rejected it. Dr. Charles H. Judd, dean of the school of education of the University of Chicago, who has been vociferous in his opposition to the board's economy plan, turned thumbs down also on the Bogan plan.

Also a group called Save Our Schools committee said the Bogan plan would not do. "As Dr. Judd has pointed out," this group said, "further cuts in school costs are unnecessary for 1933."

Chairman Moore of the meeting objected that it cut teachers' salaries 38 to 50 per cent in addition to the 25 per cent cut already made.

Speakers at the Meeting.

The audience listened to denunciations of the school board's recent action by Mrs. Helen Hefferan, minority member of the board; Rabbi Solomon Goldman, John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; John A. Lapp, former president of the National Conference of Social Work; Dr. Judd, and others.

Supt. Bogan Is Introduced.

Mr. Bogan had been listening to the music and the speeches. He had been applauded when he appeared in the Stadium. The audience was plainly unfriendly to the school board. In the middle of the program the chairman, Fred Atkins Moore, director of the Adult Education council, said that he had a new speaker, who was not scheduled but whom every one would want to hear. "Mr. Bogan," he said, "feels that he must say something to you."

"I forced myself on this program," said Mr. Bogan, "because I am living in terror of the effect of the economies on the public schools. As I study these economies hour after hour, day after day, my terror grows.

He Appeals for Support.

"Therefore I am here, appealing to you for support of a substitute program which I may present to the board of education. It hurts the public some, the teachers a good deal, but it is much better than the one suggested by the board. I offer it as a compromise or substitute for the salvation of the schools.

"The deficit is about $6,000,000. No one knows exactly what it is. The program of the board, although worked out with great care by some one, will disappoint them in its financial effect. Mine offers a saving of real money.

"It begins with saving $2,000,000 by two weeks' closing of the schools in September. They would open two weeks later than now planned. [Under the board's economy program the opening of the schools now planned will be two weeks later than in the past.]

"Hundreds of teachers have also suggested that in addition to the sacrifices they have already made they teach a week without pay. [This would be about another million. It will be recalled that the teachers are already unpaid since Jan. 1. Twenty million dollar is due them.]

Would Suspend Pay Increases.

"The next item is $140,000 by suspending the automatic salary increases for the remainder of the year. I fought this for years, but would rather see it come than see the schools wrecked.

"This suggestion has come from hundreds—that the junior high school teachers and principals take a reduc-

Stage Set for Roosevelt Son to Wed Today

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Burlington, Ia., July 21.—[Special.]—The marriage of Elliott Roosevelt, 22 year old son of President Roosevelt, to Miss Ruth Josephine Googins, 23 years old, Fort Worth, Tex., society girl, appeared tonight to be definitely scheduled to take place tomorrow afternoon at sundown at River Crest, the beautiful home of George C. Swiler, Miss Googins' uncle, which overlooks the Mississippi river from a high bluff south of this city.

Mr. Roosevelt arrived by motor at the Swiler home a few minutes before midnight. With him were his sister, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Miller, Chicago kin of Miss Googins. All were tired. They went into the big house immediately. Later Mr. Swiler appeared outside and said that "an announcement about the marriage" would be given out in the morning.

The characters in the now celebrated romance lurked behind hedges, popped in and out of doorways, and made furtive excursions here and there this evening as the situation began to assume a musical comedy tinge.

Although the prospective bridegroom did not appear until a late hour tonight, all preparations had been made for the wedding ceremony which will be staged in the garden of the Swiler home under towering elms on a billiard table lawn graced by a rock pool, as picturesque a scene for a marriage as ever afforded a graceful closing scene for the first act curtain.

Minister Is Engaged.

The minister has been engaged, flowers have been ordered from the town florist, police guards have been ordered out to keep the curious public from intruding upon the privacy of the affair, but still no official announcement was forthcoming from the bride's mother or any of her relatives.

Dr. Naboth Osborne, retired pastor of the First Congregational church, will officiate at the ceremony. County Clerk J. D. Jackson has assured Mr. Swiler, who is president of the Burlington Savings bank, that the Nevada divorce obtained only a few days ago by Roosevelt from his first wife will not affect the issuance of a marriage license.

But Mrs. J. B. Googins, mother of the bride-to-be, refused to make any admission other than that she would have a statement to issue Sunday. Miss Googins herself, who registers mingled bewilderment and pleased excitement whenever interviewed by the press, has also maintained a maidenly reticence concerning the happy event, referring questioners to young Roosevelt, who has been noncommittal.

Mr. Swiler, an amiable man, showed a reporter about his estate, showing the sylvan scene where the wedding would take place, adding cautiously an "if it does take place."

Mrs. Dall Will Attend.

Mrs. Dall, sister of young Roosevelt, will be the bride's attendant. Only the Swilers and a few intimate friends of Miss Googins will be admitted to the ceremony. She is well known here, having summered in Burlington ever since she was a child.

It is conjectured that either Miss Googins or her mother are the "sources of unimpeachable information" upon which most of the stories of the wedding are based. Both have friends in the city and are believed to have privately confirmed the rumors of the impending marriage. These reports also state that the couple will take a westward bound plane immediately after the ceremony for a honeymoon in the west.

Bank Robber Falls a Victim to Psychology

Bloomington, Ind., July 21.—[Special.]—Eber A. Teter, professor of psychology at the University of Indiana, today established himself firmly as the brain trust of the crime detection agencies of southern Indiana. By the sheer power of his deductive faculties he captured a bank robber and made him realize the error of his ways.

The professor was standing outside the Bloomington National bank when the bandit, having seized $574 after terrorizing President Adams and several employés, ran out, leaped into a blue coupe and sped away. As the burglar alarm on the bank was sounded Prof. Teter noted that the robber was sunburned and had a little mustache.

Solved at Lunch.

Sitting down to his lunch a little later, the psychologist analyzed the situation. Just as the last bite of his ice cream was being consumed he reached the solution.

"Eureka!" cried he. "If I were a bank robber I would drive a roundabout course to Bedford and there get my mustache shaved off."

Immediately he got into his own car and drove to Bedford. He was circling the town when a blue coupe passed him. He turned and followed it. The driver left his car and went into a barber shop.

The professor followed. When the bandit—it was indeed he—ordered a shave the professor took a haircut and paid for it in advance so he could leave quickly. The ex-possessor of the mustache left hurriedly. Again the scientist followed.

Psychology Wins.

Once the bandit eluded him, but again deduction saved the day. Prof. Teter drove toward Oolitic, and so did the fugitive. They saw each other and the professor turned into a farmhouse to call the police. But this wasn't necessary. Psychology had won. The bandit followed the savant into the farmyard and addressed him.

"'Tain't no use going any further," he said. "You know I'm the man that robbed the bank. Here's my pistol and here's the money—not all of it, because I spent $2 for gasoline."

There was a bit of conversation, and the professor drove to Bloomington. Willingly following, in his own car, was the bandit, 26 year old Rolla Spice of Green county. He stuck up the bank, he said, because another bank was going to foreclose a $115 mortgage against his father.

Oregon Is 20th State to Join Repeal Parade

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Portland, Ore., July 21.—[Special.]—Oregon, one of the original twelve bone dry states, today, in a state-wide election, chalked its name on the repeal column with a three to two vote against the 18th amendment.

It added to the effort by voting almost as strongly for repeal of the state prohibition amendments, which had lain burdensomely upon the statute books since last November, when the Anderson enforcement act had been wiped off.

Only 4 Counties Dry.

Returns were conclusive and indicated as well that counties listed in the dry column at that same November election had this time gone for repeal. Benton, Linn, Douglas, and Wallowa were the only counties out of Oregon's 36 to show a dry lead at midnight. Multnoma county [Portland] voted about four to one for repeal.

Dry for 17 Years.

For 17 years Oregon has been in the prohibition column, ever since Jan. 1, 1916, when the state enforcement act was put into effect. This action followed the decision of the voters at a general election in 1914, but the state legislature did not follow up the prohibition action of the people until the regular session in 1915, setting the January date for enforcement.

Previous to that time Oregon had been under local option, but the state then joined five others that were bone dry by popular vote. The others were Washington, Montana, Colorado, Utah, and Arizona. Six others were dry by legislative act—Idaho, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Georgia, and Florida.

Tennessee Result Close.

Nashville, Tenn., July 21.—[Special.]—Tennessee is in the parade of repeal states, No. 19 in line, but by the narrowest margin thus far recorded. Returns from 2,091 out of 2,232 precincts yield the following vote: For repeal 124,922; against repeal, 116,082, or a repeal majority of 8,840.

The missing precincts are scattered over the state, and their total vote is estimated at less than 6,000.

Analyzing the results, repealists hold that one reason for the small margin was a partisan fight put up by the Republicans in the First and Second congressional districts, the eastern third of the state. Repealists carried five congressional districts, the drys carried four.

Farley Is Pleased.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—"It's close, but it's O. K.," was Postmaster General Farley's comment on the repeal vote in Tennessee.

"While the majority is not as large as repealists would have liked," he added, "still it was a significant majority in view of Tennessee's position as a former ancient dry stronghold. I reiterate my prediction that every state which votes on this question will go on record for repeal."

The Colorado legislature is to be called into special session Aug. 1 to provide for a vote on prohibition repeal Sept. 5, according to an announcement made here today by Gov. Ed C. Johnson. The significance of this lies in the fact that if Colorado so acts it will be the 36th state to provide a repeal election to be held this year. Thirty-six states are necessary to ratify repeal. So far 35 states have set elections for 1933 and two others have provided for elections next year

KEEP HANDS OFF STOCKS, POLICY OF PRESIDENT

Prices in Nose Dive

The Chicago Board of Trade directors late yesterday extended the suspension of futures trading in grains through today. At the same time they barred futures trading in lard and provisions for today. A fifteen minute session, from 11:45 to noon, will give holders of grain privileges a chance to exercise their options. Cash grain, cotton, and securities divisions will remain open.

Stock prices on all exchanges yesterday suffered the worst collapse since 1929. Shares changing hands, 9,570,000. Some more speculative issues lost as much as 25 per cent of their total market value. There was a sharp rally at the close. Volume on the Chicago Stock exchange was a quarter million shares.

Cash grain sold 1 to 5 cents higher in Chicago yesterday. In Winnipeg grains were slightly lower on heavy sales, mostly coming from American sources. Details in the financial section.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt showed himself today as unafraid that the tumblings of the stock and grain markets will endanger the success of his new deal.

Although he would not speak publicly on the subject, it was made known that the President does not view the ups and downs of the stock exchange, even the wild dives of the last three days, as a barometer of prosperity in the land.

The President continued vigorously to press his schemes for relieving unemployment, for boosting wages, for lifting the farmers' lot and he calmly discussed the various angles of this domestic program this afternoon.

No Action Planned.

In the President's view, it was a sad case, wherein people by the thousands, uncured by the tragic days of October, 1929, were rushing into the markets to gamble their way to quick riches.

The same virus that coursed through men's veins in the earlier months of 1929, sending them to gamble savings in the stock and grain markets, affected many people when the upturn showed itself this time, in the President's opinion, and he appeared to be little disturbed by the fear that the early sacrifice of these people at this time might turn aside the tide of a general recovery.

On the contrary, the President had been apprehensive for some time that the sensational rise in the stock market was building it up far too rapidly, letting prices get way ahead of the lifting of purchasing power.

Rise Seen as Speculative.

He also reckoned that the rises in both the security and the commodity markets were largely speculative, and for a while he and his treasury advisers were contemplating mild measures to ease prices downward, or at least to hold them steady at a moderate rate.

The President is not so sanguine, it was reported, about the drop in wheat and other agricultural prices as he is about the crash of stock prices. His lieutenants have been going about the farm country congratulating the farmers on having a President who had lifted wheat above a dollar in four months.

So Secretary Wallace, who was one of those optimistic lieutenants, and who made a barnstorming trip to the agricultural midwest, getting slapped on the back and praised at all the four corners, has served notice on Chicago and other grain exchanges that there must be no violent acrobatics in the commodity pits.

May Invoke License Rule.

The secretary approved the order shutting down the Chicago board for one day, and served notice that if necessary he might invoke the license provision of the farm act to stabilize farm prices on the exchanges.

But even with this threat of regulation some of Secretary Wallace's experts of the brains trust ventured confidential opinions that all of what the President calls "speculative froth" is still not eliminated from the commodity prices.

The real value of wheat in the Chicago market, according to some of the agricultural experts, is between 75 and 80 cents per bushel, this estimate being based on the domestic and world demand, the extreme shortage of the present crop, the year's carryover of 350 million bushels, and the inflated value of the dollar.

Hope for Dollar Wheat.

Consequently, if "the speculative froth" is still to be culled out, wheat may be expected to drop another 10 points from yesterday's closes around 90 cents. But there is hope in Secretary Wallace's heart that speculation may hold it and the other grains up long enough for a general recovery to insure prices around $1 to the wheat farmers and corresponding prices to other growers.

To this end, the co-administrators of the agricultural adjustment act, George N. Peek and Charles J. Brand, this afternoon announced that a general conference of all persons interested in the grain trades, from farmers through traders and processors to the consumers, would be held next Monday morning.

A code for the grain trade is stated to be the ultimate object of the conference. Under the agricultural adjustment act the secretary of agriculture has power to enter into marketing agreements with handlers of farm products in the same fashion that the President may make agreements with industry and trade under the national recovery act. And, as in the latter act, the agricultural adjustment act contains licensing provisions which may be used to drive reluctant members of the trade into line.

May Limit Fluctuations.

It was indicated today that one of the provisions which the administration hopes to see written into the grain code is a limitation on the daily fluctuations in the various grains.

Another provision, the requirement of a universal margin, will be demanded by the administration. Department officials assert that for brokerage houses to allow the big speculators to put up a smaller margin per bushel than the little fellows is an encouragement to manipulation of the market. The code, therefore, may require that big and little operators put up the same margins per bushel.

An effort will be made to find a means of maintaining "fair and stable grain prices for farmers."

Enthusiastic Over Plan.

The President showed high enthusiasm in discussing the ambitious plan started by him and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, industrial control administrator, to enlist all American employers, in factories, banks, mills, offices, and elsewhere, into his scheme to raise wages and shorten working hours for a five months' period, bebinning Aug. 1.

Putting aside persistent reports that the whole industrial recovery plan was tottering because the industries presenting codes had all failed to meet the administration's views on both wages and hours, the President spoke of the great coöperation which he felt industry was giving in the emergency.

He felt that it was necessary if any permanent recovery is to be staged in the United States, that purchasing power, now the laggard, should catch up quickly with prices and production, the vanguards, and then should be kept there by "managing the currency."

Roosevelt Is Encouraged.

Mr. Roosevelt found great encouragement again today, as he has in the past, in the rise of the farmers' purchasing power, which he put at 80 per cent in the last two months, and in this estimate, he said, he did not consider the "speculative froth."

But the stock market, in so far as today's developments indicated, remains the stepchild of the administration. It seemed almost as though the President intended that people who have been burned in the present decline might now understand that they cannot play with fire without getting seared and that when the upward reaction which the President believes is inevitable comes along, it will be rational and normal, unkited by the hysterical aims of the "get rich quick" little fellow speculators.

At the federal reserve board offices in the treasury, the open market committee of the federal reserve system, the body which determines how the huge reserve banks shall expand or contract credits, ended its two day session without batting an official eye at the stock market tumble. Governors of the 12 reserve banks and the central board, apparently shared the administration's unconcern.

Expect Credit Expansion.

Nevertheless it was predicted that the reserve banks again will start pouring 25 million dollars each week into the credit stream of the nation. This inflationary expansion of credit, accomplished through the open market buying of government securities, had been carried on week by week by the reserve banks up to July 2, when it was slackened, supposedly as a curb on inflation.

At the treasury department there was a feeling that the reaction, although certainly too severe, was inevitable and temporary.

The autumn pickup in business will remedy the drop, it was said at the treasury.

The federal reserve open market committee spent its last day in session approving rules for the future conduct of open market operations and in discussing the part the reserve banks must play in coming governmental fiscal operations. Some anxiety was reported to be felt lest borrowing of 3 billion 300 million dollars to finance the public works easy money fund depress the government bond market. If this develops, the reserve banks will be called upon to step in and buy government securities, thus supporting the market.

Pair Steal Jas. Simpson's Boat; Held to Grand Jury

Herbert Shaffer, 23 years old, 6615 North Shore avenue, and Ray Trehoele, 26, 5468 Higgins road, were held to the grand jury yesterday by Police Magistrate John J. Peters of Wilmette on charges of stealing the speedboat, Rosciana belonging to James Simpson, utility chief. The youths took the boat from its mooring place in Wilmette harbor, and ran it aground a short distance away, damaging the craft. They told Magistrate Peters they took the boat "just for fun." Their grand jury bonds were set at $600 each.

JOHNSON LABORS ON PROGRAM TO INCREASE WAGES

Employers Are Urged to Sign Agreements.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—The task of forming his warlike organization to spread abroad over the land the administration's plan for inducing employers to raise wages and shorten working hours was begun today by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, head of the national recovery administration.

Faced with the problem of kindling a sort of martial spirit, a band-playing, marching, pep gathering spirit, within the hearts of business men, industrialists, workers, and the general public the general started out by inviting the heads of chambers of commerce in all American cities over 10,000 population to form local committees to push the work.

Gen. Johnson and the President are asking employers of all kinds of labor—manual and white collar workers—to sign voluntary agreements to institute for five months beginning Aug. 1 a scale of wages and working hours which is expected to create several million new jobs and to raise purchasing power.

Force Later if Needed.

Copies of the agreement will be delivered by mail carriers next Thursday to all business men on their routes all over the country, and in an accompanying explanation the notice is given that if they do not sign up the President will take steps after Sept. 1 to force arbitrary codes upon the reluctant ones.

Telegrams were sent by Gen. Johnson today to the Chamber of Commerce heads in the various cities, as follows:

"Will you take the initiative immediately in organizing a campaign committee in your community to be composed of the mayor, the official heads of the Chamber of Commerce, Clearing House association, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, retail merchants, Federation of Labor, advertising club, Federation of Women's clubs, welfare societies, ministerial association, real estate association and any other civic organization which, in your judgment, is representative of an important element in the economic life of your community?

"The function of this committee is to direct a campaign of education and organization, which is to be a part of a national movement to speed the return of prosperity through the expansion of consumer purchasing power, in accordance with the principles set forth in the national recovery act.

"I will communicate with you, covering the further steps in this campaign, upon receipt of your reply.

"It is an inspiring thing to be a part of a great national movement to restore economic security to our people and I appeal to you to marshal all the forces of your community in one united effort to get rid of unemployment."

Badges Are Designed.

Artists were busy designing badges, placards, and other insignia which will be awarded to those merchants an industrialists who sign the agreements and to the consumers who sign pledges to patronize the agreement signers.

Plans went ahead to launch a campaign of speechmaking, by radio and in public halls. A "speakers' department" was formed to impress several hundred volunteer spellbinders into a force of 4 minute men, 6 minute men, 8 and 10 minute men, who will go over the country attempting to stir up a patriotic feeling strong enough to induce employers to sign up.

Advertisements will be placed on display boards, in newspapers, and elsewhere.

Objects to "Ballyhoo."

Gen. Johnson deplored today in a press conference that in some quarters his campaign was being labeled as "ballyhoo."

"I would like to say a word about calling this 'ballyhoo,'" he said. "What you are dealing with here is an emergency situation of people out of work, out of work after four years of the most exhausting depression that ever hit any country any time.

"I suppose nothing is so apprehended by every human being as the results of unemployment and the fear of unemployment. I do not believe I am looking at one man here who is not affected, although he has a job. I know I am, and there is nobody that I know personally that is not apprehensive about some relative that perhaps he is trying to support.

"Now, we go out and make an appeal to this country," he said, "to see if we can't get it together for the first time in its history on a question like this, under a fundamental law.

Chance to Act Together.

"Here is an effort to apply a general rule, with a complete set of safety valves to deal with the exceptions and you are going to have everybody under the authority of this act, which allows everybody to act together, to act together for the purpose of getting rid of this unemployment situation.

"If that is ballyhoo make the best of it."

Gen. Johnson today set the code of the iron and steel industry, rated the most important of all that have or will be submitted, for a public hearing on July 31.

MORE MILLIONS FROM PUBLIC WORKS PORK BARREL APPROVED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today approved the expenditure of another slice of easy federal money from the public works pork barrel. The money is to go for public buildings, but the total amount and the locations of the various projects will not be made public until the meeting of the public works advisory board next week. Preliminary estimates set the amount at approximately 35 million dollars.

The President also began consideration today of a list of recommendations handed him by Secretary of the Interior Ickes for the personnel of the regional and state offices soon to be set up. There are to be ten regional advisers and forty-eight boards of three members each.

To date more than three quarters of a billion dollars of the 3 billion 300 million dollar public works fund have been allocated by the administration. The largest allotment of 400 millions, was for public roads, while 238 millions went for naval construction. According to the claims of the administration, the money so far handed out will provide aproximately 13,070,788 man weeks of labor.

The public works list approved by the President today came from the program prepared by the bureau of the budget, to whom was given the task of paring down the 750 million dollars program of federal public works handed in by the treasury department.

In the process of elimination the budget bureau divided the projects into six groups: Economically sound projects to be built immediately; projects needed now but capable of being deferred; desirable but not necessary not needed now, but sound; needed but not economically sound under present circumstances; and the largest group of all—projects both not needed and economically unsound.

THEATER CODE IS ADOPTED IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—The general code by which the legitimate theater is to operate under the national industrial recovery act was adopted today at a meeting of the National Alliance of the Theater.

It specifies a minimum wage for actors, prohibits the lowering of wage scales for the theaters' organized labor, and promises more satisfaction to the public in the matter of tickets.

Sol. A. Rosenblatt, who has been representing Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, revealed the code's main parts after today's meeting. Its details will be announced tomorrow in Washington. A national legitimate theater committee will be set up to enforce the code's provisions.

It was agreed that the committee shall determine some percentage of seats—in all parts of the house—that must be sold through the box offices. The "gyp" speculators will not receive tickets.

The code calls it "an unfair practice" to assist in the "indiscriminate distribution of passes," or the "throwaway ticket system."

Minimum pay for actors will range from $40 to $50 a week, depending on admission charges. Chorus girls will continue to receive $30 in New York and $35 on the road.

ROOSEVELT CODE DRAWS VARIED COMMENT HERE

Some Praise It; Others Call Plan Obscure.

Well known Chicagoans differed yesterday in their comments on President Roosevelt's announcement of a blanket code for industrial recovery designed to include every worker in the United States in its operation.

Some hailed it enthusiastically as a device which will increase employment and restore purchasing power. Others said the code's provisions are so obscure as to make comment difficult. And others saw in the administration of the code an action which will send the United States out on uncharted seas, with success or failure hanging in the balance.

At the same time a number of companies, including the Florsheim Shoe company and Lyon Metal Products, Inc., of Aurora, announced their immediate coöperation with the President's proclamation.

Maximum Hours of Work.

Among the Chicagoans to comment yesterday were the following:

JAMES D. CUNNINGHAM, former president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association and president of the Republic Flow Meters company:

"I'd like to see a presidential proclamation that cleans up the whole situation. Just what part is the American Federation of Labor to play? What will the maximum hours of work be and what will be the minimum pay? How are we to conform with the presidential desires? Industry is anxious to go along with the plan, but it wants to know how to do it."

"We are thoroughly in sympathy with the efforts being made by President Roosevelt and the national recovery administration to effect an early and complete application of the recovery program. Leading Chicago merchants are proceeding diligently to conform with the wishes of the administration. It is our desire to see the plan in full operation at the earliest possible moment, and it is our belief that it will produce broad and substantial benefits."

C. B. SMITH, president Stewart-Warner corporation:

"I think the President's blanket code is a very good thing. The sooner we all get under the code the better. It would be better for the country to level off the hours of work in such a way as would end a situation where some workers are employed overtime while others are idle."

Hopes for Coöperation.

FRED SCOTT of Carson Pirie Scott & Co.:

"It is impossible to estimate the effect of the new blanket code, but it is to be hoped that every one will cooperate wholeheartedly. Only by so doing will we know the likelihood of its success or failure."

PROF. GARFIELD COX, school of business, University of Chicago:

"Since we are still operating primarily under a system of private initiative any broad and sustained increase in production and employment would seem to depend upon the belief of business management that expansion of operations will prove profitable. The pressure for immediate increases in wage rates which is contained in the I. R. A. code might serve to diminish that belief.

"In past recoveries from major depressions wholesale commodity prices have risen earlier and more rapidly in the early stages than have wage rates. There is strong reason for suspecting that the lag in increases of wage rates tended, on the whole, to accelerate the volume of employment rather than to retard it.

"Emphasis now should be on expanding pay rolls and thus expand purchasing power by increasing the number of employed rather than by raising rates of pay. If after the idle are reëmployed prices should continue to rise then, of course, increasing wage rates would be imperative in order to prevent a breakdown of purchasing power."

"I think that every employer, merchant, industrial or any other class, should support the President's recommendations. I believe that this is an effort to restore the purchasing power of the people. Whether the President's plan will work we do not know, but every one should go along with it."

Far Reaching Effects.

H. D. PETTIBONE, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company:

"We have been studying the President's announcement all day and are still at it. Even the most superficial consideration discloses that the proposed arrangement has far reaching effects."

Milton S. Florsheim, chairman of the board of the Florsheim Shoe company, announced yesterday that he had sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt:

"Effective Aug. 1, or sooner if adjustments can be made, wages of all factory workers will be increased 10 per cent, with hours reduced to 40 per week, and the salaries of other groups will be adjusted in accordance with the suggestion of the administrator."

The Florsheim company also announced it is temporarily continuing present retail prices which are at the Jan. 1, 1933, level.

F. S. Waters, president of Lyon Metal Products, Inc., manufacturers of steel lockers, shelves and furniture, yesterday ordered notices posted in the company's plants in Aurora and Chicago Heights, stating that it would act immediately to conform with the President's proclamation.

Roosevelt Plea Complicates Work on Industrial Codes

The work of various industrial groups meeting in Chicago to draft codes for regulation of their business under the national industrial recovery act was complicated yesterday by the national code which President Roosevelt offered Thursday to the industries of the country for their voluntary compliance.

A number of the code drafters altered their drafts to incorporate the minimum wages of $15 a week and the maximum work week of 35 hours suggested by the President for large cities. This was the case with the Cup and Container institute, which met at the Hotel Sherman. Granville P. Rogers of New York said that the code, approved by 85 per cent of the industry, will be taken to Washington in a few days.

Piping Society Approves Code.

The Power Piping society, representing pipe manufacturers doing a business of $40,000,000, had already approved a code. Its emergency committee met at the Palmer house and incorporated the wages and hours of labor recommended by President Roosevelt.

Twenty members of the National Refrigerator Manufacturers' association, which makes refrigerators for domestic use, also met at the Bismarck to draft a code for their trade.

J. L. Tremper, president of the newly organized National Drain Tile Manufacturers' association, said he believed his industry could conform easily to the wishes of the President. Representatives of 100 drain tile companies attended the code conference at the Bismarck hotel.

The Road Machinery Manufacturers' association was formed yesterday at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club as the first step in drafting a code for that industry. S. S. Beatty of Chicago is president.

Leather Finders Adopt Code.

The National Leather and Shoe Finders' association, comprising 750 jobbers, adopted a code at its covention at the Hotel Sherman. The code, which was sent last night to Washington, provides minimum wages of $14 a week for beginners and $18 a week for employés of a year's experience in the trade, with a maximum week of 48 hours.

The International Plate Printers, Dye Stampers, and Engravers, representing 1,600 employés engaged in printing bank notes, bonds, and securities, ended their convention at the Morrison hotel without deciding on what minimum wage and maximum hours to include in a code which they will submit to federal authorities.

Representatives of 20 mills producing concrete reinforcing bars and steel industrial shapes met at the Palmer house for a session of the Rail Steel Bar association to consider application of the general steel code to their branch of that industry.

LAST U. S. CARD AT LONDON TO BE ACTION TO RAISE PRICES

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Appeal by Secretary of State Cordell Hull for international action to raise prices was scheduled today as the final action on behalf of the United States before the recess of the world economic conference in London on July 28.

The proposed statement by Secretary Hull is tentatively set for delivery on the last actual meeting day of the conference, Aug. 27. It is planned that in this way the United States will put forcefully before the major nations of the world its renewed hope for some concrete eventual accomplishment.

At the same time the projected statement is intended to serve as a reiteration of the contention of this government that much can be done without discussion of stabilization of exchange or currency. President Roosevelt is reported to have left the form of the statement to Secretary Hull. It is remarked in official circles that the President is satisfied Secretary Hull has accomplished all that could be expected under the circumstances.

FARM WOMEN VOICE HOPE OF BETTER TIMES

Emerge from Depression with Heads Up.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Farm women have weathered the agrarian depression, which started even before the industrial setback of 1929, better than have the men on the farm, according to women from ten central states who are attending the Master Home Makers' convention here this week.

At the Auditorium hotel yesterday these women voiced confidence in the future of farming. They expressed the belief that living conditions would continue to improve on the farm and that most farm mothers wanted at least some of their children to stay on the farm.

Keeping Husbands' Heads Up.

"Our most serious difficulty nowadays is to keep our husbands' heads up until the return of better times," said one. "Next to this is our determination that rural educational opportunities shall not be lost to our children in the frantic efforts of local communities to reduce taxes. We must retrench, but with reason and with a view to the future."

Though most of the farm home makers were past middle age and gray and silver hairs were in evidence they spoke quietly, pleasantly but with a determination in defending the individual farm home of the future as against collective or corporate types of food and fiber production.

Many of them recounted hog cholera epidemics, devastating storms, and other hardships which have kept many of the 425 Master Home Makers from attending the annual convention this year. But through it all, they said, the farm wives have had their poultry flocks, their butter, and milk, and family gardens which have sustained not only the immediate family but many a relative who came back to the farm from the city jobless and hungry.

The 425 women have been chosen as the outstanding farm wives of their states through a scoring system kept by various state agricultural colleges.

Answering the query as to whether advancing grain prices had relieved the finances on the farm, most farm wives said that until prices of eggs go up and the grain and live stock now on the farms can be sold at better prices, such vital needs of the farmer as home repairs and improvements would have to wait. But they added that they were confident these things would come this fall and winter.

THE Florsheim SHOE

THE FLORSHEIM SHOE COMPANY pledges immediate conformity with the proclamation of the President under the National Industrial Recovery Act, subject to such modifications as may be required by the Shoe Manufacturers' code, when accepted.

This policy is dictated not alone from a sense of duty but also because of our firm conviction that shorter hours—increased employment and wages will materially hasten the Nation's return to normalcy.

Effective August 1, 1933, or sooner if adjustments can be made, wages of all factory workers will be increased 10% with hours reduced to 40 per week, and the salaries of other groups, including clerical help, will be adjusted in accordance with the suggestions of the Administrator.

Believing that it will require a short additional period to restore normal buying power under the Administration's program, we shall temporarily continue our retail prices, which are at their January 1, 1933 level, notwithstanding that the costs of materials have advanced substantially.

The suggestion of the President that each of us help himself by helping others is, in our opinion, as sound as it is simple and direct.

CHARGES YANKEE GIFTS ENRICHED HITLER'S PARTY

German Author Names Ford as Contributor.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 21.—Powerful American industrial and banking interests, including the house of Morgan, General Motors, Henry Ford, and investment bankers "closely connected with the late Ivar Krueger" and a prominent New York "national bank whose president made frequent trips to Berlin," all contributed heavily to the German Nazi party in the year before Adolf Hitler attained power, according to charges in a sensational volume, which exposes "Hitler as a Frankenstein." The book will appear in London next Tuesday.

The author, a young German writing under the pen name of John S. Steel, is believed to be well known in certain financial and diplomatic circles of the United States, where he was active as a "private agent" of Hitler's financial adviser, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the reichsbank. Schacht, it is said, sent him abroad to report on the work of the officials who were then representing the trade and diplomatic interests of the German republic. The book's preface is contributed by the well known political scientist, Prof. Harold J. Laski, of London.

Reveals "Inside Story."

The author of the book says he collected private information of an economic and financial nature in the United States but was also engaged in Dr. Schacht's special work of collecting funds for Hitler, the "inside story" of which he now reveals for the first time.

According to the book, Hitlerism, the most elaborate and costly political movement in the history of middle Europe, spent $350,000,000 for propaganda and to pay Nazi storm troopers before it attained power. The book maintains that these millions came from the bank accounts of foreign as well as German capitalists eager to counteract and crush the political radicalism of labor union power in Germany.

Hitler was sold to American money magnates to the extent of several million dollars, Steel estimates.

Tells of American Gifts.

The book says General Motors gave a total of $200,000 from the American offices of its Acceptance corporation after the purchase of the Opel Auto works in Germany made them desirous of eliminating the inconvenient labor and social legislation sponsored by the German Social Democrats and the affiliated federation of labor unions which was recently dissolved by the Nazis.

"Hitler's most important business connection in the United States, however, was Henry Ford," Steel writes.

He describes how Hitler and Ford first were linked as a consequence of the famous Chicago libel suit and the suspension of Ford's weekly, the Dearborn Independent, which was filled with lurid anti-Semitic "revelations."

Steel says that "after the suit Ford entered into conversation with the firm of Munich publishers of Hitler's party literature"; that Ford proposed that they reprint in pamphlet form a selection of the Dearborn Independent articles translated into German. He says Ford approved the joint use of his name with Hitler's in advertising pamphlets and supplied $40,000 for the campaign.

"This check represented the first financial support of Hitler by Ford," Steel declares.

Though the sale of pamphlets did not fulfill expectations, Hitler "learned something he has never since forgotten, namely, the use of racial superiority in forming the dogmas of his mass propaganda."

Ex-Kaiser's Family Named.

When in 1929 Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia, son of the former crown prince, was given a position in Ford's Detroit engineering works, Steel says that "Ford valued the services rendered him by the charming prince at $300,000." Steel relates that this money crossed the ocean mostly in the form of notes and found its way into the Nazi party chest through the intermediary of the former kaiser's favorite son, "Auwi" [Prince August Wilhelm].

In Chicago, too, Louis Ferdinand made hay for Hitler while the social sun shone, says Steel, together with his younger brother, Friedrich Wilhelm. The charming Prussian princes worked the "social racket" so successfully, according to Steel, that their bank account there "was kept well supplied with contributions which reached their eventual destination in Germany through the medium of three or four different banks."

The technique employed by the Hitler sales organization in the United States is described as follows: "When contributions were in cash they were invariably sent on to Dr. Schacht.

Money Paid in Checks.

The big banking houses, the book alleges, gave mostly checks—on other banks. According to Steel, the "famous investment bankers" mentioned gave $50,000 in three installments—$5,000, $10,000, and $35,000; the Morgan bank gave $50,000 and later $35,000.

The author says he was arrested in Germany Feb. 8 and imprisoned for two days in the fortress of Wannsee island near Berlin because "I knew too much about him" [probably referring to Hitler]. Steel adds that he escaped from jail and reached Paris.

Two of England's greatest newspaper magnates are the Canadian born peer Lord Beaverbrook and Lord Rothermere. It is openly hinted in the book that the latter contributed through his Swedish paper mills large funds placed at the disposal of Hitler's propaganda publishers. Above all Britons in support of the Nazis, Steel places the international oil magnate, Sir Henri Deterding.

Ivar Kreuger was approached for contributions by Capt. Hermann Goering and gave generously until he committed suicide, Steel says.

Even the French armament industry donated through "Germany's Basil Zaharoff"—Arnold Rechberg [according to Steel]. They knew, Steel says, that the Hitlerites in power in Germany would mean heavier armaments for France.

GERMANY TO TRY U. S. STUDENT FOR HIGH TREASON

Consul General Fights to Free Him.

BERLIN, July 21.—(AP)—The German and Prussian ministries of justice today told George W. Messersmith, the United States consul general here, that a charge of high treason had been lodged against Walter Orloff, Brooklyn, N. Y., student, who was arrested early this week at Greifswald charged with aiding communistic activities.

The consul general was informed it would therefore be impossible to interrupt the case with deportation proceedings.

The consulate, however, seemed to hope that a way would be found for returning the Brooklyn man to the United States at an early date.

Protests Beating of Yank.

Inquiring about the case of the Jewish Telegraphic agency, whose Berlin office was closed by the Nazis, the consulate was assured the affair would be reëxamined with a view to the possible reopening of the bureau.

Mr. Messersmith today protested to the reich's and Prussian ministers of justice, and also to the police, regarding alleged maltreatment of Philip Zuckerman of 67 East 3d street, New York City, by Nazi brown shirts last Sunday at Leipzig.

Zuckerman alleged that he was so badly beaten he had to return to Berlin and go to the West End hospital, where an American consul found him heavily bandaged. He is a Jew, dealer in furs, who has resided in Berlin since 1931.

Wife Also Attacked.

Walking the street in Leipzig with his wife and relatives, Zuckerman passed a parade of brown shirted Nazis. He said the last members of the parade fell behind and attacked him.

"I told them I was an American citizen," Zuckerman related in reporting the incident, "but in reply I received a blow on the head which knocked me unconscious and when I awoke I found myself in a drug store. They also beat up my wife."

Mr. Messersmith insisted that the attackers be apprehended and prosecuted. All officials visited about the affair expressed regret and emphasized that such action by storm troopers was contrary to the wishes of Chancellor Hitler. They thanked the American authorities for bringing the matter to their attention and promised that the offenders would be punished regardless of their connection with the Nazi organization.

"Martial Law" for Prussia.

Meanwhile, new measures comparable to martial law were foreshadowed for Prussia. Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering abruptly terminated his vacation on the Isle of Syit today and summoned a meeting of his official aids at the capital tomorrow.

Called for this parley were members of the Prussian cabinet, the chiefs of the secret police, provincial prosecuting attorneys, chief judges of the district courts, district police presidents, and all district storm troop leaders. Capt. Ernst Roehm, chief of the storm troops, will also attend.

It was announced that new laws are contemplated to "increase the speed and activity particularly of the secret police so that not the slightest counter movement against the National Socialist revolution fighters and against the new state will be possible henceforth."

The death sentence for "any attempt at sabotage of the government's work" is expected to be decreed.

Detective Bureau Puts 5 New Autos Into Service

Five new Ford police cars were placed in service yesterday at the detective bureau. Four of them were assigned to the hoodlum squads commanded by Lieut. Arthur Katt and the other went to a regular detective bureau squad. The cars were bought on an order approved recently by the city council.

Austrian Sent to Jail for Getting a "Hitler Haircut"

INNSBRUCK, Austria, July 21.—(AP)—A Hitler haircut cost a workingman here a three weeks' jail sentence. He was convicted of having a Nazi swastika emblem shaved upon his scalp.

NAZI FLYERS 'RAID' AUSTRIA AND DEFENSE PLANES PURSUE THEM

VIENNA, July 21.—(AP)—Nazi airplanes today raided a long section of Austria bordering on Germany, from Reutte through Kufstein to Bischofshofen to Salzburg to Reid, scattering handbills denouncing the Dollfuss government and urging Austrian Hitlerites to action.

Defense planes took off in pursuit but were unable to overtake the Nazi craft at any point.

The Vienna government, convinced that the planes came from Germany, telegraphed the Austrian minister at Berlin to lodge a protest.

SLAYER ACCUSES WIDOW CARL AS MURDER PLOTTER

Two state witnesses yesterday accused Mrs. Vera Carl, 37 years old, of plotting the murder of her husband, George, who was found shot to death on July 16, 1932. Mrs. Carl is on trial before Judge Rudolph F. Desort and a jury in the criminal court.

The witnesses were Joseph Fess, 26 years old, who has confessed to the actual murder, and Edward Veselka, who was indicted as an accessory to the crime. Both had previously testified in the trial of John Milosic, the widow's alleged sweetheart, and her brother, Ivan Grilec, who are serving life sentences for their part in the murder.

"There is the one responsible for the killing of George Carl," Fess shouted suddenly, rising in his chair and pointing at Mrs. Carl, "she put it in my head, she and her brother, Ivan."

Later Veselka testified that Mrs. Carl chided him and Fess for their delay, and told them she would kill herself if they did not slay her husband.

The trial will continue today. Fess and Veselka will be tried later.

5 BANDITS WITH MACHINE GUN ROB BANK IN DUNDEE

Five men, one carrying a machine gun, yesterday took $1,500 in a robbery of the First National bank of Dundee in Dundee, five miles north of Elgin in Kane county. The men escaped in an automobile, driving east in Higgins road toward Chicago.

One of the bandits remained in the automobile, while three others carrying a machine gun walked into the bank shortly after noon. The fifth bandit remained on guard outside, menacing passersby. The bandits forced A. J. Bollman, the assistant cashier, and Miss Mayme Gloede and Miss Ruth Wendt, bookkeepers, and two customers to lie on the floor while they scooped up the money from the cages.

As they left Bollman sounded an alarm. A customer who was approaching the bank was flung to the sidewalk by the bandits. As they fled in their automobile, Theodore Bethke, a shopkeeper, emptied his rifle at the car, but could not stop the flight.

The bandits were believed to be the same gang that took $600 in a robbery of a cigar store at Rockford earlier in the day.

FIVE AMERICANS SILENT PENDING TRIAL BY SPAIN

PALMA, Mallorca, July 21.—(AP)—The five Americans released from jail on bail yesterday after six weeks' imprisonment following upon an alleged assault of a civil guard spent the day resting.

They received a number of close friends, but newspapermen were told they preferred to refrain from discussion of their experiences for the present. They apparently were acting on the advice of their counsel not to comment until after their court martial, the date of which has not been set.

The five are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Lockwood of West Springfield, Mass.; Rutherford Fullerton of Columbus, O.; Roderick F. Mead of New York, and Walter Blodgett of Stamford, Conn.

Mrs. Lockwood was reported in a highly nervous condition, but was said to be cheerful.

MRS. OPAS TELLS JURY SHE WILL RETURN TO MATE

Swears Denial of Plotting His Murder.

Mrs. Bessie Opas took the stand in her own defense yesterday before Judge Harry B. Miller and a jury in the Criminal court and denied that she had conspired to kill her husband, Marion, a garage owner. She insisted that she still loved him.

"When I get out of all this trouble, I think I'll go back to Marion," she said. She said that she had known only two of the four youths with whom she was indicted on the conspiracy charge, and had seen the other two for the first time in court.

Clad in a blue polka dot dress, Mrs. Opas took the stand before a packed courtroom. She told of her marriage to Opas eighteen years ago and how she had aided him, first in the livery business and then in the used car business. She was questioned by Thadeus Toudor, her attorney.

Q.—Do you love your husband? A.—Yes. That's why I worked for him.

Q.—Do you still love him? A.—Yes. When I get out of this trouble I think I'll go back to him.

Tells of Meeting Youths.

She then told of meeting Dominick Zullo, 19 years old, and Jerry Lehman, 19 years old, two of the youths indicted with her. Lehman has been granted a separate trial. Zullo and the two other defendants, John De Salvo, 17 years old, and Angelo Masso, 21 years old, have pleaded guilty to the charge of plotting to kill Opas. Zullo and Lehman came to see her one day, she testified, and told her if she would give them some money they would "tell her something."

"I told them I had no money," Mrs. Opas said, "and they said, 'We'll take a chance and tell you and you pay us later.' Then they told me that my husband wanted to divorce me and did not want to give me any of our property. I said I couldn't believe it; that I had helped him build the business. When I told my husband about it he said I was crazy. Later I saw them go out with my husband for a demonstration in a car."

"Did you ever conspire to take your husband for a ride or do him any kind of bodily harm?" Attorney Toudor asked.

"No, why should I?" Mrs. Opas asked.

Opposed $50,000 Policy, She Says.

She said her husband wanted to take out $50,000 life insurance, but she protested it was too expensive and he finally compromised on $15,000.

She was then cross-examined by Assistant State's Attorney John Leonard Murphy.

Q.—Were you happy with your husband? A.—Perfectly.

Q.—Did he beat you? A.—Yes, but that made no difference.

Q.—Did he want to kill you? A.—Even if he did, I'd stick to him.

The defense's objections to the state's attempt to introduce Mrs. Opas' confession, which she later repudiated, were sustained.

Earlier defense witnesses were the two Opas children, Virginia, 12 years old, and Alfred, 17 years old. They testified to harmony in the Opas home.

The state closed its case after placing De Salvo and Zullo on the stand. Masso had testified Thursday. Lehman refused to testify on the advice of his counsel.

Zullo admitted that he intended to go through with the alleged plot and kidnap and kill Opas. De Salvo testified that he and the other three youths expected to get $5,000 for the slaying of Opas. On cross-examination De Salvo admitted that he expected consideration from the state for his testimony.

The defense concluded its case. After one rebuttal witness has testified this morning, attorneys will start their closing arguments.

Mrs. Dick Divorced

Mrs. Madeline T. Force Astor Dick. [Acme Photo.]

Minden, Nev., July 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor Dick, New York society matron, was granted a divorce here today from William K. Dick. The hearing on her plea was held in secret.

Mrs. Dick motored here from Lake Tahoe to appear before Judge Clark J. Guild. She then left, refusing to discuss her future plans. There have been rumors that she intended to marry Enzo Fiermonte, an Italian prize fighter.

The first husband of Mrs. Dick was John Jacob Astor, whose life was lost in the disaster to the steamship Titanic. She married Dick in 1916, four years after she became a widow. The couple have two sons, and an agreement on their custody was arranged. Its terms, however, were kept secret.

RAS DESTA DEMTU LUNCHEON GUEST AT WHITE HOUSE

Ethiopian Prince Is Happy Over His Visit.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Ras Desta Demtu, the elegant Ethiopian, donned his dress clothes [they weigh a-plenty] and went today to the White House to eat lunch, to which he had been bidden Wednesday. He had to break the Wednesday date, you remember, because he remembered that it was a fast day.

Today's lunch was not Wednesday's lunch, of course. It was new and fresh and typically American: Soup and salad and beef and ice cream and cake. When he had finished the prince, in suave French phrases, presented an autographed photograph of his father-in-law, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, to the President, who thanked him, also in French.

PRINCE RAS DESTA DEMTU.

But that wasn't all. When the picture, in its massive gold frame, had been admired, the prince, with another speech, gave the President two lions' skins.

President Given Lions' Skins.

Then the emperor's son-in-law slipped a khaki cape, heavy with gold braid, over his white satin tunic, arranged a white and gold helmet on his curly brown hair, pulled a pair of brand new white kid gloves over his slim fingers, and took up his white wooden walking stick. Escorted by white uniformed admirals and commanders and captains and lieutenants from our navy, he rode back to his hotel in a White House motor.

Then, as his valet packed the luggage, the prince gave his farewell interview. He loved America; it was wonderful merely to read about our country; it was thrice wonderful to visit it.

Ras Desta Demtu returns home with mellow memories of Sol Bloom, Democratic congressman from New York and publicist for George Washington. For Mr. Bloom has played the tireless host to the prince.

The prince, it seems, was being entertained, but very formally, by our government officials. He was appreciative but not riotous in his enthusiasm. The officials wanted him to relax, to unbend; and so they bethought themselves of Sol Bloom. At least that's one version of the story. At any rate, Mr. Bloom took Mr. Demtu in hand. He took him to the congressional library, whispered something to an attendant and in a moment a boy rushed up and thrust a copy of an Ethiopian newspaper into the hand of the amazed prince.

Then they went to see the Declaration of Independence and the constitution. History, interspersed with comments by Representative Bloom, brought a smile to the swarthy cheek of the prince.

And he was still chuckling over that "delightful Mr. Bloom" when he took the train this afternoon.

WILL NOT PROSECUTE THESE RUM RUNNERS; SAVED COAST GUARDS

San Pedro, Cal., July 21.—[Special.]—There will be no federal prosecution of Capt. George A. Pruitt and Seaman Fred Page, two man crew of a gas screw boat who were arrested by coast guards early this morning, with 105 cases of Canadian whisky aboard.

When the prisoners were landed by coast guard cutter 827, they were identified by Chief Boatswain's Mate Frederick Dwight of the sunken cutter, Arrow, and his engineer, A. P. Cran, and Seaman B. C. Maddox and J. S. Shone, as the men who had saved their lives.

"Those are the men who saved us when we were adrift in the dory after the Arrow blew up and sank, last Jan. 30," the quartet said.

Before the Arrow sank, it had exchanged shots with fleeing rum runners and the guardsmen drifted until some time Jan. 31.

Assistant U. S. Attorney William Fleet Palmer and his special agents tonight agreed with the coast guardsmen that there is no necessity to prosecute the crew of A—264—B. "They hadn't attempted to land the whisky, and chances for conviction would be weak," it was admitted.

WINCHELL HEAD TARGET FOR FIST OF AL JOLSON

Los Angeles, Cal., July 21.—[Special.]—Fighters in the main event at the Hollywood Legion stadium were forgotten by spectators for several minutes tonight while Al Jolson, actor, had an impromptu battle of his own with Walter Winchell, newspaper columnist.

Jolson walked to the ringside seat occupied by Winchell, Broadway "wisecracker" and purveyor of gossip in the show business, and swung a hefty punch at the columnist's head, according to witnesses. Other spectators joined ushers in the ringside row occupied by Hollywood's film colony and a halt was put to the hostilities before great damage was done.

"He only hit me on the back of the neck," said Winchell as he dusted himself off after the battle.

Material in a scenario Winchell has written for a Hollywood film producer, following closely Jolson's own career on the stage, provoked the fight, it was reported Jolson told friends. The actor is reported as saying that material is contained in the scenario which he considers derogatory to his wife, Ruby Keeler, also a stage and screen star.

HOLD OCEAN LINER HOUR TO TAKE ON AIR PASSENGER

The passenger, Gerold d'Acosta, an apple exporter, bound for Europe on business, telegraphed officials of the line yesterday morning when his plane stopped at Salt Lake City. At 12:33 a. m. he reached the Newark airport, whence he was rushed to the Brooklyn dock by automobile. He boarded the Europa at 1:29 a. m. and the big liner pulled out two minutes later.

Among the 1,000 passengers on the Europa were former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills and Mrs. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Pulitzer, who sailed for a holiday abroad; Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, Katharine Cornell, the actress, and Joseph E. Ridder, vice president of the New York Staats-Zeitung corporation.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE RAPS U. OF C. IN ECONOMY BATTLE

Fry Points to Expense Cuts at University.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

School Trustee Charles W. Fry launched a vigorous counter attack yesterday against University of Chicago faculty members who are criticizing the board of education's $5,000,000 economy program. In his statement Mr. Fry referred to Dean Charles H. Judd of the university's school of education, who was one of the speakers at last night's meeting of protest against the board's retrenchment action.

Mr. Fry, who is a leader in organized labor, brought out the school board's financial records to show that Dean Judd was paid $400 in 1932 for four adult lectures. One of the points in the economy program was the abolition of adult lectures before teachers' and principals' groups.

"Dean Judd is one of the most outspoken critics of the board's economy program in its entirety," asserted Trustee Fry. "Does he consider it so unwise that no more of the money of the taxpayers of Chicago shall go to him?"

Fry Discusses University.

Then Mr. Fry discussed the charges against the board on the part of Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

"In the last two years numerous statements have appeared in the newspapers regarding the deficit in the University of Chicago finances and the steps taken to meet it," declared Trustee Fry. "On Feb. 25, 1932, it was announced that 'economies in operation' and 'consolidation of courses' had been made which would result in considerable savings.

"On April 15, 1933, a salary reduction of from 10 to 20 per cent for executives and certain employés was announced. Extra pay for professors and others also was cut off.

"Have these economies wrecked the university?

"If it is proper for the University of Chicago to take steps to balance its budget through 'economies of operation' and 'consolidation of courses' as well as by reduction of salaries, why is it not proper for the public school system to follow the same course?"

The University High School.

Mr. Fry then demanded to know whether the university officials might not be concerned "because the abolition of junior high schools may result in the establishment of a senior high school in territory now served by the university high school."

"The University of Chicago conducts a high school to which go many boys and girls from the south shore neighborhood because there is no public high school between Hyde Park and Bowen in South Chicago," said Trustee Fry. "This university high school charges a tuition fee of $300 a year.

"Despite this, the faculty of the high school has been reduced recently, several teachers being let out.

"With the elimination of junior high schools from the public school system, Hirsch Junior at 7740 Ingleside avenue will become a senior high school. This would provide a high school in the heart of the south side neighborhood and probably would take many pupils from the university high school.

Another Question Asked.

"Is this one reason why University of Chicago authorities oppose the school board economy action which will wipe out the public school deficit and restore the credit of the school board?"

Speaking on the broader phase of the board's retrenchment program, Trustee Fry declared that it would not impair the educational opportunities of Chicago's 500,000 school children. He added that the retrenchments would put the school system on a sane basis by cutting out frills, luxuries, useless activities and soft political jobs created for political favorites.

"Do the university professors and others who lead the agitation against economy in the schools object to these sound and businesslike moves, or have they some ax to grind?" concluded Trustee Fry.

Economy Program Assailed.

The economy action of the board was attacked earlier in the day as "an amazing display of contempt for the interest of the public in its schools" in a resolution adopted by 252 school superintendents and principals. They were meeting on the University of Chicago campus in the final session of the annual institute for administrative officers of public and private schools.

"We regard the action of the Chicago board of education," said the resolution, "as a glaring example of subservience on the part of a representative public body to the selfish and undemocratic views of shortsighted financial interests whose demands for governmental economies are now being vigorously pressed without due regard for the requirements of essential public service and the future welfare of society."

Crane Alumni Head Praises Board.

A statement issued by Attorney Carle E. Buddenbaum, president of the Crane High School Alumni association, praised the school board's action in closing Crane Junior college.

Mr. Buddenbaum pointed out that the needs for technical education on the north and south sides of Chicago are taken care of by the Lane and Tilden High schools, while the Crane Technical High school on the west side has for years striven to meet the demands of that populous section. Crane Junior college and Crane High school are housed in the same building. Under the economy program the entire plant will now be devoted to the high school.

The college authorities, according to Mr. Buddenbaum, had taken over approximately 75 per cent of the space and facilities in the buildings that were erected and maintained with tax payers' money, appropriated for high school purposes.

tion in pay schedules. It would save $117,000.

"Another $133,000 by closing the school plants completely during the month of August. [This received the greatest applause of any of the suggestions.]

"Now, here is where the public is hit—$200,000 saved in supplies. [This refers to books, paper, etc.] We will stand on the street corners and beg with tin cups if necessary.

"The next is $37,500 by closing the parental school. [This was met with cries of resentment.]

"There are other items that I will not name now, saving from $150,000 to $350,000. This could be done without serious injury to the schools and $4,000,000 be saved for the remainder of this fiscal year."

He took his seat amid great applause.

Dr. Judd's Address.

Dr. Judd in his address took exception to the budget reduction plan of the board, declaring that it evidently is trying to meet in a single year the total deficit which has accumulated since 1929.

"The evident motive of those who control a majority of the board of education," he said, "is not legitimate economy for 1933, but far reaching reduction in school opportunities for the children. The threat of a $10,000,000 deficit is made as a cover under which the enemies of the common people and of the public schools can operate. The citizens of Chicago are determined to know why the solid majority of the board of education has taken the position that it must cut down the activities of the schools.

Charges Tribune Dictation.

"The statements can be made with assurance that the so called economy committee of the board was advised by the paid agent of the committee of which Fred W. Sargent is the chairman, the committee commonly known as the citizens' committee; that the majority of the board of education acted under orders from the mayor; and that the mayor in turn accepted the policy dictated by the owner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

"The majority members of the board are mere puppets. If they had been seeking true economy rather than obeying political orders, the board would have dealt openly with the public and would have adopted plans wholly different from those which it has adopted."

After taking up the junior high school situation, Crane college, the abolishment of the lunchrooms and other features of the board's orders, Dr. Judd said:

"We have come together tonight because we know that our great city is the center where the battles of democracy must be fought. Here in the upper reaches of the Mississippi valley, midway between the great mountain ranges, midway between the two oceans, the unique civilization of opportunity for which the world has been awaiting is in the making.

A View to the Future.

"We are celebrating the first century of our progress with a mighty pageant. We look out into the next century with boundless hope and confidence. If the city of Chicago cannot ward off this blow which has been aimed at its future, then the disaster which threatens us will become a menace to the nation. If the spirit of democracy can be destroyed here, other cities and towns in all parts of the United States will be forced by reactionaries to reduce the school program to instruction in rudimentary subjects.

"We have come together accepting the challenge. In the clear light of open discussion we are ready to force a decision on the issue. Let nothing more be done or said behind closed doors or skulkingly in a corner. The people of Chicago demand to know whether their voice is to be heard or respected. Let there be no mistaking our purpose. We have launched today a campaign which will continue not only all summer but throughout the coming years.

Question of Responsibility.

"We are prepared to hold responsible the mayor of this city, the committee of which Fred W. Sargent is chairman, and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, which constantly and maliciously attacks the schools. We hold responsible that political party which has been given full control of government in this city, in this state, and in this nation. Responsibility rests clearly and definitely on the shoulders of the administration which put in office this servile solid majority of the board of education.

"The method which the city administration has followed in creating the two-thirds majority of the board necessary to overrule the superintendent, the method of procedure which the majority has followed, the type of retrenchment which has been ruthlessly forced on the schools, the evidence of protection of political patronage—all reveal the true motive, the destruction of the morale and efficiency of the free public school system.

Assails Majority of Board.

"Under the ill-conceived plans of a majority of the board, there is not the remotest possibility of making large savings. The pronouncements of the majority of the board are vacillating, utterly incapable of intelligent interpretation, indicative of the grossest ignorance of workable educational policies, and pathetic in their revelation of the abject subservience of board members to spoils politics.

"Let us speak in plain language. The majority of the board of education is acting for those who will, if they dare, reduce the public schools to the elementary grades. The people of the city demand that their representatives in government prevent this crime from being consummated.

"I stand before the high court of public opinion and I impeach the solid majority of the board of education. I impeach all the enemies of a complete and well equipped educational system. I impeach them in the name of youth. I impeach them in the name of American traditions. I impeach them in the name of this great city and its ambitious and enlightened people."

Rabbi Criticises Trustees.

Rabbi Goldman said the board of education did not understand what it was doing.

"See what the board calls fads and frills," he said. "By that phrase alone they are incompetent to guide us. They apply that name to the kindergarten, the junior college, music, and art and craft. The Lord forgive them, for they know not what they do."

The board program, he argued, would drive all who could afford it into private schools and build up cliques and classes in this country, destroying the democracy being molded in the public schools.

Mrs. Holland Flagler, president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Jack Light, president of the Student council, were others who condemned the board's action.

Resolutions presented by Fred C. W. Parker, executive secretary of Kiwanis International, calling on the board to rescind its economy action, were adopted.

Karl Lockner, secretary of the Unemployed council, forced his way to the stage and tried to reach the microphone during the latter part of the meeting. Chairman Moore pushed him away and he was hustled off the stage, where Police Captain John Stege took him in charge. Some of his friends made a disturbance in the hall. Earlier in the evening a stench bomb was exploded near the stage. The police searched in vain for the offender.

More Letters Praise School Board's Economy Program

More letters commending the board of education for its economy program were made public yesterday by the president, James B. McCahey. The board has received hundreds of letters commending or condemning its retrenchment action, but the letters of commendation outnumber those of protest, Mr. McCahey said.

James Joseph Burke, president of the Woodlawn Property Owners' association, which has 3,000 members, wrote:

"We heartily approve of your economy program because we have long since realized that expensive luxuries, not essential to the education of students, have gradually crept into the school system of our city at great expense to the taxpayers, as well as diverting the attention of the children from their studies.

"We look upon your economy program as an unavoidable and imperative move, vitally essential to the success and perpetuation of our school system. Therefore, we commend you and your board on your courage in recommending the proposed changes, which will result not only in a saving to the taxpayer, but in a betterment of our educational system."

"Hold Down Expenditures."

Charles B. McAtee, president of the Southtown Federation of Improvement Associations, which has a membership of 122,000 persons in its forty-one associated organizations, wrote:

"We think it is a wise move on the part of the school board to eliminate all unnecessary expense, duplication and waste at this time. Expenditures should be held within the income."

Mr. McAtee said he had found that much of the criticism directed against the school board is unwarranted, and is spead by "pay rollers" who are being cut off by the economy program.

"This federation," he wrote, "intends to give the new board a fair and honest trial in order to enable it to further curtail expenses which it may, by proper investigation, deem wise and just in the primary interest of our children."

"I am in full accord with everything you and the school board are undertaking, and, in addition to this, I know full well that if your problems were facing a corporation and private business, even far greater action would be taken than you have done," wrote I. Leslie Winter, president of I. B. Winter & Co.

From a School Employé.

"Congratulations," said a letter from M. J. Manter. "I'll say we are with you, thousands of us unorganized teachers and school employés. You have cut nothing out by cutting out unnecessary supervisors, etc. We do the actual work."

"You are doing a grand job—and all of the poor, long suffering taxpayers in Chicago are with you, hook, line and sinker. May God give you all the strength to stick to your guns," wrote R. J. Doyle.

A letter from Frank T. Novak, 12221 Parnell avenue, said:

"I have no axe to grind and no reason to speak other than by own desire to express a few words of approbation for your intelligent and courageous handling of a nasty situation. Having one child in school and another who will enter school next year, I am naturally interested in and concerned with the educational system of our city. More power to you and the other members of the board who have the courage of their convictions and the common sense to follow them."

"As a parent and as a taxpayer, I thank you and the board of education," wrote Joseph Safranek, 2425 South St. Louis avenue.

Hopes Trustees Won't Waver.

"Permit me to convey to you my appreciation for the courageous stand taken by the board of trustees in cutting the budget of our public schools," wrote Albert Albrecht, 3618 Rokeby street. "I sincerely trust that the trustees will not waver in enforcing their decision."

H. E. Santee, in his letter to Mr. McCahey, said:

"To you and all members of the board, I desire to offer real commendation for the stand you have taken in regard to economy in the management of Chicago's school system. I have lived in Chicago for 63 years, have always been interested in her educational work and feel positive from what I personally know that it would be a mistake for the board to back down one inch from the program as it now stands. It is the only program that can save the Chicago schools for the children."

"During the last 25 years I have been a very close observer of the school system. I agree in every sense of the word with your board's action and I honestly feel that several other departments need a thorough going over and trimming down," wrote John E. Pfeffer, 2324 Sheffield avenue.

"I desire to congratulate you on the firm stand you have taken in endeavoring to reduce the excessive costs of schools," wrote Sidney P. Hostler, manager of the S. P. Hostler Coal company. "We hope the board will keep up the good work and eventually reduce operating expenses to somewhere near what the taxpayers can afford to pay."

BLIND HUNDREDS RECEIVE PENSION CHECKS OF $91.20

Hundreds of blind men and women tapped their way along the sidewalks leading to the county welfare office at 739 South Winchester avenue to receive their quarterly pension checks of $91.20 each yesterday.

The state law requires the county to pay a pension of $1 a day to all blind persons with an income less than $1,000 a year. While the checks are mailed out to those who desire it, most of the pensioners prefer to call for them in person.

The county may not reduce the amount of the payments. Miss Lilian Procter, supervisor of the office, said that many of the pensioners admittedly make a living by begging on the streets, but that there are no legal means of stopping their pensions in such cases. Some of them, however, have agreed to forgo the pensions when they have other income.

JARECKI CARRIES ON TAX DRIVE IN 94 DEGREE HEAT

County Judge Hears 464 Cases—a Record Day.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday totaled $207,700. A total of $28,580,446 has been collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began April 28. The day's collection of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years are shown in the following table:

	1928.	1929.
July 21	$ 21,312	$ 28,032
Uncollected	18,621,433	49,143,010

July 21	$ 44,655	$ 113,701
Uncollected	79,454,566	168,188,101

With the temperature at 94 degrees in his courtroom, County Judge Jarecki yesterday attacked a court call which numbered 464 cases pertaining to tax matters. The call included 87 motions on tax cases, 170 new tax receivership cases, 62 continued tax cases, and 145 objections to taxes.

The call was the most formidable that has confronted the judge in his years of service in the County court and one of the heaviest, if not the heaviest, ever placed before a judge. Judge Jarecki, who is dispensing with his vacation in order to press tax collections under the Kerner-Skarda act, did not leave the bench until he had heard every case.

Thermometer Registers 94 Degrees.

During the day the courtroom was thronged with attorneys and litigants. Shortly after the opening of the afternoon session Sidney Holsman, secretary of the judge, placed a thermometer in the courtroom. It registered 94 degrees.

The same thermometer was then taken to courtrooms of Circuit and Superior judges, where it registered 85 degrees.

In the day's work Judge Jarecki oredred the appointment of County Treasurer McDonough as receiver for 72 properties. The properties, with the back taxes due, are:

Orders Foreclosure Suits.

Judge Jarecki also ordered Assistant State's Attorney William T. Crilly to file foreclosure proceedings against four other property owners who had failed to meet back taxes and who declared their properties were producing no income.

In the majority of cases continuances were asked and granted attorneys. In almost 50 cases small payments were made by property owners to avoid receiverships. More than $55,000 was collected in court. In the past greater totals have been collected but in larger payments.

"The fact that property owners are willing to pay as little as $100," said Judge Jarecki, "indicates that the public now knows back taxes are going to be collected. Such payments are an indication that all back taxes will be collected and that the public spirit is changing from striking against taxes."

County Treasurer McDonough yesterday disbursed $4,450,274 to the tax spending agencies as follows:

City and schools	$2,941,057
Sanitary district	398,660
Cook county	390,106
State	289,118
South park	220,641
Lincoln park	102,937
West park	37,261
Forest preserves	70,479

The treasurer also filed suits in the County court to place 150 tax delinquent properties, owing $812,022 in taxes, in receivership. The state's attorney's office filed 50 suits in the Circuit court seeking to collect $300,000 in delinquent 1931 personal property taxes.

IDENTIFY BULLET VICTIM.

The body of a man found shot to death in the dunes near Michigan City on July 15 was tentatively identified yesterday as that of Wesley Cawley, 72 years old, 7121 South Maplewood avenue. A pistol was found beside the body and Cawley had apparently committed suicide.

OUTLINE PLAN TO END CITIES' DEBT PROBLEM

Municipal Financing Experts Meet.

A revision of statutes to allow incorporated municipalities of the country to adjust their finances, and especially their defaulted debts, through federal court sanction and operations similar to bankruptcy proceedings was advocated yesterday as 50 city officials, bankers, and professors discussed municipal finances at the University of Chicago.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the Public Administration Clearing House, the American Municipal association, the Municipal Finance Officers' association, and the United States conference of mayors. It was called in the hope that economic, governmental and banking experts could discover methods of financing the obligations of more than 1,500 cities and towns in the United States now unable to function properly because of mountainous funded debts, tax delinquencies, and the depression.

Plan Given to Congress.

The legislation proposed as a means through which municipalities could in effect go through bankruptcy as does an individual, is the Wilcox-Summers bill which was introduced in congress during the last session. At that time the bill did not receive the support of President Roosevelt and it was not advanced beyond committee hearings.

As outlined briefly yesterday, the bill provides that any incorporated municipality may propose a plan of reorganization of its financial structure to a federal District court if 30 per cent of its creditors are agreeable. Once before the court, if two-thirds of the creditors agreed to any given plan for funding the debt, such as extending maturity dates or reducing interest rates, the court could compel the remainder of the creditors to abide by the plan.

Plight of One City Cited.

Proponents of this measure point out that in this manner a city could end the plague of mandamus suits with which minority creditors can paralyze its operation.

As an example of the need for such a law, West Palm Beach, Fla., was cited. There, in a city of 16,000 population, the defaulted debts amount to $17,000,000.

No plan of paying off these obligations has been found and as a result no taxes are being collected by the city. This is brought about by mandamus suits which force city officials to levy tax budgets in which provisions to retire some of the funded delinquent debts are included. These levies are so enormous that there is no possibility that they will be paid and consequently the city has practically no police, fire or sanitary district protection, it was said.

Opposed by Princeton Professor.

Prof. Harley Lutz of Princeton university was one who opposed the proposed law yesterday. "One reason for my objection," he said, "is that this sort of legislation tends to cover up the fundamental causes of the difficulty. It is apparent that the states which contain such bankrupt cities were negligent in matters of control of the borrowing of their municipalities.

"Another reason is that it tends to foster the attitude that people should go to Washington every time they get in a jam.

Prof. Thomas H. Reed of the University of Michigan voiced the attitude of the other portion of the conferees. He said:

"Municipal debt cannot be treated in the manner of an individual mortgage. The only security of municipal debt is the good will and continuing operation of the borrowing agency.

"No Interference with State."

"Everybody would be better off with the law. It would be no preventive of development of state regulations as to borrowing capacity.

"If something is not done immediately the purchasers of municipal securities will have only paper to frame or paste on their walls. This is one solution of conditions as they are at present. Unless they are changed cities which are not affected by the troubles which beset so many of their number will be drawn into defaults."

Soon after the meeting opened statistics were produced to show that of the total municipal debt of 18 billion dollars only one billion is in default. Of 150,000 cities and towns throughout the United States, only 1,500 are in distress.

German Flyer Is Missing on Hop Across Atlantic

DAKAR, Senegal, Africa, July 21.—(AP)—Fear that another trans-Atlantic flight attempt has come to grief was expressed today when no word came concerning a German aviator named Wirtschaft who set out to fly across the south Atlantic in a small airplane, with Pernambuco, Brazil, as his goal. Wirtschaft hopped off from here Thursday soon after he arrived from Berlin, with stops at Barcelona, Spain, and Casablanca, Morocco.

CURFEW SHAN'T RING TONIGHT AT WORLD FAIR

Quarrel with Concession Managers Is Settled.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Curfew shall not ring tonight at the World's Fair. The sun dodgers, entertainment seekers who are unable to arouse any pep until midnight, won the right yesterday to parade in unalloyed gayety until the Sunday morning sun peeps across the blue of Lake Michigan. Gates to the grounds will be closed at midnight, but the visitors who are in the grounds can stay for Sunday breakfast at 8 a. m., then go to church within the confines of the Exposition and start in another day of sightseeing.

The gate order is tentative and can be changed.

Close at 2 on Other Nights.

On other nights of the week except Saturday the concessions must close at 2 a. m., according to an order issued last night by Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair. The nominal closing hour heretofore has been 1:30 a. m. The gates will close at midnight every night of the week instead of 11:30 o'clock as heretofore.

"Our only difficulty in setting a shutdown period," Maj. Lohr said, "is to consider the greatest good to the greatest number. Trucks and sweeping operations are the two problems. We have been bringing our trucks and the trucks of concessionaires in the grounds at midnight. They present a danger to visitors, who have learned not to expect vehicle traffic in the grounds. We must protect them."

On the assurance of the concessionaires that all their trucking could be done after 2 a. m., the curfew was immediately changed. On Saturday night and Sunday morning the trucking danger will be guarded against by special corps of policemen and guides, with the workmen instructed to be particularly cautious. The ruling met with the almost unanimous approval of the showmen.

Why Saturday Is Curfewless.

The great balance in favor of Saturday night was due to the belief that night club enthusiasts would make that the principal night in their entertainment program anyway, and that a majority of out of town visitors would expect the week-end night to be the major night of amusement seeking, using other days in the week for the more serious side of the Fair.

Representatives of both the day and night shows seemed content with the decision of Maj. Lohr, who listened patiently to the various statements for more than an hour and then in ten minutes of analysis summed up the situation and handed down his decision. Concurring in the action of Maj. Lohr was R. I. Randolph, director of operations and maintenance.

The decision of Maj. Lohr effected an amicable solution of a problem which has had the Fair in a turmoil for a week. Showmen protested that a 1:30 a. m. closing order meant severe loss to them.

Puts O. K. on "Skin Shows."

Last night's order ended the war between concessionaires and the Fair management on two fronts. Earlier Maj. Lohr, after a personal survey, announced that the nude shows at the Fair, in his mind, did not constitute obscenity and vulgarity and could not be closed.

The order opening the Fair for tonight gave assurance that final figures for today would be far up in the running for the Fair record, officials said. At 11:30 p. m. the official attendance was 153,564, far exceeding Thursday's final total of 108,118.

Yesterday, on the 56th day of the Fair, the total attendance passed the 5,600,000 mark, establishing a daily average exceeding 100,000. A constantly increasing daily average is shown in a survey completed yesterday. The first million visitors entered in 17 days for a daily average of 58,823; the second and third millions were clocked in ten day periods for an average of 100,000; the fourth and fifth millions were registered in seven day periods for a daily average of 142,857 visitors. It appeared last night that the sixth million might be checked in six days and in not more than seven.

Elks and Children Throng Fair.

Two events featured the program at the Fair yesterday: Elks' day and Children's day. Some 10,000 Elks visited the grounds during the day, parading in the Avenue of Flags and presenting a feature program of speeches and music in the court of the Hall of Science. Speeches were given by Floyd E. Thompson of Illinois, retiring grand exalted ruler, and Walter F. Meier, incoming exalted ruler.

The Children's day show opened with a colorful parade through the grounds in the morning and a series of special performances during the day. Nickel was king for children under 12 years old, providing gate admissions and entry to many shows.

G. M. COX, HEAD OF SHIP LINE, GIVES UP ON FIGHT CHARGE

George M. Cox, president of the Isle Royal Transit company, surrendered at the Chicago avenue police station last night to satisfy a warrant charging him with assault and battery and posted $50 cash bail. He was released immediately and told to appear at the South State street court this morning.

The complainant against the transit company head is Mark Gilbert of Traverse City, Mich. The charge, police understand, is based on an alleged assault occurring in a loop café July 17. Cox is 55 years old and lives at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club. One of his steamers, named after him, was sunk on its inaugural voyage when it struck a reef near Houghton, Mich., May 27.

Bomb Explosion at Cafe Routs 40 Flat Occupants

ELKS HAVE DAY AT FAIR; NEW RULER ATTENDS

Cast of 5,000 to Take Part in Drama.

The pageant, "A Nation Glorified," a history of the Polish people, this evening will bring to a climax the week of Polish celebration in Chicago.

The drama will be staged in Soldiers' field, with a cast of 5,000 persons depicting the story of Polish progress, and the search for a new life in America by immigrants. A prominent place in the pageant is given to the part played in the American war by Kosciuszko and Pulaski. Irene Napientek, 2623 Emmett street, who was chosen Miss Poland in a recent contest here, will appear in the pageant.

Chorus of 1,000 to Sing.

The scene opens with a Polish village, a country road flanked by quaint cottages, and rustics in native costume, showing the folk life of the Poles. A chorus of 1,000 voices will sing folk songs and 300 more will participate in whirlwind dances of the Krakowiak and the Mazur.

A parade of organizations will follow, including floats depicting the contribution of the Poles to the world's progress. During the parade 2,000 Polish National Alliance Boy Scouts will give a Polish and American flag drill followed by a demonstration of the 4th United States cavalry and a battalion of the 6th United States infantry.

Here the Pageant Begins.

Then will begin the pageant proper with dancing girls, combats, Poland's contribution to the field of arts, sciences, and industry, the world war, the resurrected nation of Poland, and finally the allegiance of Polish-Americans to their adopted land.

Polish week opened last Monday with a festival of Polish music. Delegations from all over the United States have poured in upon the city, thousands of relatives of the Poles in Chicago having selected this week to visit A Century of Progress.

START DIGGING FIRST LAGOON IN SKOKIE PROJECT

Some 1,100 members of the civilian conservation corps have finished building the quarters which they will occupy while working on the forest preserve reclamation project in the Skokie marsh, and yesterday had started excavation work on the first of the lagoons which they are to build.

The complete project calls for construction of eight lagoons, three dams, and several foot and bridle paths, and the planting of trees and shrubs on the land which will be raised out of the marsh as a result of the excavation. James D. Brown, field engineer of the forest preserve district, said that the first lagoon, one of the largest of the project, will probably keep the men busy until December. It has an area of 13 acres, and is to be excavated to a depth of nine feet. Virtually all of the work is being done with shovels and wheelbarrows, to furnish employment to as many men as possible.

The five C. C. C. companies are commanded by Maj. C. A. Chapman. The men work a six hour day, five days a week, and are given leave Saturday nights and Sundays.

SEIZE HOODLUMS WHO TAKE CHARGE OF ROADHOUSE

Five men were seized late last night in the Idle Hour roadhouse, on Waukegan road, one-half mile north of Dempster street, in Morton Grove. Two guns were confiscated. The men were arrested by village police on a call that hoodlums had taken possession of the place.

Witnesses said that one of the men, a former part owner, drew a gun and announced, "This place is now ours." When police arrived two guns were lying on the bar. Lieut. Andrew Barry and his squad from the Chicago detective bureau were in the vicinity seeking hoodlums. The prisoners were turned over to the lieutenant and brought to Chicago. They identified themselves as William J. Kozak, 1177 Gunderson avenue, Oak Park; Martin Tesner Sr., and Art Cramer, both of 1633 West 21st place; John Selan, 9100 Waukegan road, Morton Grove, and E. B. Snyder, 1533 Cullerton street.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Miss Chizu Mitsuhashi, graduate of Doshisha university of Kioto, Japan, will take part in the dedication of the Japanese "Lucky Gate" at 16th street tomorrow. Immediately following the dedication of the gate, a reception in the ceremonial teahouse will be given for Exposition officials and their families and Japanese notables. In the evening Miss Mitsuhashi, who has been selected as "Miss Japan," will present 100 women visitors each with a genuine eight grain Mikimoto pearl.

The boys' band from Allendale school of Lake Villa, Ill., led the Children's day parade yesterday morning and later played a concert in the children's playground at the Enchanted Island. The band is composed of 30 members ranging in age from 10 to 16 years, directed by Monty Hinton.

A group of 11 Boy Scouts from Almira, Wash., are expected to arrive some time today for a three day visit to the Fair. They are making the trip in a four wheeled trailer being drawn by the automobile of E. A. Notson, Scoutmaster.

Spurious tickets for the Pantheon de la Guerre have been appearing in increasing numbers in the last two weeks, and the World's Fair police yesterday issued a warning to visitors not to buy concession tickets from venders operating on the streets of the city and on the Midway at the Fair. The tickets for the Pantheon are part of several rolls of tickets that were stolen when the painting was exhibited in Washington, D. C., last year.

Mike and Ike Matina, the midget twins at the Midget Village, are in training for their exhibition bout Aug. 2 as the fifth bout on the card of the International Golden Gloves tournament, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, to be held in Soldiers' field. They have boxed at many places in Europe, estimating they have fought one another at least 2,000 times. They weigh 30 and 31 pounds, respectively, and are 32 inches tall.

The Women's Symphony orchestra of Chicago gave a concert last night in the auditorium of Hollywood. The concert was sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs, several officials of which were present.

CONTEMPT CASE AGAINST SOKOLL HALTED BY WRIT

The state Appellate court yesterday ordered Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green to halt contempt of court proceedings against Michael M. Sokoll, president of the Checker Taxicab company, and George Egan, an employé. The court order directed that the proceedings against the cab company defendants be held in "status quo" until the justices have reviewed evidence presented by Sokoll and Egan, who sought a writ of injunction from Superior Judge Joseph B. David.

Through their attorneys, Sokoll and Egan presented a petition for the injunction on Thursday, but it was denied by Judge David. He formally entered the denial order yesterday and Sokoll's counsel appealed to the Appellate court. Sokoll obtained the writ of prohibition against Judge Green by asserting that unless the latter was prevented from putting him in jail at a hearing scheduled for yesterday, an injury would be done him before a higher court could review the case.

The case grew out of the arrest and sentencing of Ivar Swedberg, a Checker company driver. Testimony given by Swedberg concerning ownership of his cab involved both Sokoll and Egan. The testimony, according to charges placed before Judge Green, was perjured. After being served with the writ of prohibition, Judge Green continued the contempt matter until Aug. 2.

KILLS WIFE, SELF ON RETURN FROM VISIT TO FRANCE

On April 12 Edmund Zwarg, 50 years old, left Chicago for France to visit his son, a soldier in the French army. Yesterday at 2:30 p. m. he arrived at his home, 4607 Altgeid street. Seven hours later he stabbed his wife, Eugenie, 49 years old, and himself to death with a butcher knife.

Their bodies were discovered by Alfred Dorf, 28 years old, a roomer in the house, and Miss Josephine Zimba, 5237 Montana street. Dorf told the police that he had left the couple at 9:20 p. m. to get cigarets for Zwarg.

At that time, he said, they were chatting quietly and appeared happy. He met Miss Zimba on the street, he added, and they reached the home about 9:35 p. m.

Zwarg was a retired butcher. His return yesterday, according to Dorf, was unexpected, and he seemed to be disappointed when he found that Mrs. Zwarg was out visiting a neighbor. No notes were found and the only theory of the police was that Zwarg had slain his wife and himself in a fit of insanity.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

The International Union of Operating Engineers, local 150, is not an outlaw union as was mentioned in a story in THE TRIBUNE on Thursday. It is affiliated with the Chicago and American Federations of Labor. Nor were the local's records seized by police as stated. An official demand for the union's books is being resisted before Chief Justice Prystalski.

COL. HUGH SCOTT TO BE GUEST AT DINNER TONIGHT

A testimonial and entertainment in honor of Col. Hugh Scott, commanding officer of the Edward Hines Jr. hospital, will be given at the hospital tonight. Col. Scott has been in charge of the hospital for five years and has developed a large recreational program for the veterans.

County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer will be toastmaster. Others who will be present include President Emmett Whealan of the county board, Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder, Circuit Judge Joseph Burke, Bailiff Al Horan of the Municipal court, Edward R. Litsinger, Mayor Frank Novotney of Berwyn, and Charles Reading, superintendent of the juvenile detention home. The Chicago postoffice band will furnish the music and radio stars will participate in the program.

C. M. T. C. TO OPEN AT FT. SHERIDAN; 841 WILL ATTEND

The annual citizens' military training camp will open at Fort Sheridan next Friday, with young men from Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan participating. The camp will end Aug. 26.

Due to the federal economy program there will be only 841 men at the camp. In previous years the average has been about 2,000. This year's camp will not take in any new men.

Four infantry companies, including a machine gun unit, one field artillery company and one cavalry company will make up the camp. Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, commandant at Fort Sheridan, will be in charge, assisted by Maj. D. B. Falk, executive officer.

Roosevelt Road Car Line to Fair Nears Completion

FACTOR AND SON VIEW TOUHY AT SECRET SHOWUP

4 Gangsters Perform for Kidnap Victims.

They were being subjected to a secret showup under the supervision of federal agents. Behind a wall and looking at the Touhy hoodlums through a concealed mirror was John [Jake the Barber] Factor, recent victim of a sensational kidnaping which police generally charge against the northwest side gang. Factor was safely concealed from the prisoners' gaze. He watched every move of each prisoner and listened to every tone of voice.

Another Kidnap Victim There.

In the secret room with Factor was another kidnaping victim, according to reports, Robert Fitchie, president of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union. Others in the room were Factor's wife, Rella; his son, Jerome, who was kidnaped in April; Attorney Al Epstein, a woman believed to be Epstein's wife, a doctor, and another youth about Jerome's age.

Others besides Touhy in the showup were Willie [West Side] Sharkey, Eddie [Father Tom] McFadden, and Gustave [Gloomy Gus] Schafer. All were sullen. One by one they went through the gestures and maneuvers as ordered by Chief Schoemaker and R. T. Amis, special government agent. They spoke in whispers or shouted as was commanded. Heavily armed policemen looked on and they obeyed, but resentfully.

The gangsters did not speak unless ordered to. They did not smile. The business on hand they knew was serious because it was being conducted by federal men, whose prisoners they are.

Factor Is Nervous.

In the other room, behind the trick mirror, Factor looked on and listened nervously. At 15 minutes to 10 the showup was over. Factor emerged with his wife, Epstein and the others. He was met by Federal Agent Amis. Factor was obviously nervous. Amis seemed nervous, too.

What Factor's nervousness signified, if anything, was not divulged. Whether he identified Touhy, Sharkey, McFadden, or Schafer was not revealed. Factor has repeatedly said he could not identify his kidnapers because he was blindfolded during the twelve days of his captivity. This was why Touhy and the others were made to talk. Police professed not to know whether there had been any identifications. Federal operatives would not discuss the case.

The Factor party left the police building hurriedly and went home. Touhy and his fellow prisoners were then marched up to the regular showup room before 250 men and women, including Princess Myriam Potenziani, daughter of the Italian prince, Lodovico Pontenziani. No one identified the prisoners. Touhy and the others were then locked up for the night.

Snarls at Policeman.

"It's a dirty trick," snarled Sharkey after it was over. Earlier in the day Sharkey had muttered to a policeman that he'd "get him" because the policeman yanked his head back to hold it in position for a photographer.

The day's earlier activities over the Touhys took place before Chief Justice Prystalski, where their lawyer, William Scott Stewart, sought a writ of habeas corpus. Police said the prisoners were the government's. A hearing on the matter will be held today.

During the morning Melvin Purvis, head of the United States bureau of investigation, was quoted as saying that federal agents had found the Factor kidnaping hideout on a Skokie valley farm "somewhere along the north shore."

Hear Grocer Is Hunted.

When asked to amplify the report later Mr. Purvis refused to discuss it or to comment on an elaboration of the story, which was to the effect that his agents were seeking a grocer believed to have sold the Factor kidnapers their provisions. He was also mute on the progress the agents were making, if any, to check the serial numbers of the $1,730 found on the Touhy gang for comparison with the serials of the $50,000 Factor ransom and the $100,000 ransom of William Hamm, St. Paul brewer.

A cryptic statement regarding the Touhy gang was drawn out of State's Attorney Courtney, the statement leading to the inference that Mr. Courtney believed a kidnap case provable against the prisoners.

"We know positively the men that kidnaped Factor," he was quoted as saying. "If certain men will stand up we will get a conviction. If the $1,700 found on the gang isn't payoff money I don't know what payoff money is."

Face Trial in Wisconsin.

The four Touhyites were captured near Elkhorn, Wis., with a rifle and a golf bag full of small arms in their car. Bound over to the Walworth county court for carrying concealed weapons, they are due to face trial in dthe Wisconsin courts next Thursday.

While Stewart was seeking the writs before Judge Prystalski, state and federal officials held a conference in Mr. Purvis' office. Among those present were Chief Schoemaker, Mr. Courtney, Capt. Daniel Gilbert of Courtney's office, United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, Elliott Ness of the prohibition bureau, and United States Senator Louis Murphy of Dubuque, Ia.

No comments were forthcoming after the conference.

O'CONNELL'S UNCLE DENIES RANSOM PAID TO KIDNAPING BAND

Albany, N. Y., July 21.—[Special.]—Speaking today for the family of John J. O'Connell Jr., 24 year old brewery official who was kidnaped a fortnight ago, Edward J. O'Connell, an uncle, denied that contact has been established with the captors or that ransom has been paid.

The interview—the first of any length since young O'Connell was whisked away from his car in front of his mother's home in tree shaded Putnam street—was intended to suppress rumors concerning the status of the case. Rumor has had young O'Connell safely out of the kidnapers' hands; has had a large sum of ransom money turned over to the band that seeks $250,000 for his release; has even hinted that he may be dead because the ransom negotiations have been unsuccessful.

Edward O'Connell, who is Democratic chairman in Albany county, was asked:

"Do you believe the boy is safe?"
"Yes."
"Why?"
"Just a feeling."

POLICEMAN FINED 10 DAYS' PAY FOR BEATING AUTOIST

Drop Second Charge After Hearing.

The city civil service commission yesterday fined Policeman Anthony J. Bradtke of the West North Avenue station ten days' pay, approximately $70, upon a conviction of willful maltreatment of a prisoner. A charge of conduct unbecoming an officer was dismissed.

The complainant against Bradtke was Joseph J. Merkel, 11712 Lowe avenue, a rent collector for the Chicago Title and Trust company. Merkel, while driving in Western avenue near Diversey avenue on May 26 was ordered to the curb by Bradtke, riding in another car, and told he was under arrest. Bradtke was in plain clothes.

Merkel asked to see Bradtke's star, being suspicious of a boldup. He had been held up twice shortly before that. Bradtke, Merkel testified, put his hand in his pocket and withdrew it, but he did not see the star. Bradtke ordered him to drive to a nearby filling station and asked the attendant to call a patrol wagon. The attendant refused.

Charges Merkel Struck First.

Merkel drove away, dodged through several alleys, and was followed by Bradtke to a coal yard. There Bradtke struck him, bruising his face. Bradtke charged that Merkel walked to his car and struck him first, and one witness who was in the coal yard testified that this was true. Bradtke also testified that he placed Merkel under arrest when the latter drove past him, honking his horn, and yelled, "If you can't drive faster than that, get off the street you ——"

Merkel was charged with disorderly conduct by Bradtke, but the case was dismissed by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman. Merkel testified that he had some beer with his lunch a short time before his arrest.

Capt. Frank Matchett, Bradtke's commanding officer, testified that Bradtke, shortly before the incident, had driven him to an "L" station and that Bradtke had not been drinking at that time. He testified that Bradtke had been on the police force for seven years, had never before been taken before the trial board, and that the policeman's work in the West North avenue district had helped greatly in giving the district the record of having fewer automobile stripping cases than any other in the city.

Decision Cites Provocation.

"The commission believes," said Chairman Richard J. Collins in announcing its ruling, "that Bradtke was justified in stopping Merkel, that Merkel tooted his horn at him and called him a foul name. We also believe that when Merkel ran away after hearing Bradtke tell the gas station attendant to call a patrol wagon that he was acting suspiciously and gave Bradtke more provocation.

"The commission was also satisfied that Bradtke showed his star and that his actions were all right up to the time he struck Merkel. The commission also believed a physician's testimony concerning Merkel's injuries and that was the basis of the conviction. Bradtke had great provocation, but he broke a rigid police rule against maltreating a prisoner."

The commission dismissed from the police department Patrolman Patrick Burke of the Des Plaines street station. Burke was convicted of entering a house at 232 St. John court while intoxicated, threatening members of a Negro family living there with a revolver, and insulting the women.

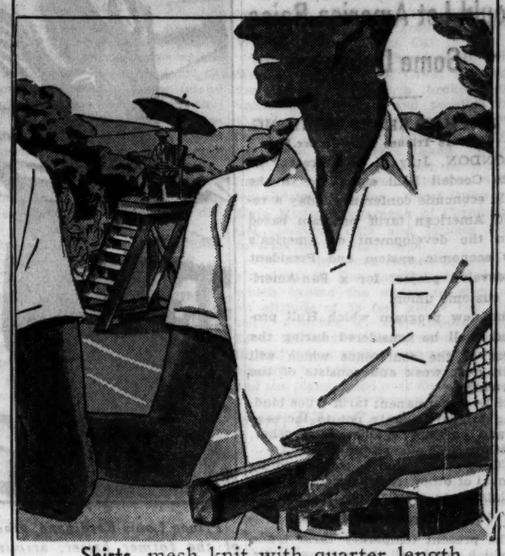

Italian Passenger Plane Lost at Sea with 5 Aboard

ROME, July 21.—(AP)—The Italian Aero-Express company announced today that it believed one of its seaplanes, commanded by Maj. Giorgio Pesei Parvis and carrying a crew of two men and two Italian passengers, had been lost in the sea between Athens and Rhodes. The announcement followed a search conducted by Greek and Italian airplanes and two torpedo boats since the seaplane was reported overdue at Rhodes Wednesday

U. S. PROPOSES NEW TARIFF PACT AT WORLD PARLEY

Would Let America Raise Some Duties.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 21. — Secretary of State Cordell Hull submitted to the world economic conference today a revised American tariff program based upon the development of America's new economic system and President Roosevelt's project for a Pan-American customs union.

The new program which Hull proposed shall be considered during the recess of the conference which will begin next week and consists of the following:

FIRST—A permanent tariff truce binding all participants not to increase trade barriers against each other, with certain exceptions.

SECOND—Reduction of tariffs and removal of other trade barriers through bilateral or plurilateral treaties.

U. S. May Raise Duties.

The present temporary tariff truce to which nearly all the nations in the conference have subscribed, though with so many reservations as to make it almost meaningless, would remain in effect during the recess. When the temporary truce ends Hull would replace it with a permanent truce to continue during the protracted period of trade barrier reductions.

The text of the proposed permanent truce enumerates six classes of exemption from its obligations, some of which are intended to meet the necessities of the United States' revolutionary economic experiment. Thus, notwithstanding the truce, the United States could raise duties on wheat and other farm products to offset the processing taxes thereon and the taxes under the farm relief act.

Likewise the American government could raise duties or impose a quota or other restrictions in order to afford protection to commodities the cost of producing which is increased by the régime of government controlled industry. Another exception would allow increased trade barriers in connection with international agreements restricting the production of wheat and other commodities.

Explains U. S. Position.

In a letter to Dr. Hendryk Colijn, chairman of the economic commission, Hull said that in these exceptions the American government "indicates the precise test of necessity which it expects to observe before introducing any new restrictions that may seem imperative for the success of the domestic program of recovery upon which it is engaged. The American policy will in general seek to further international commerce to the fullest possible extent compatible with the essential aims of this program."

In this manner the American delegation receded from its original tariff proposals and took a position in keeping with the current Roosevelt economic program. Insinuations are being made by the German and other delegates that tariff agreements would have been reached had it not been for President Roosevelt's refusal to stabilize the dollar.

Wants Substantial Reduction.

The new proposals for reciprocal tariff agreements embody Hull's low tariff theories, to the development of which his entire public career has been devoted. Thus, the second section of the American program provides that nations shall "declare that their aim in these treaties is a substantial reduction of trade barriers and not merely removal of temporary and abnormal restrictions and increments imposed for bargaining purposes."

Hull would have the nations proceed first to the removal of restrictions and reduction of duties "which most clearly lack economic justification," such as duties that allow imports of less than 5 per cent of domestic consumption, restrictions imposed since 1929 and protective duties that have failed to develop home production of more than 15 per cent of domestic consumption.

The American program further proposes adherence to the unconditional most favored nation principle, with certain exceptions. Thus, if the United States and other American countries enter into an agreement on reciprocal tariff reductions, they would not be obliged to extend the same benefits to nonparticipating nations provided the trade area included is of substantial size, reductions of duties are uniform and benefits are open to all countries making the concessions stipulated.

Acquits Village President of Using Obscene Language

Samuel Audersch, president of the village board of Justice Park, was found not guilty yesterday on a charge of using obscene language, placed against him by Mrs. Serena Hlavacek, member of the Lyons township school board. The case was heard by Justice of the Peace William Aitchison of Alsip. It was brought out in the testimony that Mrs. Hlavacek had slapped the village president during a quarrel following a Justice Park board meeting on June 22. At that time, Mrs. Hlavacek asserted, he swore at her and called her a liar.

Gunmen Hijack Truck of Beer on Way to Gary

Two hundred cases of Atlas beer consigned to Gary, Ind., were hijacked late last night by three gunmen at Sibley street and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway in Dolton. They drove Nick Schiralli, truck driver, to Calumet City, where they put him off the truck. The empty truck was recovered later in Calumet City.

Bit and Bridle Roadhouse in Morton Grove Burns

Fire swept through the Bit and Bridle club, a roadhouse, at Harms road and Church street, Morton Grove, early this morning, causing an estimated loss of $5,000. The roadhouse was closed last week by Frank O'Brien, the owner. How the fire started is not known. Morton Grove and Niles Center fire departments joined in putting out the blaze.

NANKING HALTS WAR ON FENG; FEARS CANTON

Ultimatum Is Served Upon Chiang.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 21.—Interest in the crisis in North China between the forces of the Christian general, Feng Yu-hsiang, and the national government troops at Peiping was overshadowed here today by a sudden outburst of Cantonese indignation against the national government's plans to dislodge Gen. Feng by force.

The Canton political council sent a telegram warning Nanking against the use of force against Gen. Feng, who was termed a "sincere patriot."

Calls on People for Aid.

The telegram said that in event Dictator Chiang Kai-shek persisted "Canton will not look on mildly, but will lead the whole nation to uphold the righteousness of the Christian general's campaign against the Japanese for recovery of the lost provinces of Manchuria and Jehol."

The telegram denounced Nanking's threatened renewal of civil war and urged the Chinese people to heed the situation and stand prepared to safeguard the national existence.

Canton also announced that it has sent $50,000 to Kalgan for the relief and assistance of Gen. Feng and stated that more will be forthcoming.

Attack Called Off.

As a result of the rising storm of opposition against Nanking's threatened military move against Gen. Fang, which is popularly interpreted as cooperation with the Japanese, Marshal Chiang ordered Gen. Ho Ying-chin, war minister and head of the Peiping military council, to withhold the threatened attack pending the outcome of a military and political conference which Chiang has called at Kuling.

Reports from Peiping said the government forces number 100,000, while Gen. Feng's forces in the Kalgan sector number 45,000. Feng's troops are poorly equipped.

PACT TO RESTRICT WHEAT SPURNED BY AUSTRALIANS

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—Prospects for the conclusion of an international agreement for wheat acreage restriction received a blow today when Stanley M. Bruce of Australia told the world economic conference that his country would not have anything to do with any such scheme.

It was thought in some quarters that the Australian delegate left the door slightly ajar for later treatment of the wheat limitation proposal when he acknowledged that in some cases, because of extraordinary large surpluses and other factors, restriction of production might be worth while. But his language was sufficiently emphatic to leave little room for optimism.

"Schemes of this character," Mr. Bruce said, "can be carried out only by governments either Socialist, Fascist or Communistic in character, and Australia certainly does not intend to become any of these."

First Patient Treated by Giant X-Ray Machine Dies

John J. Mulcahy, the first patient to receive treatment from the world's most powerful x-ray machine, which is in Mercy hospital here, died yesterday in his home at St. Johns, N. F. He was 66 years old. Mr. Mulcahy received the x-ray treatment on May 15. For thirty-five minutes 800,000 volts and 10 milliamperes of electricity coursed through his body. He later reported he felt "no sensation whatever." Mr. Mulcahy was a cancer sufferer.

Women Tell of Advance in Literary Field

Authors Meet at World Conference Here.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

IN connection with the International Council of Women, an international women writers' conclave was called for three days, bringing to Chicago literary messages from many countries in sessions which were devoted to "The Sweep of the Century," "The Trend of the Future," and a poetry conference.

Miss Nouvart Tashjian opened one session with news of what Armenian women writers of the last century have done. She said that they are writing books in French, Russian and English, and that the Armenian government is finally honoring women writers and even publishing some of their work officially.

Señorita Mariblanca, associate editor of Cartelas in Havana, spoke of the work modern Cuban women who, she said, have broken the chains of conventionality and are doing work which will be the background of future greatness.

Fru Agga Christensen reported that the main characteristic of the work of women writers in her native country, Norway, in the last hundred years was at first to show the devotion of women to him, but that now women writers are champions of the rights of women to social and economic independence.

In Denmark, according to Mrs. Thit Jensen, the early talented women writers had not dared to sign their own names to their work. Later women writers were not scorned if they confined their work to the themes of love and sex. The modern Danish woman writer, however, of whom Mrs. Jensen is a leader, has gone into all fields of social, economic and political life for her material, she said:

Marthe Oulié, who has the distinction of having had every book she has ever published crowned with a literary prize in France, spoke of the work of French women writers. The nineteenth century, she said, saw the rise of a generation of women poets in imitation of the men, but in the twentieth century women writers let their own genius develop. Not only poetry, but fiction, became possible for them. She said that intelligent French women believe that the best way to bring peace and understanding between countries is to see the common human problems through the eyes of others.

Mrs. C. Antoinette spoke on "American Women's Contribution to the Drama."

Señora Marie Luisa Astaldi, an Italian beauty, admitted privately that the fact that she was childless lowered her influence with a certain class of people. She confirmed the report of the edict of a baby a year" in Italy or ostracism. In the conference she said that Italian women writers had been much repressed. When people feel morbid and uncertain of their future, literature does not thrive, she said, but that the outlook for the future of women in Italian literature was brighter than during the last few years.

A message from Porto Rican women writers was read and the 100 best books of the century by American women were discussed by Anita Browne.

At the second session Mary Synon spoke on "Modern Fiction Writers in America," naming Willa Cather, Theodore Dreiser, F. Scott Fitzgerald specifically and showing their influence in the novel. She was followed by Mary Hastings Bradley, also of Chicago, who spoke on "The Woman Explorer," but who might just as well have discussed women as creators of novels and mystery tales, in both of which fields she has won signal success.

Patricia Dimitriu said that modern Roumanian literature began about the time of the American revolution and has been a continuous flow through history since that time, with a popular acceptance of the importance of writing spurred by the literary work of two queens, Carmen Sylva and Queen Marie.

Mme. Anna Lenah Elgstroom is one of the famous women of Sweden, and she has been sent on a government fellowship to study America and to write a book about us for her native country. She was lyric in her declaration that the supreme recognition and propagation of the three outstanding objects of life—beauty, peace and good will—are definitely the province of women, and that the women of her country who wrote books were also taking an active part in the creation of decent and beautiful life and peace.

Dr. Marianne Beth, a famous jurist, said that in Austria the theme of life [and of literature] started with the innate love of family life, and was followed by an appreciation of beauty amounting almost to worship.

The charming Baroness Shidzue Ishimoto denied flatly that the women of her country, Japan, were in any way hampered in their creative work. She proves in herself the fallacy of that idea. And incidentally her autobiography is promised by an American publisher, Farrar & Rinehart, probably for the fall.

Women writers of Chile and South America were discussed by Signora Eleano Oliveiro de Castro and Frances R. Grant. Our own Harriet Monroe had charge of the poets' luncheon and the conference which followed it, at which Anna Hampstead Branch arranged the discussion of "The Ultimate of All True Poetry—Is It Not the Passion of the Infinite?" and Margaret Widdemer, representing American women poets, gave a heartening message.

Mrs. Grace Thompson Seton, chairman of letters of the National Council of Women of the United States, presided at the meetings of the conclave.

An author who spoke at the conference, though not at the writers' conclave, was Selma Ekrem, author of a memorable autobiography, "Unveiled." She is a young [and very pretty] Turkish girl, who very earnestly panicked the conference with her demands for help in the crisis brought about by Turkey's adoption of the western standards of monogamy. Since monogamy had come into effect, she said, Turkey was confronted with problems with which the country was never faced under polygamy—illegitimate children [for in the old days no child was illegitimate], prostitution, old maids on the loose, young girls seeking experience. And she wanted to know what to do about it.

Mary Beard was another literary figure of the conference, one of the outstanding economic writers of her generation. And Frances Parkinson Keyes was another—she is the author of many novels, mostly about the community in New England where she spends much of her time, but, because she is the wife of the senator from New Hampshire and has written much about political life in Washington [although only one of her novels has been entirely in that scene], she is always looked upon as a political novelist.

A. E. Housman, Famed English Poet, Writes Appreciation of Verse

The famous English poet, A. E. Housman, one of the most retiring and quiet of authors, the author of the well loved "Shropshire Lad," has finally broken his long silence with a new book, "The Name and Nature of Poetry" [Macmillan].

He has refused until now to publish any of his writings except those scholarly editions of classical works, and has also refused all offers of anthologists to include his poems in their books. The present book is a poet's appreciation of poetry, written so simply and beautifully that any layman can understand it.

This book is a challenge to the new cerebration that has of late overrun creative as well as critical fields. A. E. Housman frankly contends that the basis of great poetry is in the last analysis an appeal to the emotions. This book should arouse attention and acclaim.

London Stage Success Now in Book Form

"Richard of Bordeaux" Work of Gordon Daviot.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

ONE of the most remarkable of London theatrical successes has been that of "Richard of Bordeaux," by Gordon Daviot. To the surprise of all who have fixed ideas, this historical play has drawn the town.

No historical play of recent years has had such a success with the sole exception of "Saint Joan." Now "Richard of Bordeaux" has been printed as a book. But it seems to have been forgotten that Gordon Daviot is a novelist as well as a playwright. Her two novels, "Kif" and "The Expensive Halo," received much attention here, particularly "Kif"; and if it were not for the fact that the author has always preferred her own plays to her novels she might well have made a considerable reputation as a novelist.

GORDON DAVIOT.

In private life Gordon Daviot is Miss Elizabeth Mackintosh. She is a Scotswoman, who began writing before she could spell [she can now spell], and she has had a varied career. At first she thought she would be an artist. Then she instructed girls in gymnastics [after doing war work]. Finally she began to write again, at first short stories, then plays, then novels.

I think "The Expensive Halo" may have been written first as a play. But "Richard of Bordeaux" is her first play to have any sort of run in London, and its originality is such that Gordon Daviot will probably be lost to the novel for all time. This does not mean that her two novels should be neglected. On the contrary, they should be read by all who wish to know how the born dramatist can adapt herself to the form more generally popular with booklovers.

Another writer who has shown much versatility is Geoffrey Faber. Maj. Faber began, as so many young authors do, by publishing books of verse. Those were the days when, just before the war, everybody was writing poetry. The war came, and this young poet was for a time lost to books. But after the war he entered the publishing trade, becoming chairman of the firm which was first Faber & Gwyer and then Faber & Faber [it is the firm whose board includes Frank Morley and T. S. Eliot]. He has strong views on publishing.

And now once again he has turned author. It happened that some time ago Maj. Faber was examining some family papers relating to his grandfather, who was a clergyman and fellow of Magdalen college, Oxford, in the first half of the nineteenth century. The character of these papers was such that the great Oxford movement of that time [the movement the centenary of which is now being celebrated in England] seemed to be illumined.

Maj. Faber made up his mind to write a study of the Oxford movement. It is to be published by his own firm under the title "Oxford Apostles," and although Cardinal Newman is necessarily the central figure in the book lesser men figure no less interestingly in its pages.

Stewart Edward White Writes More of Burnett

Stewart Edward White has written another chapter in the social history of California in "Ranchero" [Doubleday-Doran] a tale of the Spanish California of the 1840's. It is a complete story in itself, but it continues the adventures of Andy Burnett, the mountain man who helped blaze the trail westward in "The Long Rifle."

MATTERN TELLS OF PERILS ON HOP FROM SIBERIA

Soviet Plane Out of Gas as Land Is Sighted.

NOME, Alaska, July 21.—(AP)—Jimmie Mattern, luckless around the world flyer, planned today to remain here with his Russian rescuers for a short time, then go to Fairbanks, Alaska, to determine whether he shall complete his flight.

The Texan arrived here yesterday from Anadyr, Siberia, in a big soviet seaplane operated by five Russians. Mattern, who hopped off from New York on June 3 and crashed near Anadyr, said his own ship was a total loss.

At Fairbanks a conference with William Alexander, head of the New York rescue party, and message exchanges with his backers in New York and Chicago were expected to determine whether he would fly back to Anadyr in a rescue plane and attempt to resume his solo hop.

Tug Pulls Plane to Shore.

Commander Levanovsky and his four comrades of the soviet naval air corps, stationed at Sebastopol on the Black sea, 1,600 miles from Anadyr, had difficulty in reaching Nome, as they had to dump gasoline to start from Anadyr and then ran out of fuel outside of Nome harbor. A tug pulled the seaplane to shore.

The Russians were much interested in the territory that belonged to their country in the days of the czars, especially in the gold dredging operations here.

Commander Levanovsky of the rescue plane said the long flight across Siberia to Anadyr was the "most difficult" of his career.

From Nome the Russians plan to fly to Big Diomede island in Bering strait, thence to the Russian colony on Wrangell island, far to the north in the Arctic ocean.

Mattern Gets Fright.

"With about three minutes of gas left, land showed up and I was glad to see it," Mattern related. "During the last twenty minutes of the flight until we ran out of gas about five or ten miles from Nome, I paced up and down the fuselage of the plane thinking and was almost certain that here I was again about to set down for about two weeks out in the Bering sea and no one knew the difference, or where we were.

"My plane, when I crashed, was stranded so far away from the beach that I gave up any hopes of getting it out, so all I brought back to Nome with me was my instrument panel, the propeller and the motor, all of which accompanied me in the Russian plane.

"There is one thing I will say about my stay in Anadyr and that was the Russians certainly took wonderful care of me, and I wish at this time to thank the entire crew of the Russian plane for their tremendous efforts in coming up into the arctic from Khabarovsk to bring me over to Nome.

"During the flight they acted confident and showed the utmost courage in the face of the gas shortage and the possibility that we might have to set down in the sea and await rescue."

TO HOP FROM ALASKA.

Jimmie Mattern yesterday telegraphed his Chicago backers that he does not plan to fly from Nome back to Anadyr, in order to complete his solo flight around the world, but will continue back to the United States from Nome. The message was received by H. B. Jameson, who awaited further word last night from Mattern as to what plane he will fly from Nome to the United States and when he plans to start his trip.

NO MORE WORLD FLIGHTS! POST'S WIFE DECLARES

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Wiley Post anxiously studied a map of the North American continent today and expressed a grim determination to restrict her daring husband's future flying ventures to the United States, even if he fails to break the round the world record.

"I think," she said with a smile, "that I would have to kill him if he tried it again."

She was reminded that when Post returned from his world flight with Harold Gatty in 1931 she announced she would not permit him to engage in any more hazardous flights.

"He had such perfect equipment for this flight," she explained, "and seemed so sure of success that I agreed."

Worn by long hours of waiting, Mrs. Post has hardly left the telephone since her husband took off from here last Saturday. She was asleep yesterday when word came that Post had crashed, and the news was kept from her until it was certain he was safe.

Girl, 5, Dies of Burns; Brother, 13, Recovering

Mary Manrot, 5 years old, 2631 West 25th street, died Thursday in St. Anthony's hospital of burns suffered July 19 while playing near a rubbish fire in the alley at the rear of her home. Her 13 year old brother, Joseph, was recovering at the hospital yesterday from the burns received when he tried to rescue her. He was not told that his sister had died.

NEW YORK CITY SUFFERS FROM HUMIDITY, HEAT

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Humidity ushered into the metropolitan area today a day of extreme discomfort during which the mercury rose to 82 degrees.

The humidity and the heat were carried here from the Chesapeake bay region on southerly winds that circulated them over northern New Jersey, according to the bureau's observations.

The temperature rose steadily from 69 degrees at 5 a. m. to 82 at 2 p. m., falling to 76 degrees by 6 p. m. The normal average of temperatures of the date was 74 degrees, but the record was set in 1930, when the mercury reached 99 degrees.

FREE DYNAMITER IN SURGERY CASE; GIRL STAYS AWAY

Dynamite Pete Cunniff, 53 years old, who once confessed to the police that he had been involved in 200 bombings, was arraigned in the Felony court of Judge Howard Hayes yesterday on a charge of performing an illegal operation for a 13 year old girl. The complainant, Miss Beverly Stanwyck of St. David, Ill., failed to appear and the case was dismissed for want of prosecution.

The dynamiter, alias Dr. Peter Cunniff, was arrested in March, after the girl had collapsed on the street and was taken to the county hospital. She identified him as an amateur surgeon when he was taken to her bedside. Cunniff declared he had never seen her before.

On Oct. 6, 1932, Cunniff told the police of his exploits as a bomber. He was frank, he said, because he knew the statute of limitations on prosecutions had run out, adding that he had not planted a bomb since 1914.

ILLINOIS DAY AT WORLD FAIR SET FOR AUG. 11

Illinois day at the Fair will be Aug. 11. Invitations have been sent by the entertainment committee, headed by Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, to mayors and village presidents of the cities and towns throughout the state, requesting them and their city councils to take part in the program. Dozens of bands and choral groups will participate in the day's ceremonies. Units of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, will participate in a formal parade and review. The driveway leading from Leif Ericson drive to the Adler planetarium will be decorated by the Illinois Women's Memorial association to honor the women of the state.

St. Ignatius Brother to Observe 50th Anniversary

Brother Patrick J. Delaney of St. Ignatius High school will celebrate his fiftieth anniversary as a lay brother in the Society of Jesus at a high mass at Holy Family church, 1080 Roosevelt road, at 11 o'clock tomorrow. Brother Delaney was born at Liverpool, England, 73 years ago, and came to America when he was 14. His earlier years as a brother were spent among the Osage Indians in Kansas.

BALBO RECEIVES OFFICIAL CIVIC WELCOME BY N. Y.

Mayor O'Brien Gives Him a Medal.

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—On the broad chest of Gen. Italo Balbo, Italy's minister of aeronautics, the gold and platinum medal of valor of New York City was shining tonight as a token of New York's admiration for the flight of the great air armada he commanded—and as a souvenir of an almost hysterical civic reception that has been equaled seldom.

Mayor John P. O'Brien presented the medal at city hall this afternoon after Gen. Balbo and more than a score of his chief officers had been treated to one of the customary parades up Broadway from the Battery. The mayor welcomed the Italians to "the largest Italian city in the world" and called them ministers of good will and peace.

Praises Wiley Post.

"Above all, your praise should go to the new Italy of Mussolini which has been able to urge us on and to send us on such an important mission," Gen. Balbo told him in an impromptu speech.

He paid a tribute to the Wright brothers as inventors of the airplane, and gave "a special greeting to the American aviator who in these days is accomplishing alone the most rapid flight around the world"—Wiley Post.

After the municipal welcome, which lasted just under an hour, the whole party of aviators, accompanied by the mayor and his official committee, sped off by automobile to the Hotel Pennsylvania, where they were guests of Generoso Pope, the Italo-American publisher and chairman of the municipal committee.

Meet Thousands of Compatriots.

Later in the afternoon they were hurried out to the Madison Square Garden bowl at Long Island City to receive the praise of thousands of their compatriots from the five boroughs. The program of speeches and music was broadcast all over this country and by short waves to Italy.

Finally they were rushed back to Manhattan in time to dress for a dinner, sponsored by the Italian community, at the Hotel Commodore and a reception and supper dance at the Waldorf-Astoria, where they were guests of the Italy-America society.

The Broadway welcome with its characteristic showers of ticker tape from overlooking skyscrapers, and other hullabaloo was rivaled later in the day when the Italian colony got its chance to pay tribute to the heroes.

Passing through Center and Lafayette streets, skirting the edge of the Italian section, on the secondary parade from city hall to Long Island City, Gen. Balbo received ovations that could hardly be surpassed in noise and enthusiasm in Italy itself. More ticker tape, colored confetti and torn shreds of paper flooded down on the procession from Lafayette street's small shops and tenements than from the skyscrapers of the financial district.

PLATINUM MEDAL STRUCK IN HONOR OF BALBO FLIGHT

A platinum medal commemorating the flight of Gen. Italo Balbo and his squadron was completed yesterday by Lebolt & Co., jewelers at 31 North State street. On one side of the medal is the face of Gen. Balbo and on the other side is an engraving of the route he followed from Italy to Chicago. John Sbarbaro, former judge of the Municipal court, who was in charge of the arrangements here for the flyers, and Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul, will fly to New York tomorrow to present the medal to Gen. Balbo in the name of the Italian people of Chicago.

Trial of "Fur" Sammons Postponed Till September

The trial of James [Fur] Sammons, ex-convict, killer and public enemy, on two reinstated charges of assault to kill in the $85,000 holdup of the International Harvester company in 1926, was continued to the September term of the Criminal court by Chief Justice John Prystalski yesterday. Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said that three of the state's witnesses would not be in town until August and agreed to the continuance. Sammons is at liberty on $20,000 bonds.

THREE MARINES HURT AS PLANE CRASHES IN CITY

Two officers and an enlisted man of the marine corps were injured yesterday when their plane, a Loening amphibion powered by a Wasp motor, crashed about one mile south of the airport, 63d street and Cicero avenue, when the motor quit as the plane was taking off. The plan had landed at the airport en route from Quantico, W. Va., to San Diego, Cal.

The pilot, Lieut. Theodore B. Millard, 34 years old, of Great Barrington, Mass., suffered a broken left ankle, cuts, bruises and possible internal injuries, according to physicians at Holy Cross hospital, where the three flyers were taken. Capt. C. T. Brooks, 39 years old, of Washington, D. C., suffered a broken right leg and head bruises. Chief Gunner's Mate Michel Wodarezuk of Coronado, Cal., suffered cuts and bruises and injuries to his right arm.

The accident was caused by an obstruction in the gasoline fuel line, which caused the motor to stop at an altitude of 50 feet above the airport, attaches at the airport said. Lieut. Millard maneuvered the plane to land it in a vacant area south of the airport, but the ground was rough and the plane nosed over on landing.

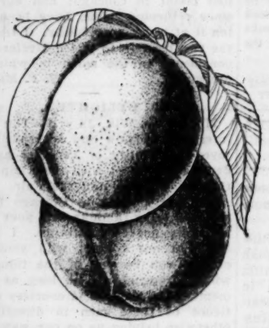

Hart, Film Cowboy, Will Undergo an Operation

Hollywood, Cal., July 21.—[Special]—Bill Hart, two-gun man of the films, today was removed from his ranch at Newhall, Cal., to a hospital here. Hart is to undergo a major abdominal operation.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

ILLUSTRATING THE VALUE OF A STRONG AMERICAN PRESS.

The release of the five Americans from a Mallorca jail is the result of the dispatches of THE TRIBUNE correspondent, Jay Allen, and the THE TRIBUNE editorials demanding appropriate action by our government.

These American citizens, including an American woman upon the brink of collapse because of her imprisonment, have been confined for seven weeks, denied bail and the right to a prompt hearing of the accusations against them. No formal charges had been filed against them and no prospect of a prompt trial was in sight. The American consul had reported to the embassy at Madrid and the latter had presumably gone through the diplomatic motions of official inquiry and representation. But, whatever these representations were, they had failed dismally to impress the Spanish authorities and the consequence was that the five Americans were being subjected without trial and conviction to a punishment already disproportionate, at least according to American ideas, and through the inaction of the Spanish authorities accumulating day by day. Whatever the guilt of the prisoners, they were not outlaws. The offenses they were accused of were at worst misdemeanors, not crimes, and both justice and the respect due the government and people of one civilized nation to another imperatively demanded prompt action by responsible authority in Spain.

With the American state department indifferent, half-hearted or inept, and the American public uninformed, another serious disparagement of American international rights was in prospect until the appearance of Mr. Allen's vigorous dispatches exposing the facts and THE TRIBUNE editorials published in America and, through the Paris edition of THE TRIBUNE, in Europe. As a result the American prisoners have been released and presumably are to have at least the benefit of such lawful and orderly procedure as Spanish law is supposed to maintain. And if our diplomacy emerges from the incident with somewhat less credit for an alert and self-respecting guardianship of American rights than it ought to cherish, it has at least now managed to obtain some tardy and grudging recognition of its just protest from the Spanish government.

The incident, it would seem, emphasizes the value, especially in American international affairs, of such a spur upon official routine as an alert, independent, and outspoken press alone can provide.

WILEY POST.

It is a splendid race against the elements and his own world record that the American pilot, Wiley Post, is contributing to the records of aviation. And it is characteristic of the man. When as a young oil driller in Oklahoma Post lost an eye and suffered impairment of hearing in an accident, he was awarded $2,000 compensation. He took the money and bought a second hand plane from a barnstormer, with one hour and forty minutes of instruction thrown in. Upon the completion of that brief preparation Post flew the plane alone. Since then, 1924, Post has flown persistently. Also he has made 94 parachute drops. In 1930 he won the Chicago-Los Angeles air Derby in 9 hours 9 minutes and 4 seconds. In 1931 he and Harold Gatty set the round-the-world record of 8 days 15 hours and 51½ minutes, covering in that time 15,474 miles. That record, but flying alone and not in a new plane, he is now trying to better, and the world of aviation hopes he will win, for Post went into aviation the hard way and has won the respect of all flyers for his superb piloting ability.

THE PARALYZING HAND OF GOVERNMENT.

Coördinator Eastman's picture of the American transportation system of the future as outlined to the railways, in which the airplane, the railway, the truck, the barge and the boat will each function in its own economic sphere, is marred by the statement that "there would be reasonable stability in rates and charges under effective government regulation, affording a firm foundation for the transaction of commerce and industry."

We had hoped that our railway coördinator had left his ideas of slide rule rates behind him with the interstate commerce commission, but he apparently still clings to these theories. Perhaps necessary studies that he must make during the coming year will result in a more practical attitude.

The negligible number of common carrier truck enterprises might live under bureaucratic regulation, but private and contract trucking is being developed along entirely different lines. The available traffic is closely studied and the power unit, chassis, and body are constructed to meet the requirements of specific commodities. All one needs to realize this tendency is to watch the truck procession as it passes—pie wagons, automobile truckaways, furniture vans, tank trucks, and coal trucks. All are designed to minimize power, space, and packing wastages. A theoretical rate that would amply pay for the operation of one type would be poison for another. Regulation must of necessity produce a stereotyped truck that would be designed to accommodate a wide variety of commodities, but which would be highly efficient for the transportation of none of them.

It is rather interesting to speculate on what the railways might have done along these same lines if regulation had not deprived them of initiative, or what they might still develop under the spur of truck competition if that regulation were removed.

The real thorn in the side of the railways is the itinerant truckman who clutters up the highways in his country-wide search for loads. This type is certainly unreliable and possibly undesirable, but the situation can be controlled without throttling the whole industry.

Laws that permit a truck driver to form a transportation company by the mere acquisition of a truck and the purchase of a license are too lenient. But the proposed strait jacket for truck transportation is much worse.

NO RESPITE FOR TAX STRIKERS.

The determination of Judge Jarecki to sit through the summer vacation period for the purpose of speeding tax collections deserves commendation. It has long been evident that there would be no improvement in the revenue of the local governments until property owners generally were impressed with the fact that taxes must be paid. The campaign thus far under the powers obtained in the Skarda act has led to substantial payments of back taxes for 1928, 1929, and 1930, but close to 150 million dollars is still delinquent for those three years, in addition to 108 million dollars as yet unpaid on the 1931 bills. To have dropped the campaign now, when it is showing favorable results, would have been a grave tactical error, because it would have encouraged the delinquents once more to think that somehow they could evade their obligations. Judge Jarecki, in sacrificing his own comfort for the common good, has earned the thanks of the community and particularly of those teachers, firemen, policemen, and other public servants who have not been paid because the failure to collect taxes had wrecked the credit of the local governments.

FAMILIAR PROCEDURE AT OSKALOOSA.

The preliminary hearing of Chief of Police Howard Allgood, set for July 20 at Oskaloosa, Ia., has been indefinitely postponed. Allgood is accused of second degree murder by the mother of Gerald Blackwood, a young man killed at night on an island in the Des Moines river. The chief and a party were searching for a still. Blackwood had been fishing and encountered the searchers as he was returning home. The excuse for shooting him was found in that law of the jungle: "He reached for his gun." The victim was unarmed. It was typical prohibition manslaughter, so long condoned.

Efforts to bring the accused officer to trial proceed in the fashion familiar to observers of these events. It has been the assumption that in such a killing, regardless of the facts, the act was justified and the victim's family might attribute it to a virtuous cause and be content. The delay in this case is caused by the disappearance of a material witness, an uncle of the slain youth. This also carries intimations of familiar procedure. It was a tragedy to encounter the enforcement officers. It is tough luck to be an embarrassing witness.

THE ROOSEVELT REPUBLICANS.

The La Follette Republicans, if so and when, will have it known that they are to be described and labeled as Roosevelt Republicans. Many of the persons to whom this inspiration would be most properly sardonic have passed off the scene, including Theodore Roosevelt and the elder Senator La Follette. For the present La Follettes the Roosevelt Republicans are the Franklin D. Roosevelt Republicans. In the older days they were the Theodore Roosevelt Republicans until T. R. needed them, and then they helped to give him the bitterest disappointment of his life.

The Roosevelt Republicans are not Republicans and are not for Roosevelt. Their only use for a name is to promote wholly selfish purposes under false pretenses. The most dangerous Republicans for Mr. Roosevelt will be the Roosevelt Republicans.

PRICES AND THE RECOVERY PROGRAM.

[New York Herald Tribune.]

If it were not for the feverish economic atmosphere induced by the uncertainties of the new deal the current setback suffered in Wall street and the commodity markets might be hailed as a natural and welcome correction of a highly speculative position. This it may still be, but unfortunately so much of the present fluctuation of prices depends purely on governmental policy or on the guesses concerning it that one cannot be at all sure.

However, it is not our purpose here to attempt an analysis of the recession or to indulge in any forecasts concerning it, but merely to point out its possible bearing on the recovery program. There has been much talk of late in Washington of coercing industry into speeding up its coöperation with the recovery administration. It is now proposed that in advance of the approval of individual codes all industry be called upon to adopt a blanket code providing for shorter hours and higher wages. No fiat to this end will be issued, but there is planned a nation-wide campaign of Liberty loan proportions which, it is hoped, will have the same coercive force.

The occasion for this very doubtful excursion into state socialism by the ballyhoo route is, of course, the rapid rise of prices, which has outstripped the government's original program for putting men to work. This movement, in turn, is in large part due to the depreciation of the dollar, openly fostered by the administration. We have asked the question before, but it will bear repeating: Isn't the obvious remedy, then, a curb on depreciation and the inflation for which it is responsible rather than an effort to dragoon industry into catching up with it?

Perhaps the sudden check to the price movement of yesterday and the day before and yesterday's appreciation of the dollar abroad are in response to such a curb. In any case the government would be well advised to find out first what these phenomena portend in the way of a slower, more healthy pace for recovery before launching the drive now threatened.

WHAT AN ERROR!

"Have you your uncle's death certificate?"

"No, I think the poor man forgot to get one."—Cazzettino Illustrato, Venice.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

GEN. HUGH JOHNSON in Washington refers to the depression as "that hellish thing the country has been through these last three years." Tut, tut, general, you are in for it! You will receive a dozen letters right away like this: "Sir: I was inexpressibly shocked by your language. But I speak not for myself but my little eight-year-old daughter, who read your awful words. Immediately afterwards I asked her to eat her spinach, and she said, 'Oh, nix on that hellish thing!' Oh, sir, if you could only have some compassion on a parent who is trying to bring up his child pure and undefiled you would not use such sacrilegious language. I beg you, sir, think of the eight-year-olds. Everything should be considered from that standpoint. For if our little daughters learn to use such language when they are eight, what, oh, what will the little devils say when they are eighty? Sorrowfully, Fond Father (or Mournful Mother)."

SONNET SEQUENCE.

I.

And stand alone among the yellow leaves,
Will you remember all the green spring ways
We walk together now? The young heart grieves
To bear the ache of spring. The aging heart
Must nurse its quietude to bear the need
Of peace. When in your life the autumn part
Has come, hold still within yourself the meed
Of peace I gave to you when there was spring.
I gave you then within my open hand
The ache of spring, the peace the fall will bring,
That you, on hoar-white autumn days, may stand
In yellow leaves, content, as though you knew
That all your peace has been my love for you.

II.

There is one star in this vast winter sky,
The ancients say, which holds your destiny;
And since their birth the whim of Gemini,
Past power to change, has bound your love to me.
Their mischief, hatched before the dawn of time,
The Twins have long forgot in solar sleep
Peopled by dreams in ancient pantomime;
And in their sleeping hands forever keep
Your fate, unchanged, until in unborn years
They turn, and troubled in their sleep, awake.
And in that time, not heeding all the tears
Of two forgotten ghosts, they yet may take Me from you. But till then your destiny
And all your fate will be in loving me.

III.

There is an end to life. To you and me,
Who gather up the years like sheaves of wheat,
An end will come—a parting in the sea
Of yellow grain. And we, who knew the heat
Of harvest sun succeeding harvest sun
Together, will be separate ghosts, alone
Amid the host of men whose lives are done.
But I will go where living hands have sown
The seeds of living grain, where some few men
Still gather years like sheaves of wheat. And light
Beneath their harvest suns will I again
Walk through the yellow grain towards the night
And leave behind me all I ever knew
And go into the unknown night to you.

"OVER A THOUSAND Clamor for Admission at Closed Gates of Fair After 11:30 P. M."—Headline. It's wonderful, the eagerness of so many people to see the great scientific exhibits out there. Probably most of them wanted to see the health charts in the government building. Or maybe, again, they yearned so much to see automobiles put together they just couldn't wait for daylight. Or probably they hoped they would get into a lecture on the pterodactyl and his cunning ways. People that batter on closed gates at midnight trying to get in must have a terrible thirst for information and culture. And indeed, yes!

"ROOSEVELT SEES END of Prohibition Law by Next Christmas."—La Trib. Oh, what a happy Christmas it will be indeed! Dear old Santa Claus will be there as usual, and right behind will be two whose faces are familiar but whom we haven't seen for years and years. Now, who in the world are they? Try to remember. Let's see, now, they are, they are—why, of course! Tom and Jerry! Old Tom and Jerry themselves! Welcome, old friends, thrice welcome! Tom and Jerry! Well, well, this will be indeed a happy Christmas!

ALL RIGHT! ALL RIGHT! If they close the New York Stock exchange we'll go back to the good old game of draw poker for our gambling. Nobody has played poker much the last few years, being too busy playing the stock market. Poker is really a more satisfactory way of losing money than buying Aluminum Bath Sponge, Inc., for you aren't left for days and nights worrying while the market goes down. In poker you just say, "My pot; three lovely typewriters." And the man across the table says: "Oh, get a hand! Here's what I've got—four little treys. Read 'em and weep." And that's that!

LEST WE GROW PROSAIC.

It's quite enough to look
Into your eyes—
A glance can capture swiftly
Earth and skies!

The glory of a dawn
Made blue by rain
Can stab with beauty keener
Far than pain!

It's quite befitting that
Before this Sacred Calf
Becomes a cow!

FIGHTING HEART DISEASE.

IN the near future an effort will be made to lessen the prevalence of heart disease. As it is now classified it is much the most important cause of death, no other disorder being in the same class with it. It is true that a large proportion of deaths charged against it is among those who have lived beyond the classical three-score and ten, and that a great many were more than fourscore, and the cause of death in persons of that age is apt to be guessed at rather than determined. Furthermore, since death ranks with living as essential phases of existence, fatal heart disease in the aged may be regarded as one of the provisions of nature.

But the urfortunate part of the story is that heart disease will not stay where it belongs. It has a way of straying over into other groups of people. It occasionally causes fatalities among babies. Children pay a certain toll to it. In the study on which this article is based the average age of a large number of cases of heart disease was 48 years. Persons less than 50 years of age are not happy to know that one of their important menaces is heart disease. Nor is there any disposition to accept it with resignation among those of 50 to 70 years.

In order to make headway in controlling it several things must be done. The physicians have an important part of the job. The first step that they and the vital statisticians should take is to divide up the class heart disease into its parts. Instead of speaking of lung disease we refer to consumption, several kinds of pneumonia, bronchitis, and some others. Doing that helps us to follow one disease, for instance consumption, and to work out ways to prevent it. Physicians need very much to make closer diagnosis of heart ailments and to use more particular names rather than such loose ones as heart disease, heart murmur, and others of the kind.

In a study of heart disease in a large marine hospital Dr. O. F. Hedley found that the largest number had heart disease of what is termed the degenerative type. The average age of the cases in this group was 60 years. The second largest group had heart disease of the rheumatic type. Their average age was 35 years. The smallest group had syphilitic heart disease. They averaged 45 years of age.

The responsibility for syphilitic heart disease is divided between patients, physicians, and health officers. Syphilis should be less prevalent. Those who become infected with it should have better treatment, more of it, and over a longer time. As a rule responsibility for discontinuing treatment too early and paying the penalty of syphilitic heart disease belongs with the infected man. He gets what's coming to him.

Rheumatic heart disease results from rheumatism and sore throat. Certainly in time that kind of heart disease can be prevented. The physicians must find out what can be done and the people who are subject to rheumatism and sore throat must do it. The average age of those with this kind of heart disease was only 35 years. People of that age expect many years of life and health and they should be willing to do what is necessary to get good health in middle life and early old age.

There is room for improvement in the degeneration group. Some of this group are senile and for them not much can be done. But many have high blood pressure or kidney disease and for those much can and should be done.

MITRAL INSUFFICIENCY.

Mrs. J. E. A. writes: My son was examined by a doctor and the diagnosis of his case is mitral insufficiency and partial disability. Will you explain this diagnosis? Is there any danger in future years? He is at present in perfect health.

REPLY.

Mitral insufficiency means that the valves between the two cavities of the left side of the heart are not large enough to close the opening and, in consequence, some leaking results. This causes a mitral murmur. Partial disability means that his mitral insufficiency disables him somewhat. His heart trouble is due to rheumatism, St. Vitus dance, sore throat, or some other infection which he probably had in childhood. I judge his heart muscle is in good condition and is able to do easily the extra work thrown on it by the leak. In the course of time such cases can be expected to have a break in compensation, whereupon symptoms of organic heart trouble can be expected.

LAMP OUTAGES.

Chicago, July 17.—[Friend of the People.]—Can you find out why lights on Burling street, between Fullerton and Wrightwood avenues, are not turned on night after night? We have been without lights for several nights a week. It is unpleasant to walk home late at night with no lights. J. C. S.

The outages have been caused by cable trouble, which has been located and corrected. No further inconvenience should be experienced. W. A. JACKSON, Commissioner of Gas and Electricity.

DIVIDING ESTATE.

Chicago, July 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An estate was probated and a cottage which was sold has now been defaulted and buyer has moved out. The payments were divided equally from time to time as agreed among the heirs. The administrator, who is one of the heirs, has now moved into this home and [1] transferred title to himself without consent of the heirs. He has resided in the home for a year and [2] refuses to make any payments to the other heirs. 3. Can administrator take over this property in this way and get a clear title to same?. 4. Can justice in any way be done through the Probate court that probated the estate?. W. F. S.

1. The administrator does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate. Clearly he would have no power to transfer title to himself. You must be mistaken as to the facts.

2. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, is chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

3. See 1.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 22, 1917.

CHICAGO.—Any one of the 314,214 registrants for the conscription army in Chicago, or any registrant in the United States, can enlist in the army and navy service and escape the conscription army, provided he acts before the Washington drawings are posted and notices are sent out. This was the effect of an order issued by the war department in Washington. The time limit for the voluntary enlistments is the date on which the local exemption boards will send out notices for the first contingent to appear for examination.

WASHINGTON.—Scarcely had the newspapers of the country conveyed the details of the new national army draft to waiting millions than the cables from Europe recorded Germany's response to this climax in America's first experiment with selective conscription. Germany's counter move against the draft, it is declared, is a call of 2,000,000 of her youngest men to the colors. The German younger classes, it was declared, will be called to report to the colors next March, or about the time the new national army of the United States can be expected to be ready to be transferred to France.

WASHINGTON.—The administration food control bill, virtually rewritten after five weeks' bitter contest, was passed by the senate, 81 to 6. Conferees from house and senate will begin work early next week, and leaders are hopeful the measure may be in the President's hands in ten days. The senate prohibition sections prohibiting manufacture of distilled beverages during the war and directing the President to buy all distilled spirits in bond was substituted for the house "bone dry" provision and will be one subject of difficulty in conference.

WAR SUMMARY.—Mutiny of Russian troops permits Germans to push back the line which was threatening Lemberg until now Tarnopol is in danger of the armies of the kaiser. Berlin reports that attacks of the Russians to the south of the Dniester river have been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy. Fighting on the front in France is confined mostly to trench raiding, with small local attacks and with varying success.

PASADENA, Cal.—Pasadena's quota for the selective draft represents a selection of men whose aggregate fortunes exceed $100,000,000. Among those chosen were: Lowell McAdams, Leroy Reidman, Leroy Linnard, Thadeus Updegraff, John Coulston, and Donald Daniels.

LONDON.—Since Feb. 1 Germany claims to have sunk close to 4,750,000 tons of neutral and allied shipping.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—Is a medal from the 1893 Fair of any value at this one? Have the World's Columbian Exposition stock certificates any value now?

ANSWER—No, to both questions.

QUESTION—The gas and electric company of this city has discontinued the sale of admission tickets at a reduced rate in book form. Where can I secure same?

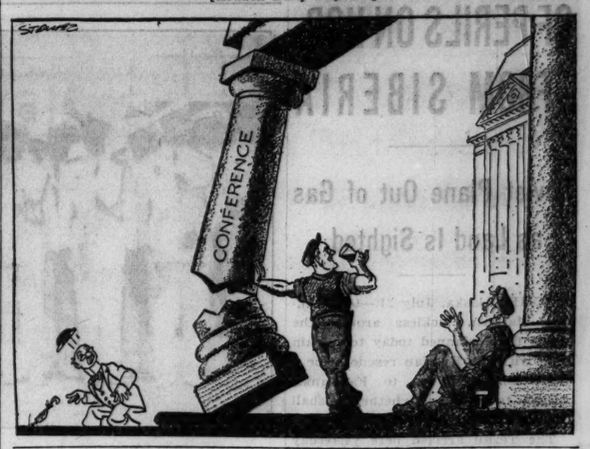

ANSWER—This was the only firm in your city who arranged to sell these tickets. For further information write to Raymond Harrington, Admission Division, A Century of Progress, Burnham Park, Chicago.

COMMENTS OF A VISITOR.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 18.—The last week in June I was in a party of twenty from Harrisburg who visited the Fair, and we were mighty well pleased with it and our week's visit in Chicago. However, not as a complaint in any sense of the word, or in any way fault finding, but with the idea that these words may be used by you in such a way as to further increase the success of the Fair, I wish to say that your statement about hotel rates being reasonable and plenty of hotel space we did not find to be altogether correct. In the first place, one of your most prominent hotels did not make good on its confirmation of reservations for two members of our party, in that they raised the rate $2 and they had to stand in line for an unreasonable length of time before they were given attention. The only purpose in mentioning this at this time is that a word passed along to the hotels concerning such performance might be beneficial to the interest of Chicago.

The only other matter which was commented on adversely, and about the only matter that I heard so commented upon, was the charge of 5 cents all over the grounds to answer the most common call of nature. I realize that there were free places, such as Sears, Roebuck & Co. and General Motors, but in nearly all buildings of every character a minimum charge of 5 cents was made. There was considerable adverse comment in our party concerning this, so much so that each evening, when the party got together, the men jokingly twitted each other on how much it had cost them that day to use the lavatory.

On the other hand, during our entire stay in Chicago there was not one of our party who had seen any disorderly conduct on the streets, in the hotels, or at the Fair, while the courtesy of the various persons everywhere about the Fair was so marked that frequent comment was made about this feature.

It is a great Fair and will do unlimited credit to Chicago; and our party, since returning home, have been boosting it at every opportunity. I trust that the two matters to which I refer will be considered in the spirit in which they are given. W. F. MILLER.

DELIGHTED.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 19.—You may be interested to know how some visitors enjoyed A Century of Progress and incidentals connected with their trip to and through Chicago and the Fair.

Our party came to Chicago by auto and, not being familiar with your streets, naturally needed assistance. I wish to say that our contact with your traffic officers will be one of the things that will be remembered as long as we remember the Fair. The courtesy and patience of these men in directing and otherwise helping us on our way was so marked and wonderful that it added greatly to our enjoyment of the Fair. They made us all feel at home and like coming again.

I wish to say the same things of the bus drivers. In all cases we were treated so fine we felt that they all took a personal interest in us.

We received the same wonderful treatment wherever we went in the Fair grounds and we are looking forward to another visit. H. J. BIESEN.

ERRORS IN A MURAL.

Deadwood, S. D., July 17.—Your issue of the 9th instant reproduces a mural in the Travel and Transportation building, showing an early mode of travel used in the west entitled "The Covered Wagon."

As an old timer on the frontier, permit me to observe that two yoke of cattle to a wagon was unknown, and the wagons are of the vintage of '49. But worst of all is the bull whacker with a rifle and a mule skinner's black jack whip, on horseback. Ye gods of the early days! A bull whacker used a whip with a stock of about three feet and a lash from ten to twenty feet long, and he used it with both hands, and he walked. WM. A. REMER.

THE OPENING GUN AT GETTYSBURG.

Wheaton, Ill., July 18.—In regard to A. D. Welton's statement that the Iron brigade opened the battle of Gettysburg in today's Voice of the People:

The 8th Illinois cavalry of Buford's cavalry brigade opened the first day's fight at Gettysburg. Buford's cavalry had been in contact with Lee's army from the 8th of June when they took part in the fight at Brandy Station.

The 8th Illinois cavalry was on picket duty along a creek west of Gettysburg on the Chambersburg pike. July 1, about 5 a. m., Lieut. M. E. Jones of Wheaton, Ill., saw some confederates approaching along the road. He borrowed a carbine from Corporal Hale, also of Wheaton, Ill., and fired a shot into what proved to be Heth's division. Buford's cavalry fell back to a rise of ground just west of Gettysburg and dismounted and fought Heth's division for two hours. Gen. Reynolds then relieved them with infantry. Gen. Reynolds, mounted, rode right into the thick of the fight and, turning to ride out, was shot.

Any one visiting Gettysburg will see a monument where the first shot was fired, also where Buford's cavalry made its defense until relieved, and also a monument on the spot where Maj. Gen. Reynolds was killed.

Maj. William Medill, brother of Joseph Medill, the editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was with the 8th Illinois cavalry. He was fatally wounded a few days later in attempting to take a rebel wagon train from Imboden's infantry. L. J. RUDDOCK.

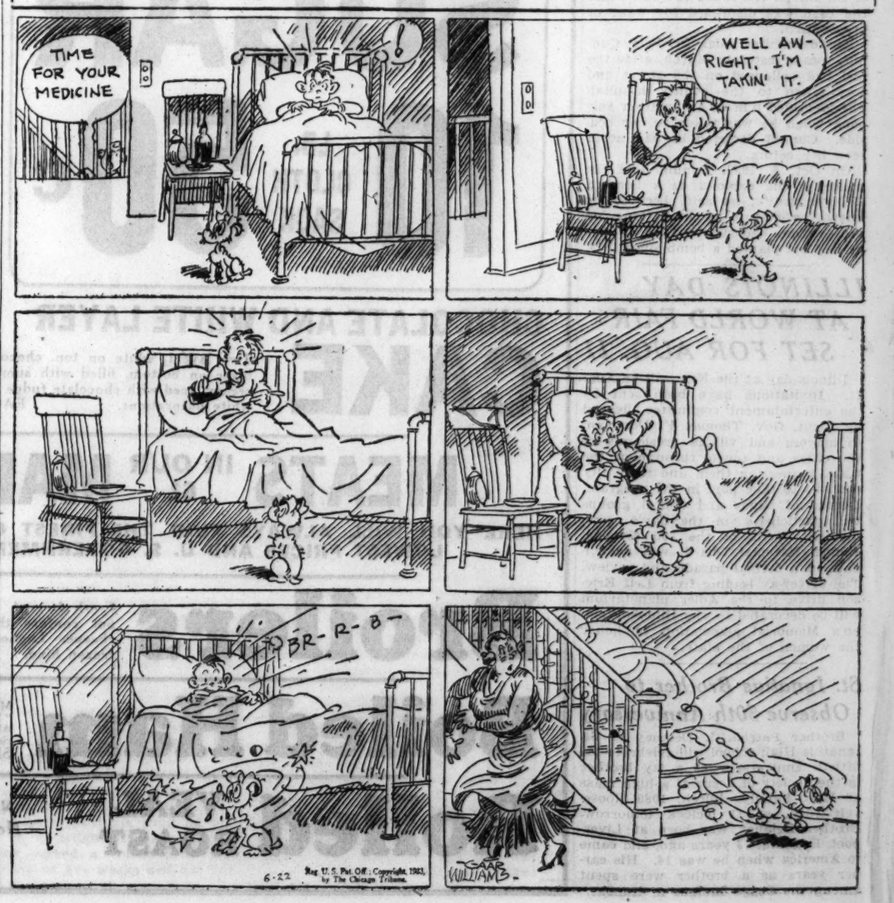

GOLF LESSONS.

Chicago, July 14.—The real desire to improve in the game, shown by the multitude of pupils in THE TRIBUNE golf schools, suggests an opportunity for the public park courses to give the public what it so evidently wants—golf schools in connection with their play. Necessary equipment need not be costly—a few driving nets and perhaps a couple of practice putting greens, with space around them for the teaching of chip shots. Teaching by professionals, as now conducted in the open course while regular play is going on, should be stopped. This practice is unfair to those who have paid their good money for the privilege of playing an uninterrupted round. GOLFING TAXPAYER.

TAXES ON TAXES.

Chicago, July 7.—One of the reasons, I understand, that the past sales tax was not legal was because gasoline was exempt. Then is it not illegal that we pay a 2 per cent tax upon another tax? We pay from 30 per cent to 40 per cent tax of the cost of gas, then on top of it 2 per cent of total sale, which should be only on the original cost of gas, excluding gas tax. When is this preying upon motorists going to end? E. J. G.

Tells Women Club System Is Outdated

World Congress Urged to Find New Plan.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Washington, D. C., yesterday called upon the International Congress of Women at the Palmer House to lead a revolution against the present type of women's organizations. She made her plea at the final session of the congress. She questioned the usefulness of the entire structure of women's organizations throughout the world and declared that women haven't really known cohesive action since the lusty days of the suffrage battles. She asked the women to evolve a new technique fitting a new era.

"A rebel group of women," she called the hundreds facing her. "Representing not organizations but individuals—women who are here because they are the women who care most what happens to civilization and to their sex. For thirty years I have worked in women's clubs and for many a year I have studied political technique. I know that to achieve the things we want we will have to evolve a way of working fitted to the changing conditions of life.

"That is what we are searching here today—a new technique. President Roosevelt is groping, as we are groping, to find a method to fit the problems that confront him. So it is not to our discredit that we don't know quite what to do, and we may make mistakes, even as he may make them.

"This today is a revolution against women's organizations as they have been. On this platform women have said things more rashly than they would have dared to say them before any other organization of women. Why? Because there they have to be careful not to arouse a difference of opinion in the membership.

"Organizations that are founded on a common goal are held together and work together in action, such as the Business and Professional Women, to which I am proud to belong. Now the League of Women Voters is organized around a technique and cannot take up anything for discussion on which its members do not agree. We have lost something in our women's groups. We need something we have not had since suffrage."

She concluded with a recommendation that a program be drawn up based on the manifesto adopted by the congress, to be submitted to member organizations of the federation, the National Council of Women, for study and work.

"I should like to see another congress similar to this, meet a year from now," Mrs. Blair concluded, "to measure just how far the effects of this gathering have extended and how far we have progressed. It may be that this convention method is the technique we need for the future."

Miss Lena Madesin Phillips of New York, president of the National Council of Women, appointed a committee headed by Mrs. Estelle Sternberger of New York, vice president of the organization, to draw up specific items in a program that will be taken up today in special session. Members of the committee include Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, and Mrs. Harold V. Milligan of New York and Miss Amy Woods of Boston.

The manifesto prepared by a committee headed by Mrs. Mary R. Beard, embodying the sentiments expressed at the congress, was adopted as submitted. Copies will be sent to 31 governments.

Reflecting in its paragraphs the newer, wider perspective of social thought demonstrated in the round tables and the general sessions of the congress, the manifesto proclaims the widening horizon of women's interest, from the purely personal to the inclusively social. They propose, through it, to serve not only women, but all mankind.

"We believe," it states, "that every person, to whatever sex, race, nationality, or creed he or she may belong, is entitled to security of life, work the reward of labor, health, and education; to protection against war and crime, and to opportunity for self-expression. Yet even in parts of the world where feminism has made its largest gains these fundamentals of security and the good life are sadly lacking. Hence it is against social systems, not men, that we launch our second woman movement."

Based on this section of the manifesto, a recommendation was submitted by Mrs. Ignace J. Reis of Chicago, representing the National Council of Jewish Women, that the council coöperate in every way "with all sincere efforts to ameliorate the condition of Jews and other groups in Germany." After much discussion it was adopted as read, by a vote of 127 to 2.

At 4 o'clock the congress adjourned to witness the pageant "Ethiopia Lifts as She Climbs," which constituted the contribution of Negro women to the program. The committee went into session, however, immediately, to prepare for presentation to this morning's session a concrete platform on which a new program of woman's work may be built.

Hitler Accompanies Frau Wagner's Son to Bayreuth Festival

BAYREUTH, Germany, July 21.—(AP)—Hints that the friendship of Chancellor Hitler and Winifred Wagner, widowed daughter-in-law of the late Richard Wagner, had been chilled because the latter reëngaged foreign Jewish artists for the Bayreuth festival, appeared discredited when the chancellor was present for the grand opening of the famed festspiele today.

One of the Jewish stars retained by Frau Wagner, who is the widow of Siegfried Wagner, son of Richard, shared in the enthusiastic applause for the production.

Miss Barrymore Is Nervous for 4-a-Day Debut

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—The queen of Broadway's royal family, Miss Ethel Barrymore, today made her debut as a four a day variety performer in J. M. Barrie's "Twelve-Pound Look," that whimsical one act play about the English woman who comes down in the world and enjoys it because she finds every day people "so much more human."

Advertised as "Her first apearance in a motion picture theater," Miss Barrymore bowed to a partly filled house at the Capitol theater at 2 p. m., today in a bill which included two comic teams, a band and a group of thirty dancing girls. She was on again at 3:55, 6:32 and 8:45.

Backstage the appearance of Miss Barrymore created little stir. To the stage hands and mechanics it was just another act.

To the little dancer with "Phil Spitalny and his famous band" it meant merely that she was crowded out of the star's dressing room to make way for Miss Barrymore and her actress cousin, Georgie Drew Mendum.

Oscar, the doorman, was quite positive, however.

"There she is!" he exclaimed, pointing to Miss Mendum. When his error was pointed out he remarked. "Well, she's the one with all the confidence!"

Miss Barrymore's business like reserve and tempermental restraint was noted by many who knew her. Arriving at the stage door nearly an hour before she went on for the first time, she went quietly to her dressing room and remained there until time for her act.

While she was on the stage, her audience experienced difficulty in following her lines. Due either to the amplifying apparatus, or Miss Barrymore's long training in smaller and more intimate theaters, whole phrases seemed to drift away into space.

Before going on, theater attachés said, Miss Barrymore was frankly nervous. She will do the Barrie play twenty-eight times, twice each afternoon and evening for a week. Then perhaps she will take the company to Washington, D. C., for another vaudeville stand.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

I liked this picture best for the courage of its ending. Not one of those synthetic "happily ever after" finishes, but—life just going on, you know, and decent people, with a minimum of ado, heading stanchly into a future that shows no signs of being anything to get much excited over.

So—the city girl who comes back to her grandpop's farm, and the stalwart neighboring Cornell-educated farmer, sportingly put their passion for each other in the background and never for a minute consider breaking the heart of the latter's loyal wife. And the sky is still blue, the birds still sing, as a man and a woman say good-by and strike trails in opposite directions.

This is a story of rural American life that practically resolves itself into a series of character studies. You find yourselves in the farmhouse of Grandpa Storr, a crusty, crafty civil war veteran whose roof shelters various impecunious relatives who have come there to roost, and who, watching Grandpa's health with much concern, hope for the worst. For old Storr has rich farm lands and they calculate to profit by his death.

Comes his granddaughter — only child of Grandpa's deceased and well loved eldest son. In Louise, blithe, blonde and gay, Grandpa recognizes Storr backbone, endurance, honor. She lands plump in the lap of his affections the minute he sets eyes on her. The other relatives look at her with jealousy—and askance. For Louise is —DIVORCED! Tch! Tch! Tch! [By the way, notice how much they've been using that "tch, tch" business in pictures lately—since "Heroes for Sale"?] It's not long before a nice little scandal is in the making . . .

Grandpa, wise in in the ways of humans and ever shrewdly on the watch, comes to a decision. He pulls a fast one and . . . we'll let the picture show the rest.

You'll get a real kick out of Barrymore as Grandpa Storr. With his flowing beard and piercing eye he resembles Rasputin, and, like Rasputin, he's boss—and no mistaking—but there the resemblance ends. Great characterization. Miriam Hopkins is adorable as Louise. I love her sunniness, don't you? Franchot Tone gives a fine, upstanding and sympathetic portrayal of the young farmer. Irene Harvey is lovable as his cheery, square-shooting girl wife. Stuart Erwin does nicely as the corn whisky loving chap who assists Grandpa manage the farm and the relatives are relative-ly played by all concerned.

Believe me, the growing trees and blowing grasses and lowing cattle and mowing machines are going to make you feel awfully cramped in that kitchenette. [Come on, you Vacation!]

See you tomorrow!

Enjoy Back to Childhood Benefit Fete

Wear Rompers at Infant Welfare Party.

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

The swimming pool at the Knollwood club in Lake Forest will present a very different appearance this morning than it did last night, for last night several hundred very sophisticated "youngsters" were playing roulette and chuck-a-luck at tables around the pool and swimming. They were the young marrieds and still younger unmarrieds of Lake Forest, who, dressed as children, were dining and dancing and making merry for the benefit of the Infant Welfare society and those this morning will be the children of the club taking part in the annual swimming meet.

Which of the two groups will have the most fun it would be hard to say, for at this time we've only seen the make-believe youngsters, and they certainly seemed to be having a wonderful time.

Before they started the games at the pool they dined and danced on the lovely outdoor terrace of the club and before that they attended cocktail parties at a score or more Lake Forest homes. How much the Infant Welfare society will benefit by the party it was impossible for Mrs. Walter E. Hoving, chairman of the committee, to estimate last night, for until the last gamester had left the tables the exact sum could not be computated. But judging by the size of the crowd and the spirit of gayety that predominated we'd say it will be a goodly sum and that the committee can be proud of its accomplishment.

Rompers and overalls were the favorite costumes and some even decided that gingham evening gowns were suitable to wear to a baby party. The most amusingly costumed couple were Miss Barbara Howard of Farmington, Conn., and Edward Wilson. Miss Howard, who is the house guest of Miss Margaret McLennan, one of the committee that planned the party, was dressed as a baby, and Mr. Wilson, garbed as a very correct English nurse, wheeled her into the club in a perambulator. Also in this party were Miss McLennan, Miss Jean Schweppe, just back from her cousin's wedding in Santa Barbara; Miss Mary Reed, Dustin Grannis, Donald McLennan, and the young John Simpsons.

Tommy Leiter's interpretation of how a very young man should or would look was a pair of bright pink socks with garters visible, white shorts, a torn shirt, and a man's straw hat, with a red and white necktie hanging from it at the back like a streamer of a young lad's sailor hat.

Few of the women found it necessary to change their style of hairdressing to have it go with their more youthful attire, for most of them have bobbed hair anyway. A perky hair bow, a hand comb, or schoolgirl braids if the hair was long enough and that part of the costume was ready. And most of them decided last night that, although childish rompers and socks were very nice on such a warm night, they weren't the most comfortable attire for a night when mosquitoes were out in force anxious to nibble at bare legs and arms.

Miss Fleury Leonard, who is so lovely that every one who doesn't know her is sure she must be a movie star, was there in a wine red linen evening gown, and with her were her house guests, Miss Jean Harder of New York, William Colburn of New York, and Newell Childs, just back from abroad.

Some of the others who enjoyed the party were: A. Watson Armour III., the Philip D. Armours, Mr. and Mrs. Knight Cowles, the Junior Albert B. Dicks, Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Douglas, the G. Corson Ellises, the Herman D. Smiths, the McPherson Holts, the Stephen Y. Hords, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hughes, the Junior John F. Jelkes, the six young Kelleys, Phelps and his wife, Gordon and his wife, and Russell and his wife; Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Mabbatt, the Burford Porters, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Strotz, the William A. P. Pullmans, the John H. McIlvaines, the Junior John T. Piries, the James Minottos, the Edward Morrises, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Morse, the "Al" Castles, the George F. McLaughlins, the Wesley Dixons, and the James C. Cathcarts.

Mrs. Franklin G. Clement is in charge of the children's swimming meet to be held at the club this morning at 10 o'clock.

Queen Mary Wears Shorter Skirt; Causes Flutter in London

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—Queen Mary caused a pronounced feminine flutter in London society by appearing at a garden party at Buckingham palace in a dress that stopped short of the ground by perhaps seven inches.

Practically every other woman attending the function was attired in ground sweeping skirts. The queen's dresses have been tending to become less long recentiy, and she wore a comparatively short skirt in visiting the opening of the advertising exhibition at Olympia on Wednesday. The most fashionable set, however, thus far has failed to take the hint.

Golden School Days for Infant Welfare

Mrs. Walter E. Hoving at the Lake Forest Infant Welfare benefit held last night at the Knollwood Country club. Late Summer Clothes Have Fashion Snap

BY RHEA SEEGER.

In the midst of an exciting season of summer clothes, some one has turned magician and sent in more trim little sports frocks than have been available in years. Usually this is the sad end of a fashion season, when everything droops in the doldrums, when you hunt frantically for the simplest things and find only huge sizes, dizzy colors, and the first dark things for fall.

This summer is delightfully different—one shopping expedition will prove it! Are you hunting for week-end dresses? You'll find some clever white numbers trimmed with unusual colored bows, collars, crossed and criss-crossed belts, some sleeveless creamy linens, with wrap around skirts and a separate tie-on top trimmed with rows of fagoting or hemstitching.

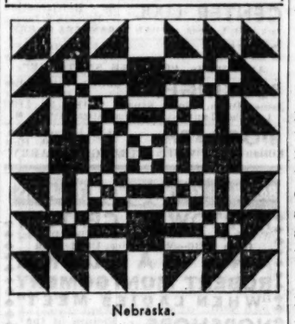

White dotted red linen splashes around another neckline, dips down in the back in a loop for a white belt . . . old blue, checked material, ties like a swagger cowboy bandana over a pale pink dress that has a bow of the same blue over the hip.

Clinging cord silk dresses have been fussed with until they are not the skin tight things they used to be . . . pleats achieve fullness as well as snappy smartness, and brilliantly colored silk ties, bows and belts complete their summer effectiveness . . . sun tan backs, in ovals, squares, and even fancy cutout designs in all the crisp cottons, linens and silk cords are just what you want for midsummer active as well as spectator sports wear.

Pale pink and yellow are two new colors that are worth watching . . . if you are fed up with white, these new shades are just what you have been sighing for. Stunning slim sports dresses in both these flattering shades can be worn nearly everywhere and anywhere during a week-end . . . lots of them are tailored enough for the office and a day in town.

And—even though you are hanging on to your cash, with thoughts of new fall clothes just around the bend, the price tags on all the frocks described are so low that two or three of them can be yours without complaints from the most anemic budget.

Golden Yellows Made the First "Nebraska" Quilt

Nebraska.

N. D. Teacher Will Mark Golden Jubilee in Order

Notre Dame, Ind., July 21.—[Special.]—Brother Cyprian, C. S. C., who spent 52 years teaching, 36 of them at Notre Dame, will celebrate the golden jubilee of his profession of vows in the Congregation of Holy Cross tomorrow. Illness forced the retirement of the venerable brother in 1931. He retains, however, the position he has held here since 1895, director of backstage operations of the University theater in Washington hall. He was the last brother to teach at the university. He was born in Covington, Ky., Nov. 2, 1857.

Discover Good Music Hall at World's Fair

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra played a concert in Hollywood Auditorium, A Century of Progress, last night, and a discovery was made thereby. Though perhaps intended originally for other purposes, this auditorium is an excellent music hall, and apparently it is the only one on the Exposition grounds.

The concert was sponsored by the National Federation of Music clubs in honor of the famous women who have been meeting in Chicago this week. The guests, of whom there were many, were introduced by Mrs. Arthur Byfield, following which Carrie Jacobs Bond, who has written more well known songs than any woman in the world, at least in this generation, took the stage for a brief speech introducing the orchestra. In a few moments more Ebba Sundstrom lifted her baton and the concert began.

In one way or another, it would seem that this orchestra is capable of constant improvement. It has been playing well during its winter seasons. It played better than ever before last night. It had tone, balance, spirit, and uncommonly good discipline to the signals of its conductor.

In spite of noises from the outside, probably impossible to overcome in any exposition, it went about the business of playing Dvorak's "Carnival" overture, part of Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Capriccio Espagnol" in the manner of a group of accomplished and well trained artists, not to be disturbed by accents of tooting whistles on one side and the obbligato of a roaring lion on the other.

James A. Mundy and his Negro choristers continue to be one of the most popular musical features of the Exposition. Appearing several times a week on the Floating theater, his singers attract large audiences who come to hear spirituals sung by fine voices in a delightful manner. He has just signed a contract for another term of five weeks and his programs are well worth attending.

Malibu Beach Club at Fair to Open Today

A pleasant day at the Fair yesterday—starting with a visit to the Malibu Beach club, which, if you know your movies, is in Hollywood. It was a sort of preview, for today is the real opening. A buffet luncheon is to be served on the veranda or deck, which is right on the lake.

We predict that the club will be a popular place with members and guests this summer. It is a charming place, decorated by Mrs. Barrett Wendell, in what she calls modernistic New England style. The lounge is fitted with pale yellow porch furniture upholstered in soft hennas, yellows and browns, off-white grass rugs and yellow walls, with ivy growing out of ivory pots. There are glass-topped small tables and a few simple lamps.

The powder room is all in white, as frothy and lovely looking as a marshmallow. But the veranda with its "comfy" chairs is the "piece de resistance" of this club, of which Howard F. Gillette is the president. There one can sit and imagine oneself on a boat, so quiet and restful it is. At least it was yesterday. At one end are bathhouses and below a small pier where boats can land or from which swimmers may dive into cooling water.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the attorney general, left today for Canada to visit Mrs. Weeks, widow of Judge Bartow S. Weeks, in her summer home on Lake Ontario. Mrs. Cummings will go from there to her home in Greenwich, Conn., to remain for some time.

Rear Admiral Thomas T. Craven and Mrs. Craven left today for their new home at Annapolis, where the marriage of Miss Olga Von K. Craven, their younger daughter, to Lionel Green Anderson will take place on Aug. 5. The admiral has been ordered to sea duty on the west coast and will leave with Mrs. Craven immediately after the wedding for his new station. On their way west they will stop to visit old friends in Chicago, where they have spent many years.

N. Y. Visitors to Polo Games Will Use Buses

Prominent Enthusiasts Will Be Present.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHEN the members of the exclusive Garden Club of America used buses instead of private motors for transportation on their recent visit to Chicago, they set a fashion. Three weeks hence the prominent New Yorkers coming here for the brilliant east-west polo matches will travel between the near north side and the Onwentsia polo field in the same big blue buses.

"We know a number of socially prominent easterners are coming, but that is about all we do know," commented Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, the sponsor of the event, yesterday. "They have ordered forty boxes, twenty rooms at the Ambassador East, and forty at the Drake."

Society will not know very much about the plans of these eastern visitors even after their arrival. They are coming to the city to see two or at the most three polo games and to visit the World's Fair. They want to distinguish their visit by a lack of entertainment.

"Polo," explains Maj. McLaughlin, "is too social to have entertainment committees. This is the reason everything Winston Guest, 'Mike' Phippa, 'Tommy' Hitchcock, and their families and friends do here in a social way will be very impromptu."

Mr. and Mrs. F. Skiddy von Stade are two of the polo enthusiasts who will be here for the first game on Aug. 13. The second is to be played three days later on Aug. 16 and the third [if a third is necessary] on Aug. 20.

This will be the first time the Von Stades have left the Atlantic seaboard for a western trip in many years. Mrs. von Stade was before her marriage Kathryn Steele, whose sister, Nancy Gordon Steele, married Devereux Milburn of the 1913 international polo cup team.

Other Socialites Will Attend.

A. Charles Schwartz, who was just out here last week-end for the running of the Arlington Classic with his brother and his wife, the Morton L. Schwartzes, will be back again with Mrs. Schwartz [A. Charles]. And then there are coming Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Strawbridge Jr. [Mrs. Strawbridge was before her marriage Florence J. Loew], Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Stoddard, who divide their time between their Park avenue home and Long Island; the James Watson Webbs, who are the parents of four attractive children, and the junior J. Ford Johnsons.

It is more than likely that Thomas Hitchcock, who was the first ten goal player in the country, may be here to see his son, Thomas Jr., play. And it is hoped just as much that the junior Mrs. Hitchcock will make the trip. She was Margaret Mellon before her marriage. Then it will be a wonder if the Frederick E. Guests don't make an especial effort to come out and see their son Winston team up with the eastern players. The senior Mr. Guest is considered one of the

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Swell Garrick—the World's Perfect Tailor's Dummy—is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training, rather than tailoring skill. Maitland, a crooked gambler, is the purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Faircloush. He and Schewan, his chief, plot to trick Rhoda out of a fortune. Maitland has Rhoda adjudged insane. She has been administered a drug which will produce temporary madness. Having no proof of guilt Garrick determines to settle the matter in his own way. His solicitor tells him that if Rhoda can gain and maintain her liberty for twenty-eight days she will be considered legally sane. Garrick undertakes a bold rescue. He escapes to London with Rhoda. At night they burgle their way into a private boathouse on the Thames. Garrick hires Alf, a farm hand out of work, as a helper and buys his silence. One of the gang is shot during an encounter in Garrick's home and the police suspect Garrick. Garrick obtains a covered van and equipment and buys a controlling interest in "Jelks' World Famous Fair." They travel about for a week when the gang overtakes them. They escape, but Garrick is separated from Rhoda and Alf. Garrick disguises as the chauffeur of his friend, young Alistair. He calls at the gangs headquarters in search of incriminating evidence.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.

TORTURE THREATS.

Having made sure that the house was empty, Garrick began a systematic search. He went to the top of the house first. This was simple enough, for the top floor was obviously uninhabited. On the first floor there were two more empty rooms—then Schewan's bedroom.

In Schewan's bedroom he drew blank.

Then he went to the kitchen quarters as being the most likely place to find anything to do with footwear.

The kitchen had never been used as such. It looked more like a workshop attached to a garage. It contained a bench and a number of tools.

This was not a dining room but a dingy sitting room which existed, no doubt, for the benefit of Schewan's rare visitors.

The room behind it—that faced on the back garden—struck a very different note. It was comfortably, almost sumptuously furnished, with heavy leather armchairs and a leather sofa. Near the window, in the corner opposite that occupied by the sofa, was a roll top desk and telephone, and on the other side of that a sizable safe let into the wall.

At the opposite end of the room, near the door, was a sideboard. Like the corresponding room next door, it was the biggest in the house.

Garrick looked in all the obvious places without result. He must have more than one pair of shoes! And, as a last resort, he tried the sideboard.

Schewan, it instantly appeared, had many more than one pair of shoes—and he kept them all in the two cupboards of the sideboard. There were shoes of every kind—patent leathers, hunting and shooting boots and dancing slippers.

As he crouched awkwardly over the window sill Schewan fired, and long before he had got over the sill Dorling and George and Maitland had fired as well.

And there were two pairs of the big rubber overshoes, the specially made goloshes that Garrick had noticed on the gangsters' feet in his own house.

A single glance was enough to tell Garrick that they were of different sizes—Schewan's and George's, no doubt.

He whipped them out and opened the Gladstone bag.

He had not finished fastening the bag when he heard the sound of a latchkey in the outer door.

There was time to get the shoes in the bag but no time to fasten the bag. He made for the window but a footstep on the threshold warned him that he was too late. He had just time, in fact, to drop down behind the sofa.

A moment later he was inclined to curse himself, for it was not Schewan but Maitland—and Maitland with a stranger.

"Come in, will you?" Maitland's voice was saying. "We may as well make ourselves as comfortable as we can."

But Maitland's next words astonished Garrick so much that for the moment he was deprived of the power of action.

"Mr. Garrick will be here at any minute now," said Maitland.

The answer of the other man was a mumble, lost to Garrick—but he assumed that the remark had been addressed to a detective—probably Lanport. But how could they have known that he intended to come there at that time?

"It was Mr. Carrick's own idea, of course," Maitland was saying. "He said Miss Faircloush was well aware that his chauffeur had helped him very considerably and that when he lost her the other night on the road Miss Faircloush would be sure to suggest going to see Richards."

"Yes, sir," was the respectful and indifferent answer. Garrick knew from what Maitland said that the stranger was not a detective, but Alf.

So absorbed had Garrick been that he had not heard the second latchkey in the front door. He was in the act of emerging from behind the sofa when Schewan's voice filled the room.

"Huh! I thought we'd meet again before long. You're going to find out now what you're up against, young feller, me lad!"

"You told me I was goin' to meet Mr. Garrick!" cried Alf accusingly.

"And you were mug enough to believe it!" sneered Maitland.

At that Garrick felt a white hot anger, but he must restrain himself.

"Are you going to have it rough or smooth?" demanded Schewan. His voice was ingratiating as he went on: "Why not have it smooth—with your pockets stuffed full of treasury notes the moment we set eyes on the girl?"

"Keep it!" grunted Alf.

"I'll keep it!" cried Schewan. "You want it rough—and you shall have it. "You'll tell me where the girl is and you'll get nothing for it. Keep still!"

"Shoot—Ugly Mug! Mr. Garrick'll look after my missus and put a rope round your neck for ole times sake."

Garrick stiffened. Alf was loyal to the core—and Alf was about to be tortured—as Schewan's next words made abundantly clear.

"I'm not going to kill you, you poor mutt—I shall just put one in the soft part of your leg if you give any trouble."

"I'm not going to kill you," repeated Schewan. "I'm going to make you tell where the girl is—and every minute you keep me waiting will hurt you quite a lot. . . . String him up, George!"

For five seconds of sheer mental agony Garrick remained crouched behind the sofa. It would be a moral impossibility to remain crouching in comparative safety while his servant and loyal friend, Alf, was left to the ingenious cruelty of the gang.

On the other hand, to rush upon those armed men would not result in saving Alf. The nearest of them was ten feet away. The would have time to turn and fire, not indeed to kill—for that would not be safe. They would aim at a soft part of the leg as Schewan had already threatened Alf. He would be wounded, would wait ignominiously for the police while they whisked Alf away through the communicating door into Maitland's house and then anywhere they chose.

There was only one chance—the window. To open it and leap into the back garden. But what a slender chance! There would be time for each of them to take deliberate aim. Not one of them would miss.

Nevertheless he knew that it must be done. He glanced upward to the head of the sofa. The tip of a leather cushion showed.

Under cover of Schewan's voice Garrick fastened the Gladstone bag which contained the rubber boots. If he and Alf got out of that alive, Scotland Yard would have those boots.

Garrick's first movement was leisurely in the extreme. He rose slowly to his feet and surveyed the company.

George had put down his revolver and was tying Alf's wrists. The other three formed a semi-circle round Alf—Schewan in the center. The backs of all were turned to him—so he had time to pick up the cushion and swing it.

He waited while the cushion hurtled through the air—until the instant when it struck Schewan's head—then let out a blood curdling yell, which for a couple of seconds utterly shattered the nerves of every man in the room.

In those two seconds Garrick had got the window open.

As he crouched awkwardly over the window sill Schewan fired. And long before he had got over the sill Dorling and George and Maitland had fired as well. Garrick had expected this, of course. His awkward negotiation of the sill had been due to the fact that he was holding the Gladstone bag behind him as a shield.

It was all according to plan—the only unforeseen element being the force of the bullets as they buried themselves in the bag. Schewan's bullet jerked the bag in Garrick's wrist and the other three shots, coming almost simultaneously, knocked it out of his hand, and it fell back into the room.

Impossible to retrieve it then! He dropped flat on the flower bed, out of the line of fire.

GASOLINE ALLEY—NO QUESTIONS ASKED?

Fifth of Marx Brothers Now in Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 21.—[Special.]—It's five Marx brothers again, if anybody is interested in trying to count them as they weave and hurry through their nonsense. The older brother, Gummo [Milton], was on the studio lot today, just arrived from New York. He was an original in the "Marx Brothers" act, which at one time included only two. He stepped out to enter the clothing business in New York when Zeppo, emerging from school, joined the act.

Gummo deserted the clothing business and came west to be business manager for his brothers. I predict he'll be playing in "Duck Soup" before they complete it, for he has too much comedy sense and too little affinity for the background to be permitted on the side lines. Gummo is considerably taller and heavier than the other brothers.

Paramount has torn up Lona Andre's old contract and written her a pleasing new one. She's the Nashville girl who came here as a "panther girl" applicant, but stayed to become a popular ingenue and a Wampas baby star.

Presence of Miss Lois Horne, school ma'rm on the Warner First National lot, on the set of "Wild Boys of the Road," had more than a dozen juvenile members of that cast badly worried for a while. They were afraid she was there to make them go to school as provided by the California law.

But there is another clause in the California school law, and that stipulates that the studio does not necessarily have to hold classes on days that the public schools are closed. This being vacation, Miss Horne didn't teach.

But she was assigned to the duration of the film as "guardian" for all the juvenile actors. There is another state law which requires that parent or guardian must be on a film set all the time a child is acting. So Warner brothers had Miss Horne technically recognized as "guardian" for each of the dozen.

Paramount has elevated the first woman to a film directorship since the talkies came in. She's Nina Moise, who's been voice coach at the studio for two years and who recently was instructress in English for Dorothea Wieck. She and Mitchell Leisen will co-direct "Cradle Song," the Eva Le Gallienne stage hit of 1929, which will star Miss Wieck in her first American movie.

Miss Moise is from San Francisco. She attended Stanford and played stock in San Francisco, Detroit, and New York. She was stage manager of the Provincetown Players when they opened up in New York before the war and staged the first Eugene O'Neill plays. She directed plays at the Lobero theater, Santa Barbara, for five years.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Needs Shoes for Job.

"Dear Miss Brown: After months of walking the streets I have finally secured a temporary position—to start in a few days. I am well qualified for the work and have succeeded in making my clothing fairly presentable, but my shoes are a very serious drawback. They are in frightful condition, and I would be very grateful if I could secure a discarded pair in size 8½ or 9. W. L.

finest polo players England ever produced.

During the tournament all of the players are to stay at the Onwentsia or the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest. Two certain members of the western team . . . in interesting contrast to the eastern team, for the westerners are all what we call "self-made" men . . . arrive in Chicago today. They are Cecil Smith and "Rube" Williams, who used to be Texas cow punchers. They have just been playing in the junior polo championships on Long island.

The Onwentsia field is now being combed and manicured in preparation for the games. The boxes and reserved seats will be located on the west side and the grandstand on the east side.

Announce Horse Show for October.

It will be a wonder if all of these easterners do not return to Chicago the last week in October for the horse show that is to climax A Century of Progress. Set for Oct. 21 to 29 in the big 124th Field Artillery armory in Washington park, it is what may be termed in sporting parlance "a natural."

So many horse shows all over the country have been canceled this year that the announcement of this event comes as a great boost to horsemen everywhere. Already box reservations have been made by a number of Chicagoans, including Col. Noble Brandon Judah, Frederic Burnham, Allan J. Coleman, James R. Leavell, George D. Cowin, John F. Gall, Capt. H. S. Lyons, and Edward H. Hicks.

Porter Fox is the president of the horse show association and Prince Michael Cantacuzene is its secretary. Then there's an honorary horse show committee that includes Laurance H. Armour, John F. Jelke Jr., Daniel H. Burnham, John E. Hughes, Donald B. Douglas, Britton I. Budd, Warren Wright, Col. Judah, Donald F. McPherson, Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, Chauncey McCormick, Albert B. Dick Jr., Benjamin Leslie Behr, Thomas E. Wilson, and Ralph J. Hines.

Mrs. C. H. McCormick to Give Luncheon.

Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick is to have a luncheon at her lovely Lake Forest home Monday noon for Miss Ruth Woodsmall of New York, the associate director of the foreign division of the National Young Woman's Christian association. Miss Woodsmall, who is in the city for the sessions of the International Congress, was for a number of years executive of the Y. W. C. A. in the near east, with headquarters in Istanbul.

Assisting Mrs. McCormick as hostess for the luncheon are the members of the Y. W. C. A. committee on cooperation with A Century of Progress. This committee is made up of Chicago members of the national board of the Y. W. C. A. plus a number of women who are active in the local association. The national board members are Mrs. Hermon B. Butler, Mrs. Philip S. Post, Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, and Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey. Another assistant will be Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, who is the local chairman of hospitality. Mrs. McCormick is a member of the board of directors of the Chicago "Y" and of the World's Fair hospitality committee.

A pleasant little jaunt is in store for Miss Theodora Shaw, who is starting out Aug. 1 in her automobile to drive to Chattanooga, Tenn., to visit Miss Mary Robinson for a week. Miss Robinson and Miss Shaw were roommates at Sarah Lawrence college. After a few parties in Chattanooga Miss Robinson will motor back to Lake Forest with Miss Shaw to spend a week or so with Miss Shaw's mother, Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw, and her sister and brother-in-law, the Clay Judsons.

Bodmans to Spend Winter in Rome.

A winter in Rome is the only definite part of the itinerary that the Harold C. Bodmans have planned for the next nine months—or maybe a year. When they sail, around Aug. 15, they are taking with them their son, Nicholas C. Bodman, Mrs. Bodman's mother, Mrs. Nicholas de Teresa, and an automobile.

Belgium is their first port of call, and from there they will motor down the Rhine. Mrs. Bodman, who has spent a great many years in Italy, is most anxious to get to Rome, as the Bodmans have many friends there, and relatives, too, for Mr. Bodman's cousins, Mrs. Georgene Haskell Sands and Mrs. Vittorio Falorsi [Theodosia Haskell], are established there.

Mrs. Helene Martin Howard has rented the Bodmans' house until next May. She is at present on a ranch in Wyoming, and will return to Lake Forest as soon as the Bodmans leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger MacVeagh of Portland, Ore., who have recently been visiting their cousins, the Eames MacVeaghs, are returning again in three weeks, which is good news to their friends here. Roger MacVeagh's father, the late Charles MacVeagh, former ambassador to Japan, was a cousin of Eames MacVeagh. The Eames MacVeaghs expect several other cousins to visit them soon to see the Fair, and for that reason they are postponing a trip they had planned until early fall.

Society Entertains For Fay Bainter.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan have as their guest over the week-end Miss Fay Bainter, actress, and her time is thoroughly filled. Miss Edna Kellogg gave a cocktail party and buffet supper for Miss Bainter last evening, and the John C. Evanses of Lake Forest are giving a similar party this evening at their home, with Mrs. Howard Dunbar Smith, the former Cyrena Van Gordon, the Orville Taylors and the Stuart Prossers among their guests.

Many former residents of Chicago are visiting relatives here and attending A Century of Progress. Mrs. Alden H. Little is counting the days until next Friday or Saturday which will mark the arrival of her daughter and son-in-law, the Henry Kidder Gilberts, who have been living in Orange, N. J., since the former Marjorie Little's marriage to Mr. Gilbert three years ago. The Gilberts will be here a fortnight.

The Charles H. Bosworths are happy over the return of their two daughters, Mrs. Gordon L. Padley and Mrs. Trevor Stamp, from England, where they have been living since their marriages to two young Englishmen. Dr. Stamp is here also, and he and his wife plan to stay at least six weeks. Mr. Padley will be coming over later.

The Andrew P. Cannings of Hubbard Woods have as their house guests this summer their son and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Graeme Canning, from Tennessee. Dr. Canning is a member of the department of zoölogy at the state university in the southern state. While he is doing research work this summer at the University of Chicago Mrs. Canning is spending most of her time at A Century of Progress.

Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Loring Rice are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Alice Anne, last Saturday afternoon at the Evanston hospital.

Paris Combines Moss Rose Satin and Green Velvet

BY SUZETTE BARILLET.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The familiar lines about "the gem of purest ray serene" and "a rose is born to blush unseen and waste its sweetness on the desert air," etc., certainly do date the poet. It's a very wise oyster that could find an ocean cave deep enough to hide his pearls from the modern diving scientists and submarine photographers; while the desert air is so filled with expeditious airplanes that, thought the rose may blush, she has a hard time doing it unseen.

These profound thought were suggested by the accompanying sketch of a Jean Patou model, which has borrowed luster of mother o' pearl for one of the most lovely formal evening ensembles ever designed to blush under the bright lights of a big party.

The frock of pink satin, just the shade of moss rose petals, is apparently wound round the figure in a natural spiral that brings out every line and at the same time has a slenderizing effect. Really, it's a supersophisticated apron dress, for you see the front is plain. It's tied in back by bows lined with green velvet that play the part of the moss rose foliage, and the shoulder straps are made of large oblong links of greenish mother o' pearl, which as you know Patou has restored to style supremacy.

Saturdays continue to roll around and questions continue to pour in. We like to have your questions and we believe that you like our Saturday question column. So it's an even exchange.

The first question is from Mrs. S. P., who wants to know about the calorie values of apple butter, brown sugar, and white sugar, and also asks whether graham crackers and flaked bran are fattening.

One tablespoon of apple butter contains 60 calories. Tablespoon for tablespoon, brown sugar has less calories and, therefore, is less fattening than granulated sugar.

Then about graham crackers. Crackers are an energy food and when we eat too many energy foods the excess is turned into fat. Energy foods—breads, sugars, and fats—however, are necessary to keep us fit. We simply must see to it that we are not overeating of them. Flaked bran is less fattening than many cereals because a good part of the bran is not digested, but acts simply as "bulk" to help keep our systems swept clean and working properly.

Mrs. K. M. F. asks for a chocolate divinity recipe.

CHOCOLATE DIVINITY.

2¼ cups sugar
½ cup white corn sirup
¾ cup water
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 cup chopped pecan meats

Cook the sugar, corn sirup, and water together until it will spin a thread. Pour one-half cup hot sirup into stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Cook rest of sirup till it will harden in cold water and add it to the egg whites. Beat constantly and add melted chocolate in a fine stream while beating. Add flavoring and nuts when candy mixture is creamy. Drop by spoonfuls on waxed paper.

Mrs. N. H. is interested in blackberry cobbler. This is such a good recipe and blackberries are so plentiful right now we know that others will like to try it.

BLACKBERRY COBBLER.

2 cups pastry flour
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
6 tablespoons fat
2-3 cup milk
3 pints hulled washed blackberries
¾ cup sugar

Mix and sift the first four dry ingredients. Rub fat into flour until in appearance it is like dry coarse corn meal. Add the milk and mix lightly. Divide the dough into thirds. Place two-thirds onto floured board and roll into shape of baking pan. Fix this dough sheet into the pan. Add berries mixed with sugar. Cover with remaining dough rolled out to fit top. Cut slashes in top of dough to allow steam to escape. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) thirty minutes. Serves six.

Chic Design in Paris Style for Home Seamstress

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Here is a Paris dress—delightfully feminine and graceful to wear, and easy enough to made, so it can be done at home. The crossed, tied bodice is a flattering detail, and there are bias seams at the hips that aid in giving that slender appearance.

The pattern, No. 3487, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measure. Size 16 requires 4⅜ yards of 39 inch material.

Mother-in-Law Provides Home for Young Wife

But She Receives Criticism as Her Reward.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

In a recent discussion of scientific flavor reported from Chicago, the poor mother-in-law was left without a protecting arm. One gathered from the warning that if a man wanted to marry, his best move was to take an orphan, or dedicate his life to celibacy. There seemed no alternative, what with mother-in-law's capacity for making trouble, and everything.

We hold this is bad propaganda. It simply serves to further imbed a prejudice that does not and cannot apply to all mothers. Of course, we grant mother-in-laws make trouble. Too many of them do. But not all of them, by a long shot.

At this particular moment we feel that more mothers-in-law are deserving sympathy than the younger members. So, at least, we find it, as trouble is reported to us here. Mother has managed, somehow, and often at very great sacrifice in her earlier years, to have a home of her own where all she asks now is to be allowed to enjoy it. She's reared her family and done her duty by them.

But what has happened time and time again during the last couple of years? Sons out of work have moved in on mother, sometimes bringing a small brood with them and a wife steeped already in the mother-in-law prejudice. Under the circumstances of trying youngsters on the nerves of a woman no longer young and obviously unfriendly wife, and with popular opinion usually against her, she hasn't a chance. Gratitude from sons' wives for a roof over their heads at this precarious time is not the common lot accorded the older women.

Sally to Announce Another Party in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

News of our next big party will be out tomorrow, youngsters!

It's just a bit different from anything we've done before and I know you're going to like it. What it is, and when, where and how it will take place will be announced in Sunday's TRIBUNE.

And tomorrow, of course, is also the day all you Sox fans know your fate. Fifty boys and fifty girls are going to be awfully happy—and I think those not fortunate enough to win invitations will quickly forget their disappointment on learning about our next party.

Invitations should reach the winners by Tuesday, at the latest. So if your name is printed and your letter doesn't reach you by that date, please notify me.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases.

CLASS DAY.

"Gee, professor, that was a tough session," sighed George Adams, perching himself on the edge of his desk and inhaling deeply from the cigaret he had just lighted.

"I'll say it was," added Sergt. Reynolds. The class was enjoying a fifteen minute recess from its monthly examinations.

"You're getting lazy," chided Fordney. "Here's a simple little problem for you two fellows that should step you up mentally.

"Yesterday morning a customer walked into Sam Smith's and bought a $5 hat, giving in payment a $20 bill. Sam had only, in his cash register, another $20 bill, so he hurried next door to Johnson's book store with the customer's $20 bill and asked Johnson to kindly change it. He gave Sam four $5 bills, saying he was going to the bank in a few minutes and would get some change for himself.

"Sam returned to his own store, gave the man $15 change and the customer walked out with the hat on his head.

"Thirty minutes later Johnson rushed into Sam's store excitedly exclaiming, 'That $20 bill you gave me was counterfeit! The bank clerk caught it and refused to give me either change or return the $20 bill.'

"Sam was amazed and chagrined, but assured Johnson he would not lose by the deal. 'I gave my customer his $15 and he's gone, so there's nothing for me to do but give you the $20 bill I have in the register. Kind of a tough break for me in times like these, but . . .'

[See solution on page 23.]

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

And here I am about to advise you to do what is apparently the opposite of yesterday's suggestion—but it is only "apparently." Yesterday I said let your young ones adventure more.

My advice today is this: If you have young children and there is deep water nearby, be careful. That may sound silly and superfluous to some of you who are very watchful, but I have seen so many very little boys and girls allowed to play alone near water deep enough to drown them that I know the warning is needed.

Ordinarily I don't put alarming things in this column, but I know of three little girls [in different families] who were drowned and one who was nearly drowned. All but one of these accidents was definitely preventable.

Little children should never play near lakes or swimming pools unwatched. It sounds quite horrible to say it, but it doesn't take very deep water to drown a child. So don't think that because a lake's bank or a pool's edge drops to water only three or four or five feet deep that it isn't dangerous.

Also don't let your child wander off to a place where other people are in bathing and think "nothing can happen with so many people around." Things can happen that way because what's everybody's business is nobody's business. Also, when people are swimming and splashing around and shouting and fooling in the water—and water always makes young people hilarious, children's antics aren't noticed, nor would their cries be heard if there were any.

Of course, you can take a chance if you don't want to take the trouble to be on guard. Many mothers do and get by with it. But it's a big chance to take and not worth the possible price.

But when all's said and done, there is nothing as safe for young children as a nice, sloping, sandy beach.

If you are planning topics for your autumn parents' study group, you may be interested in our new leaflet on "Subjects of Discussion by Mothers' Study Groups," which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

First Sunken Bathtub Made Centuries Ago

Tinted Toenails, Too, Were in Style on the Nile.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The first sunken bathtub was not a Park avenue duplex. It was in the great bathroom attached to the palace of Khaiz with its four great sunken circular bath tanks.

"The good old days," those, for the lady who likes to sing in her tub! As Beth Hayes, writing in a current toilet trade magazine tells it, taking a bath was a rite for which women and a retinue of slaves prepared with almost religious fervor, although to us the performance sounds more like a pagan's Saturday night.

The slaves had to be dragged into it, of course, because there would not have been any water if they weren't there to haul it from well or dale, or wherever they got it. But what would tickle the tub singer was the nice warm temperature of the water and the choice of perfumes, as imperative as the water, and the good long hour or two allotted for the luxurious bath.

If any one thinks our beach girls are up and coming on oils for the body, they should know there wasn't any season for this rite in the good old days of which we speak. Anointing the body was as much a part of the bath as the tubbing. A complete rubdown with the most marvelously scented oils was given.

Miss Hayes' research led to the discovery that Garbo didn't first think about that fine tweezed and elongated eyebrow of hers. The girls were all wearing them that way around the Khaiz palace.

Recently we've seen a movement to get women to wear artificial finger nails. That isn't such a new idea, either, according to our informant. Fingers and toenails both were encased in thin shells of gold, made to order, and costing a prodigious amount of money in the naughty B. C.'s, shall we call them?

As for the red tinted toenails, we may see on any beach today, that was old stuff when Cleopatra was a baby.

EQUIPOISE VS. GALLANT SIR AT ARLINGTON TODAY

WHITNEY ENTRY 4-5 FAVORITE IN $10,000 STAKE

Plucky Play Also in Field of Nine.

The Field

Horse—	Wt.	Jockey.	Prob. odds.
*The Darb	106	S. Council	4 to 5
†Plucky Play	124	W.S.Saunders	9 to 5
Kerry Patch	108	R. Jones	50 to 1
Dark Secret	118	H. Mills	10 to 1
†Gallant Sir	125	G. Woolf	9 to 5
*Equipoise	135	R. Workman	4 to 5
Big Brand	108	H. Schutte	15 to 1
Watch Him	103	E. Steffen	30 to 1
Larranaga	118	C.Kurtsinger	15 to 1

BY FRENCH LANE.

A flood of support flowed to the mighty Whitney thoroughbred last night in the wagering on the $10,000 Arlington handicap at a mile and a quarter this afternoon, in which Equipoise will make his first start of the year in Chicago.

Doubt that he was not at his best, and that his weight burden of 135 pounds is not only too much for him, but for any other horse, disappeared on the eve of the race. The rush to back Equipoise became almost a stampede and the big horse became the odds on overnight favorite at 4 to 5.

Two Champions Meet.

This happened in the face of a situation which pitted Equipoise against Gallant Sir, the Pacific coast champion, carrying 125 pounds. There had been talk early in the season of a match race at equal weights between them.

Gallant Sir has come up to the race in splendid condition and will have as a running mate Plucky Play, the long shot which gave Equipoise a trimming in last year's renewal of the same race. The betting could only indicate that a great many people still regard Equipoise as pounds better than any other horse in America.

The long awaited battle between the eastern and far western champions promises to pack Arlington Park with a crowd of 25,000. Only one situation might arise that would keep these two turf stars from coming together. While he is a noted muddy track performer, Equipoise might be withdrawn in the event of an extremely heavy track. In such going, it was reported, some of those in charge of the Whitney turf affairs might regard 135 pounds too much of a burden for Equipoise over such a long route.

Track Is Good.

There wasn't much likelihood of a heavy track, however, for the running strip was in such condition yesterday that it would require a long hard rain to make it difficult.

The handicap attracted a field of nine, with the 3 year old, The Darb, also nominated by the Whitney interests, as a running mate for Equipoise. His presence caused horsemen to believe that he will be sent out to set the pace, with Equipoise saving his great burst of speed until the field nears the stretch. Equipoise has broken the hearts of many thoroughbreds on that last bend.

Plucky Play will be making his third start in the Arlington handicap. In 1931, carrying 109 pounds, he finished third. Last year, enjoying a pull of 23 pounds in the weights, he got up just in time to beat Equipoise. He has only an 11 pound weight advantage in today's struggle.

Fourth Start This Year.

This will be the fourth start this year for Equipoise and so far he is unbeaten. He began his campaign early in the spring in Maryland, where he won the Philadelphia handicap. A short time later, carrying 132 pounds, he ran a sensational mile and a quarter at Belmont Park to win the Suburban handicap.

Should he win today's race his total earnings will approximate $300,000. The world's record of $376,744 is held by Sun Beau. Equipoise is shooting at that mark as he nears the end of his racing career.

The Arlington handicap, which is the sixth race on today's program, has always produced a stirring battle. It was first run in 1929 when Misstep won it with Display second and Buddy Bauer third. The next year Pigeon Hole showed the way to the easterners, Curate and The Nut. In 1931 Sun Beau, carrying 128 pounds, ran the mile and a quarter in 2:03 1-5 to win. Satin Spar finished second and Plucky Play third.

THE GUMPS—A NOVICE IN THE GAME

YOU MAY BURN UP YOUR GOLF CLUBS; NEW ONES ARE OUT

Blacksmiths Have Moved "Sweet Spot" and Added Spaghetti.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Those helpful souls, the professional golfers and laboratory blacksmiths who design the golf mallet and come out with new discoveries every now and again, have just about obsoleted, if I may make up a word for myself, all the millions of sets of mallets which were manufactured and peddled to the unfortunate victims of the game up to the beginning of the present season. But now, I am assured, the secret of golf has been solved by the new spaghetti type shafts and the new hitching-weight type club heads.

I am remembering, of course, that the secret of golf has been solved before, and many a time, too, by the rubber ball which replaced the gutta percha, by the rigid steel shafts which would not curl into figures of eight while the sticks were hibernating in the closet over the winter, and also by the matched and numbered irons, which came in jewel caskets and, for the best results, had to be bought by the set.

Yes, Sir! Just Around the Corner—There's a Bunker.

But this, I am told, is the positively final solution of the secret of golf which has been given to the world this season by the manufacturers of such material, thanks to the researches of their staff professionals and of their blacksmiths.

The golfer is such a pathetic figure that I do hope and trust that the golf tool people are not merely imposing on his simple faith this time or indulging in reckless claims which may presently be repudiated by individual results. However, it makes no difference. Once the idea has been barely suggested that the trouble with his game is not anything which he has been doing wrong but some fault in his old clubs the golfer will fret and pine until he has new ones. That is the pernicious feature of this sickness which goes by the name of golf. It is an optimistic ailment which always hopes, and almost believes, that the cure is just around the corner. Consequently, unscrupulous quacks in times past have been able to prey upon the suffering legion, selling them a great variety of expensive tackle on the promise that it would certainly help and might positively cure them.

And if You Can't Believe a Golf Pro, Then What?

The spaghetti type shaft is limber and whippy and thus is able to simulate the wrist slap, as the professionals call it, which imparts the final nudge to the little white ball in the execution of the perfect shot. A golf club man told me so. Only a very good golfer could achieve this action by hand, and, realizing as much, the boys decided to build it into the club

VINES, ALLISON ROUTED AS DAVIS CUP DUEL OPENS

Britons Upset Americans in Straight Sets.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUTEUIL, France, July 21.—America's hope of entering the challenge round of Davis cup competition against France was dealt two staggering blows today when Ellsworth Vines and Wilmer Allison were defeated in the first singles matches of the interzone finals with Great Britain.

Henry Wilfred [Bunny] Austin routed Vines, America's No. 1 star, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4, and Frederick J. Perry brushed aside Allison, 6-1, 7-5, 6-4.

England had been considered much less a menace than the Australian team, which lost to Great Britain last week, and the double upset is conceded by the supporters of the United States' cause as well nigh fatal to the team's chances.

Must Sweep Remaining Matches.

To attain the challenge round the Yankees must make a sweep of the two remaining singles matches and the doubles.

It was the most painful experience an American team has undergone since 1927, when the United States was forced to surrender the historic trophy to France at Germantown, Pa.

George Lott Jr. of Chicago and Johnny Van Ryn will carry the burden of the fading American cause into doubles competition tomorrow against Perry and George Patrick Hughes. If Lott and Van Ryn win the doubles match, the outcome of the series will rest on the performances of Vines and Allison in the concluding singles competition on Sunday against Perry and Austin, respectively.

Prentice Still Hopeful.

Bernon Prentice, nonplaying captain of the Americans, bases his hope of a triumph on the records of the British-American series in 1931, when the Britons came through on the final day to capture two matches. Prentice, along with the active members of the squad, believes the United States can turn the tables.

Vines, usually a finished craftsman in every phase of the game, was so far off form today that his efforts appeared crudely amateurish against the smooth strokes of Austin. Austin showed unvarying control in every game and was all over the court to return Vines cannon ball service.

The American, in a vain effort to outgame his adversary, turned on rather than lessened his speed, and then his service collapsed. He lost it 7 out of 12 times and double faulted 10 times, an unprecedented failure for the headliner of American tennis.

French Gallery Elated.

The partisan French gallery, elated at the downfall of Vines, three times conqueror of Henri Cochet, French idol, in cup competition, became even more demonstrative as Perry swept through Allison. Spectators, forgetting all rules of decorum, whistled and hissed when they were not applauding the play of the British.

Allison opened the match with emphasis on his service, one of the fastest in the game, but, when that failed to stem the tide, he softened his strokes. This was just what Perry had been waiting for and the latter, with the match well in hand, pranced about the court to the enjoyment of the gallery.

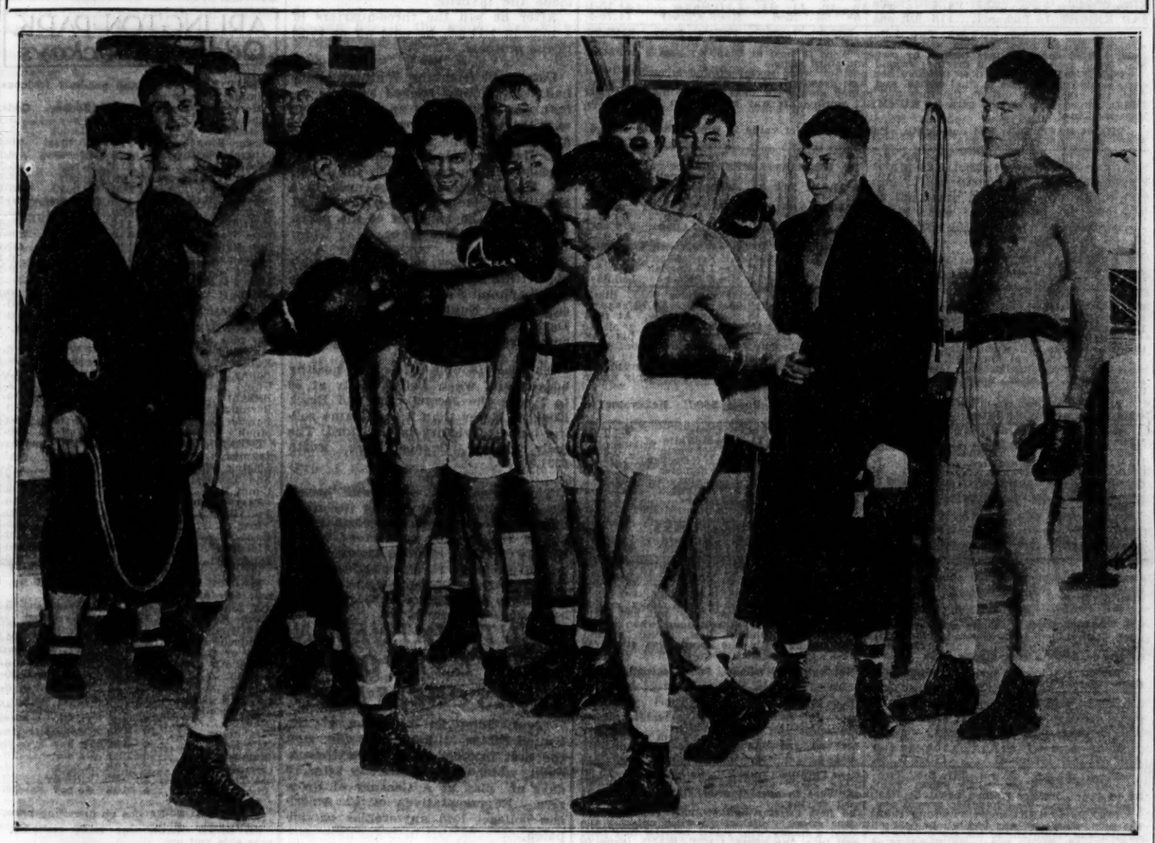

DANES BEAT GREECE.

COPENHAGEN, July 21.—(AP)—Denmark wound up its preliminary 1934 Davis cup play with Greece today, winning the final pair of singles for a 4 to 1 match victory. Jacobsen defeated Dydis, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4, and Ulrich beat Stalios, 6-4, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3. Greece won the doubles yesterday.

BELGIUM, HUNGARY SPLIT.

BRUSSELS, July 21.—(AP)—Belgium and Hungary divided the opening pair of singles today in the early play of the 1934 Davis cup eliminations. Lacroix of Belgium defeated B. De Kehrling of Hungary, 6-1, 7-5, 6-2, and Gabrowitz of Hungary beat L. De Borman of Belgium, 6-0, 7-5, 6-2.

BOSTON GETS 18 HITS TO DEFEAT WHITE SOX, 12-2

Boston, Mass., July 21.—[Special.]—The bothersome Red Sox dealt out another defeat to the fidgety White Sox today. They made a good job of it, 12 to 2, on 18 hits. It was the second victory in succession here and the fourth in a row against the Sox, counting the two recent victories in Chicago. It also was the south siders' fifth reversal in their last six games.

What made today's wallop all the more bitter was the fact that three former White Sox employés—Johnny Hodapp, Bob Seeds and big Smead Jolley—played the leading rôles. They scored four of the runs and batted in six. Hodapp, just excess baggage in a Chicago-Boston deal last winter, but now fourth in American league hitting, was the chief offender, scoring two runs and driving in three.

Rhodes Stops Sox.

The game also had its customary ex-Yankee flavor. Gordon Rhodes, 200 pound righthander and one of the four former New Yorkers now pitching for the Red Sox, allowed only six hits. The victim was Milt Gaston, who escaped during a shower of base hits in the sixth. The Red Sox had scored four runs off Milt in the fifth. Wyatt finished and allowed two runs and five hits.

Al Simmons' batting slump continued. He made a dinky single to right, walked once, popped up and fanned. He has failed to get more than one hit in the last six games.

After both teams had two runners left stranded in the first inning, the Red Sox went to work in the second. The troublesome Hodapp lined a single to left and Jolley sent him to third when his line drive single caromed off Gaston's leg into short left. Hodapp scored while Seeds was forcing Jolley.

Sox Tie Score.

Chicago tied it up in the fourth on two Boston errors. After Simmons popped up, Appling walked. Dykes was safe on Walters' fumble. Hayes forced Dykes at second, but Appling scored and Hayes reached second when

Golden Glove Boxers Down to Weight, Worry Coaches

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grand Beach, Mich., July 21.—Chicagoland's Golden Gloves boxers are so near the weight at which they will meet the Irish amateurs on Aug. 2 at Soldiers' field that Trainer Johnny Behr and his assistant, Jabber Young, are finding it difficult to give them enough boxing to sharpen up their judgment of distance. Heat of the last few days has made them lose weight too rapidly if their ring work is prolonged.

They Need Boxing.

The boys were asked to step on the scales before their afternoon workout. Here are the figures:

FEATHERWEIGHTS [126 pounds]—George Van Der Heyden, 130; Irving Goldstein, 128.
WELTERWEIGHTS [147 pounds]—Henry Rothier, 151; Bill Celebron, 150.
LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHTS [175 pounds]—Max Marek, 179; Ario Soldati, 178.
HEAVYWEIGHTS [No limit]—John Pacek, 185.

After the light workout, consisting of one round of boxing and three rounds of floor work, the boys lost several pounds each. So far as weight is concerned, they are now about where the trainers wish them to be several days before the contests.

How to increase the boxing and at the same time preserve the poundage is a problem because more boxing will be necessary next week or the boxers may become rusty.

Because these Chicagoland representatives are in such good physical condition otherwise, Behr announced this evening that tomorrow will be a day off without gymnasium work of any kind. Even the early morning road work will not be compulsory.

Ross Cuts Drill.

Lightweight Champion Barney Ross, who arose early for 18 holes of golf at Long Beach, reduced his boxing to four rounds today, one each with Billy Celebron, Johnny Dobler, Bud Ginter, and Eddie Ward. The Ross party ends training here tomorrow and leaves for Chicago, departing in the evening for Kansas City, where the champion fights next Wednesday.

BIG SIX MEMBERS LOSE GROUND IN BATTING RACE

Big Six batting was a losing proposition yesterday as the three Philadelphia leaders of the National league had a day off and the American league trio failed to hit.

Joe Cronin and Al Simmons slipped into a tie for second place in the American league and third in the Big Six with .360 averages as Cronin failed to connect in three times at bat and lost four points while Simmons lost one by hitting once in his three tries.

Jimmie Foxx also suffered a one point loss with one hit in four times up. The standing:

Prices That Fit Purses

Tickets for the greatest outdoor boxing carnival of the year—the battles between the champions of Ireland and the Chicagoland Golden Gloves team at Soldiers' field Aug. 2—are priced to fit every purse.

For 55 cents you can obtain an excellent view of the international fights. There are 30,000 of these reserved seats, but they are going fast. Now is the time to capitalize on this bargain.

Or, if you desire to pay more, there are tickets selling for $1.10, $2, $2.50, and $3.30. Thousands who have seen previous international bouts know they are worth more. That's why they already have made reservations.

Tickets are being sold at all Walgreen drug stores; at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street; at the Midwest Athletic club, and in Room 530 Tribune Tower.

WINNERS LISTED IN POLL TO PICK ALL-STAR TEAMS

H. E. Hubbard, 1922 McKinley avenue, South Bend, Ind., yesterday was adjudged the winner of THE TRIBUNE's contest to pick the American league and National league all-star baseball teams which competed in the game of the century at Comiskey park on July 6. Mr. Hubbard, who is assistant city building commissioner of South Bend, will receive the first prize of $250.

J. C. Hayes Jr., 564 Belmont avenue, Toledo, O., won the $100 prize offered for the selection of a National league team most closely resembling the team which started the game, and Charles H. Ruhl, 1632 Ninth street, Moline, Ill., was awarded the $100 prize for the American league selection. In addition 50 prizes of $1 were awarded for the selection of the six pitchers who worked in the game.

No Lineups Correct.

Although more than 500,000 votes were cast in the poll which THE TRIBUNE and 55 other newspapers conducted to determine the personnel of the two all-star teams, only those which were sent direct to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE were considered in the prize awards. Approximately 60,000 votes were cast in THE TRIBUNE's contest, but not one named correctly the starting lineup of either team.

Mr. Hubbard's selections, however, closely approximated the teams as they took the field at the start of the game, and in addition he named all three of the pitchers on each team in the exact order in which they worked. He was the only one of the 60,000 contestants to name all six pitchers in the proper order. The starting lineups:

LARGEST SPORT THRONG CHEERS ERIN'S BOXERS

All Nationalities at Big Demonstration.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Chicago's west side welcomed the boxing champions of Ireland last night with a demonstration of overwhelming proportions and enthusiasm. More than 200,000, according to police estimates, gathered around the band stand in Garfield park, near Monroe street, to roar their greeting to the boys from Erin.

This was the largest throng ever to assemble in the park. Police and park officials said it exceeded in size the enormous crowd which gathered there to hail the late Mayor Cermak on the occasion of his election.

This crowd was the largest ever to assemble for a sporting occasion in all American history. Other great throngs were the 145,000 who attended the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Soldiers' field in 1927 and the 122,500 who were present at the Notre Dame-Southern California game at the same place in 1929.

Capt. Michael Trant, who was in charge of the police at last night's festival, estimated the crowd at closer to 300,000 than 200,000. Capt. Trant is particularly well qualified to speak inasmuch as he has estimated attendance at all the Dempsey championship fights and has directed the police in handling numerous gatherings in Garfield park.

Greeting Reaches Highest Pitch.

Men, women, boys and girls of all ages and nationalities swarmed over the lawns and stood wedged around the band stand, raising their voices in cheers for the young fighters who will battle the Chicago Golden Gloves team in an international boxing match on Aug. 2 at Soldiers' field under the sponsorship of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Since their arrival Thursday morning, the Irish boys have had ample opportunity to recognize the hospitality and sportsmanship of the people of Chicago. But the city's prolonged greeting rose to its highest pitch at a certain moment last evening when Patrick Mulligan, the heavyweight champion of Ireland, stepped to the front of the stand and raised his clasped hands above his head.

Inspires Irish Throng.

Six feet four inches in height, broad shouldered and distinguished in appearance, he looked like some character of Irish mythology outlined against the brilliant background of white light. Fergus McRoy, mightiest of the Knights of the Red Branch, must have been such a man. Cuculain, the greatest warrior of Ireland's mythology, might have been built to those proportions. His is a physique which would have inspired the minstrels of ancient Erin to ecstatic song.

And he inspired this crowd of west side Irish last night. Like a great, good natured giant he came to the front of the stand, smiling broadly and waving his hand. A red rose was in the lapel of his brown coat. Bending down to the microphone, which was on a level with his chest, he spoke a few words of greeting and closed with the determined words, "We'll win."

He straightened up, still smiling, and a mighty wave of applause broke from the crowd. Cheers thundered out from the darkness beneath the trees where people were packed solidly, rank upon rank.

Smile Is Contagious.

Under the gaily colored lights closer to the stands it was possible to mark the expressions on the mass of upturned faces. Mulligan's smile, it seemed, had been contagious, for it was reflected on every countenance visible in the throng. Irish colleens, Jewish clothing merchants, Greek proprietors of ice cream parlors, Poles, Italians, Lithuanians—all the elements in the complex population of the west side—expressed their sportsmanship and hospitality with rousing cheers.

The throng began gathering at 7:30 o'clock. The boxers were due at 8, but there was considerable delay, since the boys were being fêted at a banquet in the nearby Midwest Athletic club. By 8:45 the crowd had taken on immense proportions. Despite the intense heat the people waited with good humor until presently the roll of drums and the blare of trumpets were heard. The fighters had begun to parade into the park.

Introduced by Sweitzer.

Attended by the St. Mary's Training school band and color guards of the American Legion, the fighters marched into the stand. County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, who had been toastmaster at the banquet, took charge of the microphone and introduced a number of the men who had arranged this celebration.

William Druley, president of the Garfield Park Business Men's associa-

IT'S STRUGGLE, BUT RUBAIYAT REACHES GOAL

Crew Disappointed When Big Blow Fades Out.

(This is the last of three articles on the voyage of the yacht Rubaiyat, which arrived at Mackinac island Wednesday morning in the annual Chicago-Mackinac race.)

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Rubaiyat, Wednesday, July 19.—"Stormy Weather" was the theme song for the Rubaiyat in mid-afternoon Monday, but the elements, after playing a few bars of that ballad, went on strike, leaving Skipper Hank Rubinkam the most disappointed sailor on Lake Michigan.

After the Rubaiyat had finally rounded Point Betsie following a chase of that party for some fifteen hours, she headed for Sleeping Bear light, with its dunes and trees forming a napping bruin atop the rise. The Rubinkam boat was doing right well in that direction until a huge twisting cloud stretching nearly five miles over the northern horizon and almost athwart her bows came into sight.

The entire crew, even to the lone landlubber aboard, sprang into action as soon as the big cone of cloud, resembling an inverted Kansas twister, was sighted. Every hatch was battened down, every port was made fast, and every hand went below rumaging for a slicker to withstand the promised blow.

Skipper Takes His Station.

Skipper Rubinkam took his station at the stick, done up in slicker and sou'wester, looking like the master of a Grand banks fisherman. His brother Nat and the remainder of the crew were fitted out likewise. The signs were for a very healthy young storm, but within fifteen minutes the Rubaiyat's company was completely disillusioned.

The schooner dipped its nose into the mounting seas as though it had scheduled a formal engagement with this particular bank of cloud. The decks were cleared for action, with the crew on edge and their skipper leaning over the helm as though he couldn't wait until his craft met up with the approaching blow. His hopes were blasted, however, and the entire situation came to an anti-climax when the Rubaiyat passed under the glowering cone as though it were so much blue sky. A light rain, which continued for a couple of hours, was the only visible aftermath of the alleged hurricane, although the wind held up enough to allow the schooner to make fairly respectable time for a few knots.

Console Selves with Slumgullion.

The crew consoled themselves with a helping of the slumgullion which Tom Waage had put together in an effort to rival Hank Rubinkam's cuisine, and he came as near to duplicating it as any one aboard could have.

From that point on the passage of the Rubaiyat was a torturous one, the boat struggling for every inch. It was at this time that Hank Rubinkam proved that if he can't have a storm to buck, he'll do the best he can with his light canvas during a calm stretch. He ran up almost every bit of canvas in the sail locker in an effort to go forward, threatening and cajoling each new sail as fervently as a young man chanting for his point in the Sunday morning game back of the barber shop. What's more, practically every sail he tried out yielded enough headway to make the effort of hoisting it worth while.

The Rubaiyat finally stumbled by Sleeping Bear light, with the twin Manitou islands showing ahead. It was at this point that the Rubinkams decided to gamble on the opportunity of gaining more wind by going around the Manitous instead of following the regular course, that of going between them and the mainland. It appeared to be a winning bet at first, but turned up a loser in the long run.

Finds Boat Speeding Along.

The landlubber went below again for a nap, coming on deck about 10 o'clock Monday night to find the boat traveling along at a speedy clip, with South Manitou astern and its northern sister almost abeam. He found Hank Rubinkam, Barker, and Bayley on watch, cheering the progress of the boat through another session of mountain goat weather. He sat in the cockpit, muffled in a pea jacket for nearly five hours, and became so interested in the Big Dipper that he nearly missed out on a comet which his three companions sighted almost instantly. The lubber came to just in time to catch the comet's tail striking the horizon like a downbound sky rocket.

Coax Breeze on Tuesday.

The chance Hank Rubinkam had taken failed before the Rubaiyat had traversed half of the shore of North Manitou, and a calm ensued which lasted more or less throughout Tuesday, except for occasional puffs. First, there was the run for the Fox island, prior to which the Rubaiyat indulged in a fight with Hal Redmon's Velma. The two boats split tacks a couple of times, and then Velma ran off around Beaver island, while the Rubaiyat sweltered off it for nearly seven hours, Barker coaxing the wind with "Come on, breeze, come on!" while the rest of the crew under Hank Rubinkam's orders were putting up sail after sail trying to woo the whimsical elements native to the waters of the Mackinac straits.

It was nearly 9 o'clock when the gleaming beacon of the White Shoals light flashed itself across the horizon. The crew of the Rubaiyat struggled until midnight to get her under way. The breeze freshened then, enabling her to pass Gray's light at 12:35 a. m. and the No. 5 can buoy at about 1:30. A goodly wind aided them up through the straits, accompanied by a steady drizzle, through which the storied heights of Mackinac finally were sighted at 6:45 this morning.

A gun boomed forth from shore near the tent of the Chicago Yacht club's regatta committee, and another Mackinac race was over, but the crew of the Rubaiyat, when they finally dropped anchor in the picturesque harbor, agreed in the words of the title of Don Prather's history of the long haul, "There Will Always Be a Mackinac Race."

Van Dusen. Went to post at 2:19½. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

OUR SAILOR, well up from the start, responded to strong urging after reaching final quarter and, wearing down OPEN RANGE, drew out for an easy win. Latter, given a hustling ride and having speed, could not withstand winner, yet held on well. BUSY SPAIN was taken to outside at stretch turn and closed with good speed.

Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 2:45. At post 4 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

POLLY'S FOLLY began to improve her position when saving ground at stretch turn, came around the leaders in final eighth, and won drawing out. KUMMEL, a strong factor from the start, bore out on the turn and rallied stoutly in final eighth. BRAVE AND BOLD, forced wide on the turn by KUMMEL, worked his way to front in final eighth, then weakened.

THIRD RACE—Mile and one-eighth. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :23 3-5, :47 4-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:39 3-5, 1:53. Two dollar mutuels paid: Black Fool, $9.76 straight, $6.28 place, $6.18 show; Quibbler, $17.68 place, $9.72 show; Blameless, $16.06 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:12½. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won easily; second and third driving.

BLACK FOOL, much the best and a strong factor from the start, worked his way through next to rail when going to front, drew away easily, and weakened in final eighth, but was not menaced. QUIBBLER, slow to begin and kept on inside in early stages, improved his position steadily after reaching final half-mile and outfinished BLAMELESS. Latter, under stout restraint for three-quarters, held on stubbornly under pressure.

FOURTH RACE—Hertz course, one mile out of chute. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :22 4-5, :46 2-5, 1:11 2-5, 1:37 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Mintogee, $7.52 straight, $4.56 place, $3.10 show; Tickory Tock, $5.66 place, $3.66 show; Damascene, $4.04 show. Winner trained by H. Roseacher. Went to post at 3:39. At post 4¼ minutes. Start good from permanent stalls. Won driving; second and third same.

MINTOGEE, away fast and rated close to the pace, responded to hand riding, gradually wore down STROLL ALONG and TICKORY TOCK, and drew clear, but had little left. TICKORY TOCK, under mild restraint for five-eighths, took command when called upon, but failed to withstand winner. DAMASCENE, probably best, saved ground early, but lost much when entering stretch and, closing with fine speed, was strongest of the leaders in late stages.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, :22 3-5, :45 4-5, 1:11 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Boilermaker, $5.80 straight, $2.56 place, $2.14 show; Fair Image, $2.98 place, $2.30 show; Caterwaul, $2.48 show. Winner trained by T. G. Hastings. Went to post at 4:08. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won handily; second and third driving.

BOILERMAKER, under vigorous riding the first quarter and strongly restrained at the turn, where he was inclined to bear out, was strongly shaken up when entering the stretch and, maintaining his speed gamely, scored a handy win. FAIR IMAGE had good speed, could not get to winner, but held on well in a fine effort. CATERWAUL, slow to get going, made up ground after reaching stretch and went evenly the final eighth.

SIXTH RACE—Hertz course, one mile out of chute. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23, :46 2-5, 1:10 4-5, 1:36 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Helianthus, $4.96 straight, $3.02 place, $2.70 show; Action, $3.64 place, $3.52 show; Commuter, $7.40 show. Winner trained by R. A. Smith. Went to post at 4:34½. At post 6 minutes. Start good from permanent stalls. Won driving; second and third same.

HELIANTHUS, on inside throughout and giving good speed from the start, continued with determination when placed to pressure after reaching final five-sixteenths and shook off ACTION in final sixteenth. Latter, forced to race wide throughout and also having speed, was lightly restrained for five-eighths and withstood strong urging gamely for a quarter, then weakened. COMMUTER weakened after seven-eighths.

SEVENTH RACE—Hertz course, one mile out of chute. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Hastings. Went to post at 5:06½. At post 2 minutes. Start good from permanent stalls. Won easily; second and third driving.

FINGAL, much the best and saved off the pace, lost much ground when moving around the leaders at the far turn, drew clear quickly approaching the stretch, maintained command easily thereafter, and had something left. ROYAL BLUNDER, strongly restrained for five-eighths, moved up fast on stretch turn, and held on well, but did not menace winner. DUSKY DEVIL, a strong factor from the start, weakened in final drive.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Winner trained by D. Jones. Went to post at 5:33. At post ⅓ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

POTENTATE, forced wide at first turn and under snug restraint for three-quarters, improved his position gradually on stretch turn and slowly wore down BRAINS, but could not draw away. Latter, a strong factor from the start and much used in racing HOPULIKIT into submission, saved ground in late stages and held on well. BATTY made up ground steadily in final three-eighths and was strongest of the leaders in the closing stages.

Boilermaker Wouldn't Quit in This Race

Boilermaker, Col. E. R. Bradley's fleet but weak hearted 3 year old, forgot to quit in the Hinsdale purse at Arlington Park yesterday. As a result he galloped past the winning post two and one-half lengths ahead of Fair Image, from the barn of Mrs. William E. Schmidt of Chicago. Caterwaul was third.

Most of Boilermaker's quitting has taken place in the mile races at Arlington. This was a dash at six furlongs, and the crowd seemed to know the big muscled fellow wasn't going to stop at this distance, for he was made the favorite.

After he ran the three-quarters of a mile in 1:11 2-5, he paid off at $5.80 in the mutuels.

Caterwaul from the Whitney stable had been stoutly backed and his defeat was followed by another beating of a Whitney horse that had all kinds of support. The second one to fail was Halcyon. He finished last in the Mission Hills purse, which the favorite, Helianthus, won by a neck in a thrilling stretch battle with Action. Commuter, the longshot of the party, wound up in third place.

Col. Abe Hallow, one of New York's big betting commissioners, who is here for the running of the Arlington handicap, picks Equipoise to finish first, Dark Secret second, and Larranaga to run third.

The daily double paid off at healthy odds again, when Polly's Folly at 50 to 1 won the second race and Black Fool, at better than 3 to 1, came rolling home to victory in the third. The daily double tickets were worth $391.80.

The halter men who claim horses were unusually busy during the afternoon. Bruce Johnson took Damascene out of the fourth race for $2,000; George C. Welch claimed Tickory Tock out of the same race for $1,500. Mrs. M. E. O'Toole claimed Dusky Devil out of the seventh for $3,000.

LIEUT. MATHESON OF WEST POINT, WINS CHESS MEET

Lieut. John D. Matheson of the United States Military academy, won the first intercollegiate chess tournament, which ended yesterday after 13 days of play at A Century of Progress. Representatives of 12 American colleges and universities participated.

Lieut. Matheson trailed in the opening matches, taking the lead in the seventh round and staying in front for the remainder of the competition. The 12 collegiate competitors were given medals last night at a dinner in the Administration building.

Nathan Beckhardt of the City college of New York, and Willis E. Lamb Jr. of the University of California, tied for second place with eight victories and three defeats. Vladimir Grigorieff of the University of Chicago and Martin C. Stark of Harvard, tied for fourth, and the other competitors finished in the following order:

Harold D. Cutler, New York university; Seymour Osher, University of Illinois; Edward M. Borsodi, Yale; Justin J. Naviski, Maine; Melvin Valk, Wisconsin; Robert Wilson, Hillsdale college, and Reynold Carlson, Northwestern.

Watrous, Injured Polo Player, Is Still in Coma

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., July 21.—Lieut. Gordon Watrous remained unconscious tonight, five days after he was injured in a polo game here. Lieut. Watrous, who is 24 years old, is a member of the 124th Field Artillery armory squad of Chicago. Last Sunday he fell and was kicked on the head by his horse.

You May Burn Golf Clubs; New Ones Out for the laity and the hitching weight clubhead is something which enables the victim to hit the ball quite wrong and achieve the right results.

This part is very technical, but I am told that in the old irons the center of impact, the sweet spot, as they called it, was not in the middle of the blade as the patients thought, but down near the heel, where the clubhead joins the shaft. Inasmuch as most of the sufferers were glad to be able to hit the golf ball even a glancing swipe with the entire blade, it was foolish to think that they would be able to hit it with the heel only.

And Their Brows Are Wet with Toilet Water.

Of course, it was not then known to science that the sweet spot was down near the heel of the iron. They discovered that only last winter and weren't they surprised, though, and embarrassed, too, to realize that those countless quivers of weapons which they had put out in entire good faith in seasons past were not only incorrect but in most cases positively dangerous to a man's game.

This meant that woods and irons all would have to be replaced for the very best results, but I will say for the boys that they were very game about it. They accepted the verdict of science manfully and, opening their foundries and forges and calling their employés back to work, settled down to the job of replacing all the golf clubs in all the bags in the United States.

There is something about the trade of blacksmith which leads me to hope that this is really a sincere and authentic solution. The blacksmiths are the people who make the spaghetti shafts and it is they who are shifting the center of balance out to the place where the sweet spot was supposed to reside but didn't. They do this by inserting lead plugs in the toe of the iron and forging a sort of swelling or blister on the back of the blade, which enlarges as it runs to the toe.

Not Too Good, Boys; Save a Change or Two.

The blacksmith toiling at his forge seems to suggest rugged honesty. He looks the whole world in the face, the blacksmith does, and I would not like to hear that he had willingly lent himself and his noble traditon to any mere scheme to stimulate the golf club business. Although, at that, I can think of much more ignoble works at this time than that of stimulating business, whether in golf clubs or whatever.

So, even if the sufferers should be deluded once again, their suffering will have been a mitigated tragedy, considering that just when almost every one in the United States already had a set of golf clubs this means was discovered of inducing a large proportion to start all over again.

Golfers love to suffer. And you may be quite sure that a large proportion of them will discard their old hammers, including that beautiful iron jewelry with the sweet spot where it oughtn't to be and start all over as soon as the doubt created by the new tools has had a chance to gnaw at their souls a little. The golf addict blames himself last of all for the troubles which beset his game and he will not finally convict himself until he has given himself every chance to make good, including this one.

I may be crossing this bridge prematurely, considering that my own scores generally range upward from 110, but I do hope that the boys do not make the game too easy. If they build too much golf into the clubs and the balls a man might find himself able to sit at his desk and shoot a 72. I still want to get out and around.

Trainers, Jockeys All Sure Their Mounts Will Win

Trainers and jockeys of the leading candidates in today's Arlington handicap made the following statements last night.

Thomas J. Healey, trainer of Equipoise—Equipoise is in good shape and we will have no excuses to offer. His job is a big one, but I think he is equal to it.

E. L. Fitzgerald, trainer of Gallant Sir and Plucky Play—Both of our horses have come up to the handicap in good shape. They will give a good account of themselves. It will take a champion to beat us.

George Tappan, trainer of Dark Secret—I know Dark Secret is up against it, but he's trained to the minute and has a fighting chance.

Jockey Sonny Workman—If we are not kept at the post too long the weight won't make any difference to Equipoise. I'm not afraid of any of the others. Equipoise has not been extended this year and he is better now than at any other time.

Jockey George Woolf—I'm sure I'll win it with Gallant Sir, because I think he is the best horse in America.

Encounter Stumbling Blocks.

The substitution of Pepper Martin of St. Louis at third base for Pie Traynor, Jimmy Wilson of St. Louis as the starting catcher in place of Gabby Hartnett, and Chick Hafey of Cincinnati as an outfielder instead of Lefty O'Doul of the Giants, caused most of the fans to go wrong on the National league team, while Connie Mack's use of Rick Ferrell as starting catcher for the American league team in place of Bill Dickey of the Yankees was the chief stumbling block for fans in picking the American league team.

The 50 winners of prizes of $1 for naming the pitchers of the two teams were as follows:

Risko Due Today for Mills Bout Against Loughran

Johnny Risko, Cleveland, O., heavyweight, is scheduled to arrive this morning at 8:25 at the La Salle street station for his 10 round bout with Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia at Mills stadium Wednesday night.

He is to be accompanied by his manager, Danny Dunn, and two sparring partners, George Pavlick and Gene Stanton. Pavlick boxes Eddie Houghton, Philadelphia light heavyweight, in the eight round semi-final at Mills stadium.

Risko's record shows that when he is expected to win he loses and when he is picked to lose he wins. That's why fans are cautious in selecting Loughran to win over the Cleveland fighter, although Tommy is listed higher up in the heavyweight ratings because of his good work in recent weeks. In his latest bout he whipped Steve Hamas. Before that Tommy gave Izzy Gastanaga a boxing lesson at the Stadium in April.

Risko is listed eighth in the latest compilations of the heavyweight class by the experts and Loughran is fifth. Only Champion Primo Carnera, Max Baer, Max Schmeling, and Jack Sharkey are ahead of Tommy, who is due here tomorrow. Risko will train at Trafton's gymnasium and the Philadelphian will drill at Kid Howard's place.

The next show at Shewbridge field is scheduled for Aug. 3. . . . Maurice Rivkin, director of amateur shows at Marigold Gardens, is to appear at the Illinois athletic commission office today to apply for a professional license so that he can present a pro card on July 31. The final amateur program at Marigold Gardens will be offered Monday. . . . Jackie Sharkey and Johnny Fitzpatrick were matched yesterday to meet in a six round contest on the Martin Levandowski-Gordon Fortenberry bill at Western stadium Tuesday. . . . Joey Bozak, Blue Island featherweight, has returned from the east after four months.

MANARCHY, FETZ REACH FINALS OF MIDWEST GOLF

Gus Fetz, Evergreen, and Sonny Manarchy, Rockford, two of the best public parks golfers in the Chicago district, won their semi-final rounds in the midwest public links tournament at the Waveland avenue course yesterday, and meet today in the 36 hole final.

Gus, known as the player who never took a golf lesson, defeated Laurie Shutts of Lincoln park, 3 and 2. Fetz wobbled on the second nine, having an advantage of 4 holes at the turn. He was out in 37, one over par. Shutts' putter, however, deserted him near the end of the match.

Manarchy won his scheduled match with W. D. Fox, Lincoln park, by default. Fox announced his vacation would begin yesterday, and that he also had business to attend to, and after reaching the semi-finals, defaulted.

CLINIC TRACES MANY SKIN TROUBLES TO FAULTY SHAVING

MEN are awakening to the fact that faulty shaving can lead to serious skin troubles. A recent report issued by the Gillette Skin Clinic points to the results of a nationwide survey among physicians and dermatologists as further evidence that shaving can cause or aggravate skin disorders.

"This investigation," states the clinic, through its head, an eminent dermatologist, "confirms our findings that shaving irritation lessens the self-protective action of the normal skin and favors skin trouble. Irritation to the normal skin can be avoided by using a sharp blade after proper preparation of the face."

In face of these facts, authoritatively stated by an able dermatologist, you can understand why such extreme care is taken in the manufacture of "BLUE BLADES". By actual test, in competition with other blades, the "BLUE BLADE" proved from 23% to 42% sharper. This is but one of many advantages you get when you shave with the "BLUE BLADE".

Let the "BLUE BLADE" help you avoid skin irritation and obtain unusual shaving comfort. Try it tomorrow morning. Gillette Safety Razor Co., Boston, Mass.

GIANTS' 2 RUNS IN NINTH BEAT PIRATES, 6 TO 5

Mel Ott's Single Scores Winning Tallies.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 21.—(AP)—The Giants put an exciting finish on a close ball game today to defeat the Pirates, 6 to 5, and even the series at two victories each. The victory, while the Chicago Cubs were idle, increased New York's lead to three games over the Cubs and four over the Pirates.

The Pirates almost won the game in the third when they pounded Hal Schumacher off the mound and scored four runs, but the Giants tied the score in the next inning with three runs off Steve Swetonic and won out with a three hit outburst against Relief Hurler Waite Hoyt in the ninth.

Joe Moore started the rally with his fifth straight hit, a single. Hughie Critz bounced a hit down the first base line and Gus Suhr threw wildly trying to force Moore at second. Bill Terry then smacked a single to fill the bases and Mel Ott followed with a single to left center that brought in the two runs. Terry's hit extended his streak to 18 consecutive games.

CUNNINGHAM AND METCALFE WIN IN SWEDEN MEET

STOCKHOLM, July 21.—(AP)—Capped by another pair of brilliant victories for Glenn Cunningham and Ralph Metcalfe, America's touring track stars wound up a protracted meet with the athletes of eleven nations tonight with a record of fifteen victories in eighteen events on the three day program.

Cunningham, Kansas miler, turned in his third triumph, racing Eric Ny of Sweden ragged again to win the 1,500 meters in 3 minutes 53 seconds. Metcalfe, American national sprint champion, sped through 100 yards in 9.6 seconds, beating Berger of Holland, considered fastest of the European dash men, by two-tenths of a second.

Cunningham, Metcalfe, Ivan Fuqua, Indiana quarter miler, and Johnny Morris, Louisiana hurdler, trounced a picked European quartet in a 1,000 meter relay, running the distance in 1:52.5, 4 2-10 seconds faster than the opposition, as Cunningham turned in a sparkling 400 meters in :49.1.

Morris twice won the 110 meter high hurdle races and both times turned in 14.7 second performances to beat Petterson of Sweden, winning the second race tonight. In the high jump George Spitz of New York jumped 6 feet 5⅝ inches to win the regular event and tonight leaped one-eighth of an inch less to win an exhibition.

Louise Hofmeister in Tennis Final Today

MOON MULLINS—GOOD CLEAN FUN

Yankees Whip Indians, 10-2; Van Atta Hurt

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Lou Gehrig came out of his batting slump today and led the Yankees to a 10 to 2 victory over the Cleveland Indians that enabled them to hold their tie with Washington for the American league lead.

Gehrig hit his 18th home run of the season and his first since June 21 with two on base in the first inning to start the Yankees off ahead and added a triple and a single later in the game.

Russell Van Atta pitched fine ball for the Yanks, but after yielding only three hits in six innings he was injured in the seventh and had to be relieved by Wile Moore, who allowed only two more.

ELEANOR HOLM, LENORE KIGHT BREAK RECORDS

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Two world's records were broken today in the women's national swimming championship meet, sponsored by the New York Daily News A. A.

For the sixth year in a row Eleanor Holm, pretty little Olympic champion, captured the 220 yard back stroke crown, and in winning as she pleased, covered the distance in 2:57.2. This is six-tenths of a second faster than her own mark.

Hardly had the crowd of 15,000 settled back from its acclaim of the women's swimming association star when it had new reason to pay tribute to another champion and another record breaker, Lenore Kight of Homestead, Pa. Miss Kight won the 440 yard free style in the record time of 5:39.2, to add another title to the 100 meter and one mile laurels that she annexed yesterday. The old record was 5:33.6, held by Helene Madison of Seattle, Wash.

Michigan City, Ind., July 21.—[Special.]—Michigan City's American Legion junior baseball team won its second district championship today, defeating South Bend, 5 to 4, and winning from Laporte, 4 to 1. Michigan City plays at Valparaiso in the regional tourney next Thursday.

In the Wake of the News

EARLIER CHICAGO.

GRAND BEACH, Mich., July 21.—[Special.]—Dear Wake: Because of the frequent references to the great Chicago fire of 1871 many persons have forgotten the second Chicago fire, which started between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of July 14, 1874, on Clark street, near Polk.

This fire raged about 12 hours, working north and east as far as Adams and State and south to Michigan and Harrison. I saw the first great burst of flame from our home on Third avenue, which was destroyed that night.

It is difficult to picture the terror this fire produced, because memories of the 1871 event were still so vivid. Hotels were emptied of guests, merchants moved their g ods to the west side, and many persons fled the city, fearing it might be wiped out as in the previous conflagration.

Over 800 buildings were burned, including churches, schools, hotels, theaters, and dwellings, mostly of wooden construction. Fred A. Ebersold.

There was recent reference in your column by Helper "53" to Monroe's Green room as rendezvous for actors and theatrical people. He also stated: "Henry Harrington, a retired actor, had a similar place at State and Jackson." This should be Frank Harrington, who was my grandfather. It is a coincidence that Frank Monroe had a son named Billy and Frank Harrington had a son named Henry. Both these sons died of consumption, as it was then called, soon after reaching their majority.

My grandfather, Frank Harrington, started as a call boy at the Howard Athenæum in Boston. When he left there in 1849 he was proprietor of the theater. He went to California, working in theaters in various capacities. In 1857 he came to Chicago as manager of McVicker's theater. He was there five years, then opened up the place at State and Jackson where he was burned out in the great Chicago fire of 1871. He then located at Indiana avenue and 31st street. He also bought a lot and built a home on Michigan avenue, between 30th and 31st street. He died in 1876 at the age of 50 years.

Frank Monroe who later had the Green room in the McVicker building, was leading man in McVicker's Stock company. He and Frank Harrington were chums. Both were exceedingly popular in the theatrical professions and all leading actors of that period were their friends.—H. P. Junkins.

Day Off Costs Cubs Ground in Flag Race

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs' third day of idleness during the week yesterday was attended by the loss of a half game in their race to overtake the New York Giants, whom they now trail by three games.

The Giants, in beating the Pirates, kept the Cubs in second place, however, for had the Pirates been able to shut out the New Yorkers in the ninth inning yesterday the Cubs would have dropped to third place, back of the Pirates in percentage, but in a won and lost tie with the Pittsburghers, though they would have been only two games back of the Giants. The Cubs were said to have been pulling for the Pirates to win, even at the cost of going back of them.

This afternoon the Cubs will be paddling their own canoe in the switching of the ratings, for they will play the Phillies while the Giants and Pirates will fight things out in a double header at Pittsburgh.

Root Faces Phillies.

If Charley Root and the Cubs beat Snipe Hansen and the Phillies this afternoon and the Pirates beat the Giants twice, the won and lost standings tonight will show the Cubs a game and a half out of first place, but in third place, a shade back of the Pirates. If the Cubs win and the Giants take two, tonight the Cubs will be 3½ games behind the Giants, but they will be almost two games ahead of the Pirates, with whom they open a four game series Tuesday, starting with a double header.

The Cubs are basing their present calculations on the premise that they will win this afternoon and also take the double header from the Phils tomorrow. The present condition of the two pitching staffs is the basis of this optimism.

Phils Exceed Their Quota.

When the Phillies won two out of three their first trip here the Cubs pointed out that they had doubled their Wrigley field victories of 1932 and therefore figured to win no more games here this season. Root this afternoon will make the first test of this and Guy Bush and Lon Warneke will see about things tomorrow. Bush and Warneke also will be engaged in something of a rivalry between themselves, for each has won 12 games while losing seven.

This afternoon's game will be the tenth between the two teams this season. The Cubs have won five and the Phillies four.

Helen Hicks Is Finalist in New York State Golf

Plandome, N. Y., July 21.—(AP)—Helen Hicks, former national champion, gained the final round of the New York state women's golf tournament today when she defeated Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake 2 and 1. Tomorrow she will play Mrs. Leo G. Federman in the 36 hole final of the event which she won in 1930 and again in 1931. Mrs. Federman advanced by defeating Mrs. J. Laroque Anderson 4 and 3.

Here the rival pitchers chiseled in on the offensive. After Appling had tossed out the first two batters in the fourth inning on fine plays, Seeds beat out a slow hit to short. Rhodes then doubled to the left center field embankment, scoring Seeds. Gaston opened the Sox fifth with a double off the left field wall and scored while Swanson and Haas were grounding out.

Boston Routs Gaston.

Gaston's tenure came to an abrupt end in the sixth when the Red Sox again scored four runs. With one out, Werber singled to left and scored on Walters' double to the same spot. Cooke got a double when his high fly fell safely in short center. Both he and Walters scored on Johnson's single to center. Milt then willingly turned over his task to Wyatt. Ferrell greeted Wyatt with a single to center. Hodapp hit to Appling and Ferrell was safe at second on Appling's wild throw, Johnson scoring.

Still the Red Sox weren't satisfied and they added two more in the eighth. When Ferrell hit a pop fly in center, Hayes dashed out, waved Haas away, then let it fall. After Hodapp fanned, Jolley doubled past Haas. Seeds hit a slow roller that Wyatt fielded and held while Ferrell scored and Seeds reached first. Jolley scored on Rhodes' fly to Haas.

June Beebe Wins, 6 and 5, in Golf Final

June Beebe defeated Rena Nelson of Exmoor, 6 and 5, in the final of the Chicago women's district tournament yesterday at Skokie to win her third major golf title in less than four weeks.

Her previous victories were in the women's western open at Olympia Fields on June 30 and the women's western seventy-two hole medal play at Sunset Ridge on July 14. And now she is going to take a few days' rest before trying for the women's western title at Oak Park on Aug. 7.

In announcing Miss Beebe as the Chicago district champion yesterday, Mrs. John A. Wheeler, president of the association, said that June's handicap had been cut from 2 to scratch, placing her in the same class with Virginia Van Wie, the national champion, as the only two girls in the Chicago district with this rating.

Over Par on First Nine.

In winning the final from Miss Nelson yesterday, Miss Beebe did not play the same brand of golf she had played during the earlier part of the tournament. Neither did Miss Nelson. For that matter, finalists seldom do. June had shot the first nine at Skokie three times in succession in 38, 1 under par, but yesterday she had 40, 1 over. Miss Nelson picked up at the sixth, so her medal score out could not be determined.

Miss Beebe won the second after they had halved the first hole. Miss Nelson took the third where she laid June a stymie. The fourth was halved in 5s and then the big parade started, June winning the next five holes and turning 5 up. At the fifth Rena missed a putt for a half, and had an unplayable lie at the sixth and picked up. At the seventh she was in a trap and in the woods at the eighth and a trap at the ninth.

Both in Trouble at Tenth.

On the way in, both mussed up the tenth, June's only time on the fairway being when she dubbed her drive. Rena promptly drove into a trap and from there it was traps and bunkers for both. Rena was on in 3, and had a chance to win, but used 3 putts. June boosted one out of her third trap and got a half in 6s.

The second and last hole Rena won was the eleventh, where she sank a 5 foot putt for a birdie. She lost the twelfth, sending her drive in a trap, and her next shot into the rough. June ended it on the thirteenth with a drive that landed 8 feet above the pin and sank it for a birdie 2, Rena getting into another trap and having a poor out.

The cards:

Miss Beebe—Out..........536 555 443—40
Miss Nelson—Out..........545 56* 554—..
Miss Beebe—In..........654 2.. ....—..
Miss Nelson—In..........645 4.. ....—..

STRONG AWARDED $75,000 IN SUIT AGAINST DOCTOR

Detroit, Mich., July 21.—[Special.]—Ken Strong, former football star of New York university, was awarded $75,000 by a federal court jury today in his suit against Dr. Alfred L. La Ferte of Detroit. Strong had asked $250,000, charging that the doctor had removed the wrong bone from his wrist in an operation.

Strong claimed the operation impaired his athletic ability and caused him loss of income as a professional baseball and football player. For a while Strong was a member of the Detroit Tigers baseball team and the Stapleton pro eleven.

Dr. La Ferte claimed the operation, which followed an injury to Strong's wrist, had improved the condition of the wrist.

PETE BLANCHARD DEFEATS MILLER IN FIVE ROUNDS

Pete Blanchard, Kansas City, Kas., junior welterweight, defeated Freddie Miller, Chicago, in the five round windup of the weekly professional boxing show at the Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, last night. In the semi-windup Freddie Gravelle stopped Joe Roman, Joliet, Ill., former Golden Gloves featherweight champion, in the fourth round.

In the preliminary bouts Scotty Sylvano beat Chuck Reed; Sammy Adams beat Curtis Mills, and Vern Trickle beat Jack Robinson. In a heavyweight wrestling match Pat Corrigan won from John Holda in 12 minutes and 50 seconds.

tion, which had sponsored the event; County Commissioner Peter M. Kelly, general chairman of the reception committe; Ald. Thomas Tyrell of the 29th ward, Judge Thomas Lynch, and Judge Frank Padden were presented to the throng.

A brief concert by the St. Mary's band followed. The boxers were introduced and Helen Duffy sang a number of Irish airs. Then there was dancing until far into the night on the concrete floor in front of the bandstand.

City Leaders at Banquet.

At the banquet which preceded the outdoor festival Toastmaster Sweitzer called upon a number of the city's prominent men for short addresses to the boxers and the 400 guests.

The Most Rev. Bernard J. Shiel auxiliary bishop of Chicago, extended a greeting. Ald. Roger Kiley, representing Mayor Kelly, delivered a brief message of welcome.

Mr. Druley, the Rev. W. S. Pond of St. Barnabas Episcopal church, Thomas Heaney, secretary of the Catholic Order of Foresters, and William O'Brien, president of the Irish Amateur Boxing association, were among the speakers. Mrs. Tex Rickard, widow of the famous promoter, was introduced.

Arch Ward, sports editor of The Tribune, thanked the members of the Garfield Park Business Men's association, Mr. Druley, Mr. Kelly, and others who had planned this great celebration. On behalf of The Tribune he expressed his appreciation to the people of Chicago for the enthusiastic support they have given to international Golden Gloves bouts. He assured the Irish boxers that during their stay in the city they would encounter true sportsmanship in the ring and out of it.

Sox Ask Miller to Stop Boston Rampage Today

Boston, Mass., July 21.—Walter Miller, the White Sox southpaw, probably will be selected to stop the rampaging Red Sox tomorrow. Manager Fonseca had planned to start Chad Kimsey in the event his athletes won today. Ivy Paul Andrews, another ex-Yankee, is due for Boston.

Today was ladies' day. The idea, however, hasn't caught on so well here, there being only 2,000 of the fair fans out.

The field was soggy from last night's heavy rains and the infielders were bothered. Appling fell twice fielding grounders, but got his man both times.

Thomas Yawkey, youthful owner of the Red Sox, evidently is a good mascot for his team. He was here when they beat the Yankees four out of five. He came down from New York for the week-end today and watched the game from the press box.

Irish Champs Sure Chicago Is Hot Place

BY JERRY CURRAN.

Eight perspiring Irish boys rolled themselves out of bed yesterday morning at the Midwest club and stretched aching, perspiring limbs. Tired? Very! You have to go through a civic reception in Chicago, and all that goes with it, to know how much it can take out of you.

And then it was hot.

It didn't do the boys very much good to be told by many Chicagoans that it was cool yesterday, in comparison. It might be cool to Chicago, but it was still like a furnace to these Irish boxing champ'ons. They woke up to realize they had sweltered all through the night, although they had slept like so many logs. These boys are fit!

Connolly Outsmarts Them.

Only one of them was any way near cool. He was Chief Little Thunder, who is better known as Pat Connolly, the flyweight champion. Connolly went to bed wearing extra underlothes under his pajamas. He wrapped clothes under his pajamas. He wrapped a blanket closely around him and closed his eyes. Other members of the team gasped a minute or two later when he reached out and borrowed the blanket off the next bed.

They thought he was still worrying about his weight. They didn't know Connolly figured that if he got as warm as he possibly could during the night he would wake up in the morning immune to the heat.

The boys submitted to the demands of a photographer after breakfast. They can't get used to the idea that people still want to see their pictures. But they agree to anything, so long as it does not interfere with their mission, which is eight victories in the Soldiers' field ring Aug. 2.

Start Rigid Drill.

First real training started yesterday afternoon when the boys reported in the gym at the Midwest Athletic club. With them were John Walsh, Jackie Sullivan, Phil Kennelly, Barney Ryan, Bob Lamonte, and John Cawthorne, sparring partners from the Catholic Youth Organization. There also was Tuffy Griffith, professional heavyweight, who worked out with them. He boxed a round with Pady Mulligan, the Irish heavyweight.

Looking them over as they worked, it is evident they are cocky about the outcome of these Golden Gloves bouts. They've declared that a drawn tourney isn't going to be any good to them. Victories, eight of them in eight bouts—nothing less, has been their cry all along. However, they are extremely serious about their training.

Several members of the team will speak over radio station WGES tomorrow night. The squad will attend high mass at Our Lady of Sorrows church, Jackson boulevard and Albany street, at noon tomorrow and after dinner will go to the radio station. The broadcast will start at 5 o'clock.

MRS. MEANY TO FACE MRS. LONG IN COUNTY FINAL

Battle for Title Today at Jackson Park.

Mrs. Isobel Meany and Mrs. Rose Long, both members of the Jackson Park club, will play the 36 hole final today over the Jackson park course for the women's Cook county open title.

In the semi-finals yesterday Mrs. Meany won, 2 and 1, from Mrs. Charles N. Wheeler of Lincoln park. Both were having trouble putting, and Mrs. Wheeler also had difficulty with her drives. Mrs. Meany reached the turn 2 up and held her advantage to the end.

In the lower half of the bracket Mrs. Long was 1 down at the turn to Mrs. G. C. Carnahan, also of Jackson park. She missed three apparently easy putts, the ball stopping on the edge of the cup. Mrs. Long straightened out her game on the way home and squared the match at the 13th. At the 17th Mrs. Carnahan was in and out of traps and lost the last hole and match by shooting into the trap at the left of the green.

Eight players advanced to the quarter-finals of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association championship tournament by victories in first and second round matches yesterday at Northbrook. E. D. Damen of Mid-City, the defending champion, remained in the running by defeating F. Sherry of Midwest, 2 and 1, in the second round.

E. Freed, Big Oaks, beat B. Dunlap, Antlers, 7 and 6.
F. M. Vierow, Harlem, beat B. Riffle, Cog Hill, 3 and 2.
O. L. Berger, Hillcrest, beat F. McNamara, Evergreen, 2 and 1.
Ray Klein, Indianhead, advanced by default.
E. D. Damen, Mid-City, beat F. Sherry, Midwest, 2 and 1.
W. H. Jordan, Northbrook, beat F. J. McCabe, 8 and 7.
C. Berger, Pipe o' Peace, advanced by default.

WEEPS IN COURT AS BARTON TELLS OF HER PAST LIFE

Author Charges Woman with Extortion Plot.

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Francis W. King wept today when she heard Bruce Barton, author and advertising executive, testifying in General Sessions court, tell of the results of an investigation he had made into her past. Mrs. King is on trial before Judge Joseph E. Corrigan and a jury on charges of blackmail and an attempt to extort $50,000 from Mr. Barton.

It was Mrs. King's own attorney who opened the door that permitted Mr. Barton, as a state witness, to spread upon the court record the details of his investigation of Mrs. King's history.

Tells of Investigation.

Mr. Barton said he had learned that Mrs. King's maiden name was Gertrude Gussenhaven, born in California; that she was discharged as a student nurse in a Denver hospital for improper conduct with a male patient; that she was married in 1916 in Chicago to a Fred Wagner, who divorced her; that she had a daughter by this first marriage; that she was fired as a hostess in a Milwaukee hotel "for cause;" that she worked as a waitress in New York until she was employed by Mr. Barton's advertising firm in 1928; that a few days before going to work for his firm she was married to Hugh Rogers King and that in her marriage application she gave her age as 24 when she actually was 38, and stated that she never had been married.

Hiram C. Todd, who was Mr. Barton's attorney in the alienations of affections suit brought against Barton by King, then took the stand and described several conferences with Mrs. King. He told how she had demanded that Barton "take care of her because of what had happened," and because her husband was suing her for divorce because of what "had happened"; how she was ill and expected Mr. Barton to provide for her and how she threatened to "make it hot for him" if he did not do so.

Suit Settled for $25,000.

Mr. Todd then told how the alienations suit was settled for $25,000, the money being paid in cash to King, who contended that he wanted it for Mrs. King.

It is charged that Mrs. King sought to extort $50,000 from Mr. Barton on the threat of publishing a libel against him.

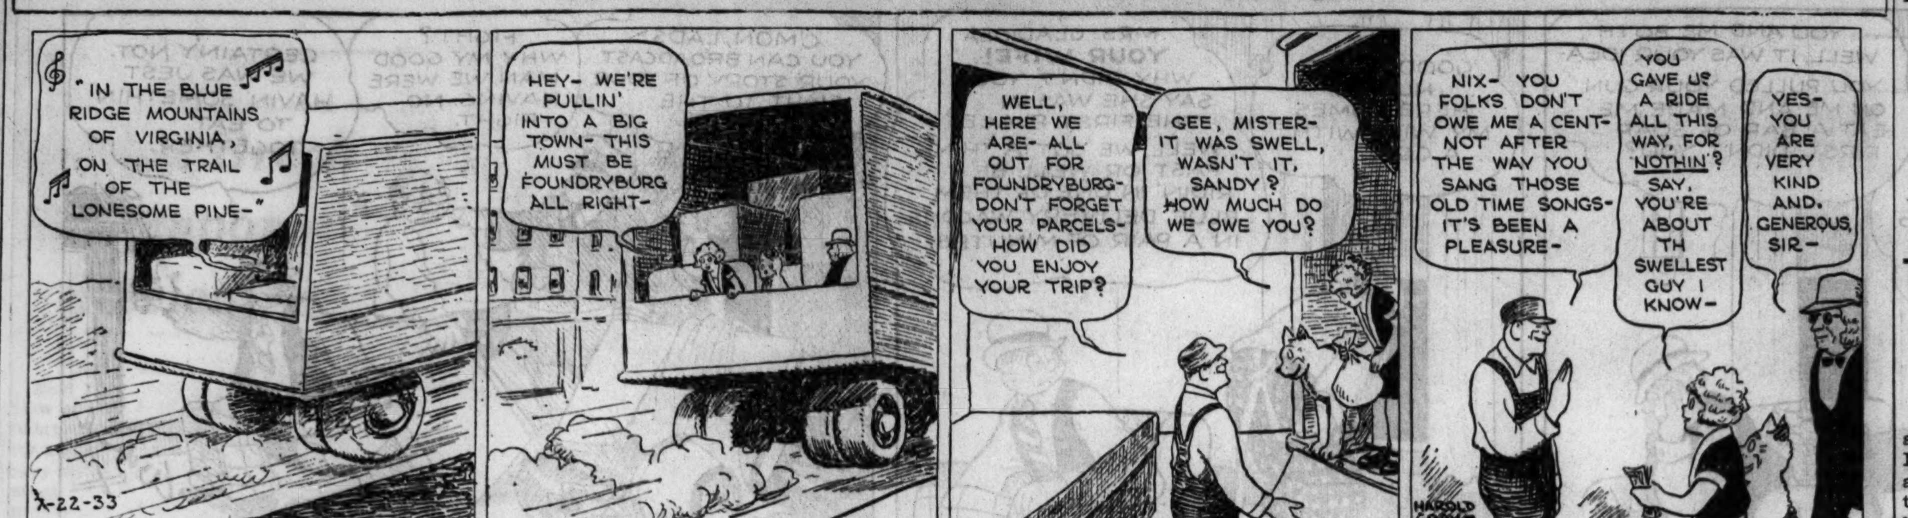

HUNT DE STEFANO FOR QUIZZING IN SALOON MURDER

Onesto was shot down by a gang of five men in a saloon at 1139 Taylor street. Two others in the place, Angelo Mazzone and Frank Laino, were wounded by the gunfire. The police said they had information to indicate that Michael DeStefano, well known as a west side hoodlum, was the leader of the attacking party. He is being sought.

Twelve hours after the killing of Onesto a volley was fired into the saloon by men passing the saloon, believed to have been the same group who did the earlier shooting. Clemento Cozzi, owner of the place, asserted he knew of no reason for the attacks.

TRIBUNE ICE FUND STANCHES BLOOD OF BOY SUFFERER

QuickRelief Available, Mother Learns.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Sammie, 7 years old, marveled last night that anything so precious as a cooling chunk of ice should be given to him to make him more comfortable in illness on a torrid day. Yet it was done earlier in the day by a United Charities worker in the Haymarket district, who gave him tickets furnished by THE TRIBUNE Free Ice fund.

Sammie had spent the day in a dentist's chair. One infected tooth after another had come out. Sammie's mother waited anxiously while the lad bravely submitted to the dentist's forceps. At last it was over.

"The boy's teeth are bleeding a great deal. He will have to have ice to stop the bleeding," the dentist told her.

Mother Hears of Fund.

"Go to the United Charities," he told her. "THE TRIBUNE has a fund for just such emergencies."

The mother led the little boy into the district office. He was so near exhaustion that the worker scarcely waited to hear the story through. He was sent home to bed and ice was delivered immediately. It was used effectively to stop the bleeding.

And that, reader, is the kind of service you perform when you contribute to THE TRIBUNE free ice fund. Only $12.11 was received yesterday, bringing the grand total to $1,070.92.

This was from three contributors, H. V. Keane, who sent $10; a group of girls who conducted a lemonade stand and raised $1.11, and V. H., who contributed $1. They were Harriet Brown, Audrey Holmes, Georgia and Louise Hinchliff, who live in Beverly Hills.

Two Gifts to Algonquin Fund.

The Camp Algonquin fund was the recipient of $15, of which $10 came "in memory of my daughter," and $5 in honor of the 91st birthday of Mrs. M. M. Hirsh. This gives the camp fund a total of $1,476.49.

Contributions will be welcomed by both funds, for there is much to be done the rest of the summer to make life a little happier for the needy. Gifts should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

Wind Lifts Big Building, Drops It on 107 Workmen

POINT EDWARD, Ont., July 21.—(AP)—A freak windstorm, ripping with sudden fierceness over the loading sheds of the Canadian Steamship lines here today, lifted the 1,200 foot long structure into the air and droped it on 107 workmen, killing one, injuring 14 and imprisoning all for nearly half and hour.

MDIVANI 'ARMY' IN LOS ANGELES LOSES RECRUITS

Wives of Two Princes Are Curious.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., July 21.—[Special.]—When Princes Serge and David Mdivani, or their retainers, recruited a Hollywood military troop to provide a background for the princes' dreams of an ultimate Mdivani restoration in the Georgian Caucasus, they unwittingly made it tough for Los Angeles politicians who had been friendly with the Mdivanis in the California lancers.

When rumors concerning the purposes of the so-called "veterans' motion picture training battalion," described by some as "the Mdivani foot Hussars," came to light, they were followed by hasty disclaimers on the part of Harry M. Baine, member of the county board, and sundry other "colonels" and "captains" of the "lancers."

Two More Troops Planned.

Col. Baine's statement came after discovery that the Mdivanis, who had been captains in the California lancers (a local horseback riding, part social, part political, uniformed organization), had spoken of organizing two additional troops of lancers after one unofficial so-called private troop composed partly of Russian refugees, movie cowboys, and American ex-doughboys had been formed.

"Don't mention me publicly with the lancers, for goodness sake," Supervisor Baine boomed. "I withdrew from them."

While several members of the "battalion," which, its drill master, Sergt. C. D. Allen had assured Mae Murray [Princess David Mdivani—at least she's a princess until her local divorce complaint is tried] and Mary McCormick [Princess Serge] were "your troop, being drilled on behalf of your husbands," today joined the effort to locate Sergt. Allen, their effort met no success.

In Doubt About Plans.

"Well, he wasn't getting us any beans, or guns, or anything," a member of the erstwhile troop said. "He promised that Miss Murray and Miss McCormick would come around and help us out, after their husbands went to Europe. I don't know exactly what we were supposed to do after we had been drilled."

An ex-doughboy, who said, "Just call me Bill," and said he was in thirty-second division, said, "Me and a lot of other fellows would like to ask those Russian princes some questions when they come back."

It turned out that the questions may be asked for them, for both Miss McCormick and Miss Murray consulted today with attorneys.

AUTO HURTLED UPON SIDEWALK KILLS A CHILD

Two Motorists Released After Freak Crash.

Standing in the doorway of a store at 5201 Division street, Winifred McDermott, 6 years old, 2731 Clarence avenue, Berwyn, was killed late yesterday by an automobile which rolled upon the sidewalk and into the doorway after being struck by another car. The girl was unwrapping a bar of candy at the moment.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Laramie avenue, a through street, and Division street. The drivers of the cars involved were Dr. Anthony Santoro, 36 years old, 5833 Clybourn avenue, and Mrs. Myrtle McCarten, 5436 Cortland street. Neither was held.

Auto Hurtles Upon Sidewalk.

Police said that Dr. Santoro, driving west in Division street, slowed down, but did not stop, on reaching the through street, and that his car struck Mrs. McCarten's south bound automobile, hurtling it upon the sidewalk. It crashed into the doorway, crushing Winifred. The girl had gone to the store to buy candy with a dime given to her by her uncle, J. J. Seitz, 1145 North Latrobe avenue, whom she was visiting.

Chester Meachum, 13 years old, 2344 Gladys avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries incurred on Thursday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Neil Hurley Jr., 26 years old, 914 Ashland avenue, River Forest, nephew of Edward N. Hurley. The accident occurred in Jackson boulevard, near Western avenue. Young Hurley said he could not avoid striking the boy.

Year's Toll Now 546.

These deaths and one other increased the Cook county motor toll to 546 for the year. The other victim: Mrs. Annie Murray, 61 years old, 815 Lill avenue. Died in the county hospital after being run down in front of 2534 North Halsted street by a truck driven by Earl Ceas, 22, of 1135 North Harding avenue.

SEIZE 4 STRIKERS DURING MELEE AT GARMENT PLANT

Four striking employés of the La Mode Garment company, 711 Lake street, were arrested by Des Plaines street police yesterday after a squad quelled a disturbance for the second successive day in front of the plant. One hundred employés, who have been striking since last Saturday, flung missiles at the police and other employés who entered the plant.

Those arrested are Isadore Kaufman, 1108 North Richmond street; Max Stricak, 2642 North Spaulding avenue; Max Goldfarb, 3743 North Hamlin avenue, and Isadore Greenberg, 3750 Giddings street. They were charged with disorderly conduct and were released on bond.

Miss Mary Sallee, 40 years old, 3911 South Dearborn street, was fined $25 by Judge Erwin J. Hasten after testimony that she had broken her umbrella on the heads of several policemen during a demonstration several weeks ago in front of the B. Sopkin & Sons dress shop, 3900 South Michigan avenue. Ben Weinstein, 25 years old, who said he was a premedical student at the University of Wisconsin, was fined $25 as a leader in the disturbance.

FEDERAL COURT PONDERS CASE OF BOY IN JAIL

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday took under advisement a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to free William Weber, 15 year old high school boy, from the county jail where he is held for his failure to pay a $2,500 judgment.

Attorney W. G. Anderson, representing the boy, argued before Judges Samuel A. Alschuler, Evan A. Evans, and James H. Wilkerson that the imprisonment of the boy is in violation of the constitution, which prohibits jailing for debt.

"Isn't the question here of a man who wantonly and willfully runs down a person and then refuses to pay the judgment?" asked Judge Evans during the argument. "This is not the case of an innocent man in jail."

An automobile driven by young Weber struck Mrs. Lucille Saliba of Berwyn in December, 1931. She won the $2,500 judgment in the Circuit court. The state Supreme court refused to free the boy.

Sergt. John T. Crimmons, Police Veteran, Is Dead

Sergt. John T. Crimmons, 4141 Fletcher street, veteran member of the Chicago police force, died yesterday in the Martha Washington hospital. He was 50 years old. Sergt. Crimmons suffered a stroke at his home shortly after returning from his tour of duty at the Rogers Park station. He is survived by his widow and two daughters. Funeral services will be held at St. Viator's Catholic church at 10 a. m. Monday.

Senator Foraker's Widow Dead at 86 in Ohio Home

Cincinnati, O., July 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Bundy Foraker, 86 years old, widow of the late United States Senator Joseph Benson Foraker, died at her home here today. Mrs. Foraker was born in Jackson county. Her father was Republican congressman from Ohio and her husband twice governor of the state, a senator for several terms, and six times delegate at large to Republican national conventions.

Alton, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—Henry Meyers, 82, an Indian fighter once attached to the old 7th cavalry, died in his home in Alton yesterday.

FRAUD WARRANT ACCUSES HEAD OF VISITORS' BUREAU

A warrant for the arrest of I. D. Padorr, president of the Vistors' Tourist Service, Inc., on a charge of operating a confidence game was issued yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green. Bond was set at $2,000 and the warrant was made returnable before Judge Green in the Traffic court today.

The warrant was sworn out by William Riggs, who was employed by Padorr, and charged that Padorr had given him a bad check for his services. Riggs said that he might seek warrants against other officials of the tourist service.

Riggs and other members of a committee of employés of the service yesterday were unable to see members of the advisory board, including civic leaders and churchmen, whose names Padorr had used to organize his service. The service was planned as the official headquarters for Fair visitors at 209 South Wabash avenue. Padorr fled several days ago, leaving behind debts totaling $64,000.

The Rev. John Thompson, member of the church housing commission which had indorsed the project, said yesterday that the ministers who served on the commission were only rendering a service to the churches and the public and had no official or responsible relationship to the Visitors' Tourist service.

Public Enemy Held to Jury as Case Is Called 22d Time

Police Magistrate Henry J. Sandusky of Cicero yesterday ordered Tony Marino, alias Dominic Russo, public enemy and onetime associate of Alphonse Capone, held to the grand jury on a charge of leaving the scene of an automobile accident. The accident occurred on Jan. 8 in Cicero and resulted in the serious injury of Mrs. Anna S. Jirgl. Although the case had been called 21 times previously Marino was not in the courtroom and his attorney, Joseph Lustfield, told Magistrate Sandusky he was in a hospital suffering from an infection of the jaw.

Throngs on Way to Fair See Workmen Hurt in Fall

Two workmen operating a piledriver in the construction of the new Roosevelt road car line to the World's Fair were severely injured yesterday when a scaffold on which they were standing collapsed. The accident, which occurred near the inner drive and 14th street, was witnessed by several hundred persons on their way to the Exposition. The men, who were taken to St. Luke's hospital, are Robert Philipson, 41 years old, 2058 West Madison street, and Edward Joyce, 25 years old, 2423 Pensacola avenue.

NAPHTHA BLAST DAMAGES COATS IN FUR PLANT

Damage estimated at $2,500 was caused yesterday by an explosion of naphtha fumes and the fire that followed in the one story brick plant of the Superior Fur Dressing and Dyeing Inc. at 1650 North Kostner avenue. John Lavera, 40 years old, 5508 North Long avenue, an employé, was treated for cuts and burns at the Danish-American hospital across the street.

The explosion occurred when Lavera pulled an electric swith to a drying machine containing several fur coats. The blast broke windows in the cleaning plant and in the firehouse of engine company No. 68 next door. The fire was confined to the south end of the plant. The largest part of the damage was to the fur coats.

Wilson Av. Dentist Found Dead, Rifle Bullet in Head

Dr. Harris C. Ward, 35 years old, a dentist, was found dead yesterday in the closet of a vacant office adjoining his professional quarters at 1060 Wilson avenue. There was a bullet hole in his head and a small caliber rifle beside the body, indicating suicide. A search for Dr. Ward was started by Dr. J. V. Sweeney, dentist, and V. A. Cable, building manager, after Mrs. Ward had called from her home at 4701 Beacon street and asked aid in finding her husband. Other relatives told the police Dr. Ward had been despondent over ill health.

James Milliman, 86, Dies; Once National G.A.R. Head

Santa Monica, Cal., July 21.—(AP)—James C. Milliman, 86, former national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic and at one time a lieutenant governor of Iowa, died at his home here today. He lost an arm at Petersburg.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

RECUPIDO—George C. A. Recupido. In loving memory of our beloved husband and father who passed away one year ago today, July 22, 1932.

You said good-by to none
Your loving heart had ceased to beat
Before we knew it, you were gone.
More and more each day we miss you.
Friends may think our wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.

Heartbroken wife and and son,
ROSE AND FRANK RECUPIDO.

ALTMAN—Julia Altman, nee Schultz, beloved wife of Joseph Altman, fond mother of Richard, Joseph, Arthur, and Mrs. Louise Potrawski, grandmother of ten grandchildren. Funeral from daughter's residence, 1824 W. 34th-st., Monday, July 24, 1:30 p. m., to Holy Cross Lutheran church, 31st-pl. and Racine-av. Interment Bethany.

SALES SOAR IN JUNE, MARSHALL FIELD REPORTS

34% Over Year Ago; All Units Gain.

Marshall Field & Co., one of Chicago's most important business enterprises, made a remarkable showing during June, when it increased its business 34 per cent over that of June, 1932. This was disclosed yesterday in the report on operations for the quarter ended June 30 sent stockholders by John McKinlay, president.

The report covers all the units embraced in the Marshall Field organization, including Marshall Field & Co., wholesale and retail; the company's mills, the Davis company, and Frederick & Nelson, Seattle.

Net sales for the second quarter of 1933 totaled $20,561,300, compared with $18,646,000 in the like period of 1932, an increase of 10.3 per cent. Sales in the first quarter of 1933 totaled $15,433,200, compared with $19,370,200 in the same period of 1932, a decline of 20.3 per cent. Sales for the first half of 1933 totaled $76,246,100, compared with $93,429,000 in 1932—a decline of 18.4 per cent.

Losses Are Diminished.

The increase in earnings enabled the company to cut its loss for the second quarter as compared with the loss during the second quarter of 1932. The 1933 second quarter loss was only $301,900, compared with the $4,107,000 loss in the like period of last year. In the third quarter of 1932 the company sustained a loss of $1,709,800, compared with a loss of $2,092,500 in the third quarter of 1931. The 1932 fourth quarter profit of $123,700 compared with a loss of $1,751,300 in the parallel 1931 period.

For the first quarter of 1933 the company sustained a loss of $2,073,500, compared with $2,294,100 in the like period of 1932.

McKinlay Analyzes Results.

Commenting on the second quarter results, Mr. McKinlay said:

"Sales for the second quarter of 1933 increased 10 per cent over the same period in 1932. Yet we must not be unduly optimistic, for last year our sales were unusually low; a comparison between sales for the second quarter of 1933 and the second quarter of 1931 shows a decrease of 32 per cent.

"The sales volume trend is definitely upward, however, as can be seen in the following percentage of change by months: April, 13 per cent under 1932; May, 15 per cent over 1932, and June, 34 per cent over 1932.

"Some of the increase in our retail sales in Chicago is undoubtedly the result of A Century of Progress, whose visitors are generously patronizing us; however, it does not account for the sizeable increases reported by our nation-wide wholesale and manufacturing units during May and June."

Chicago Store Improved.

Mr. McKinlay mentioned the many improvements which have been made in the main retail store during recent months, emphasizing the installation of indirect lighting and the changes made in store fixtures and layouts.

"Shortly we will be faced with the many problems involved in the recently enacted industrial code bill," Mr. McKinley continued. "While we recognize that it is one of the most drastic laws ever passed by congress, we are cooperating with the spirit of the law in every way, with the hope that the new governmental partnership with industry will do all that is sponsors desire."

Brunswick-Balke Has Loss.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, in a consolidated statement of profit and loss issued yesterday, reported that loss for the three months ended June 30, 1933, from ordinary operations amounted to $177,658, after depreciation and depletion. Deficit carried to balance sheet for the period April 1 to June 30 was reported at $215,573, after special adjustments, adjustment of inventories and special payments.

The company reported for the quarter ended June 30, 1932, net loss of $275,900 after depreciation, interest and other charges.

Miller & Hart Win Safety Contest of Meat Packers

Miller & Hart, Inc., of Chicago won the safety contest conducted among meat packing companies during the first six months of 1933 by the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company of Chicago. Miller & Hart, Inc., had the lowest accident frequency during the period of all firms competing in the contest. A trophy was awarded to the winning company last night at a dinner given at the Stockyards inn.

Market Break Is Temporary, Review Says

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—The weekly review of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., issued today, viewed the reaction in commodity and security markets as "a temporary relaxation of speculative enthusiasm which merely has paused to gather strength for a fresh revival," and found nothing to indicate a lull in general business activity.

"Another flood of reports, testifying to the continued betterment in general business and the extension of productive operations into the usual holiday season appeared this week," the review said. "While reports from all sections of the country revealed an extension of manufacturing activity, there was less uniformity as to the increase in wholesale buying.

Retail Sales Expand.

"Retail sales, on the other hand, have continued steadily upward, with new records for the current season being made in agricultural districts, where early crops have been marketed. In fact, buying appears to be increasing more rapidly than it decreased during some stages of the period of economic readjustment.

"In some districts retail sales are making the best comparative showing in three years. Unsold merchandise held by manufacturers and distributors has thus far not become burdensome. Early depletion is the aim of the administration in hastening application of codes and expanding purchasing power.

"It now appears that the anticipatory accumulations of inventories in some distributive channels even may prove inadequate as soon as the full force of the increased agricultural spending will have been felt, accompanied by the higher wages and rapid widening of employment, which will be necessary for the application of the various codes sponsored by the government.

Dividends Aid Purchasing.

"Besides, the renewal of dividend payments on corporate stocks will contribute no insignificant sum total to available purchasing power within the next few months."

The review also noted that consumer demand is expanding; retail prices are beginning to move up with wholesale; wholesalers report brisk demand for all lines of spot merchandise; grocers report increased business; orders for furniture are mounting with business at the highest volume in three years and prices rising; production in some of the basic industries already has passed the comparative peaks of 1932 and 1931 and are well on to the 1930 levels; production of automobiles gives no indication of a summer recession.

MILWAUKEE MAY COVER CHARGES, SCANDRETT SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—With a continuance of business at present levels, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad should earn its fixed interest charges this year, M. A. Scandrett, president, said today. To help meet interest the company will draw down a loan of $1,710,000 extended by the Railroad Credit corporation, Mr. Scandrett said, adding that the loan was obtained at the current federal reserve rediscount rate and so could be described as "cheap money."

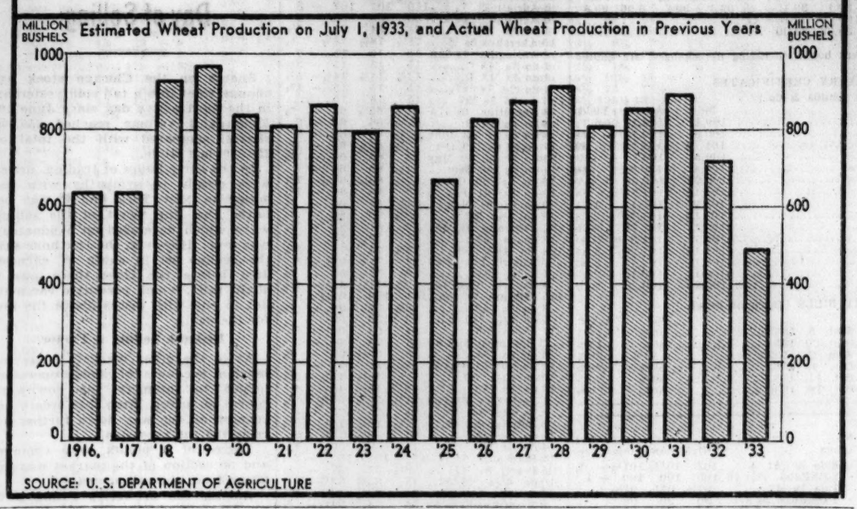

"Our beer traffic is averaging more than 100 cars daily," said Mr. Scandrett. "Conservation corps transportation increased our passenger traffic in June above the levels of June, 1932. I believe that some freight we are moving is going into storage, but stocks on hand are still below normal."

Mr. Scandrett said that he doubted if his company would continue to show the same percentage of traffic increases in the remainder of the year as it had to date because traffic improved somewhat toward the close of last year.

Annalist Finds Business Is Best Since July, 1931

New York, July 21.—The Annalist's preliminary index of business activity for June is 76 compared with 66.8 for May, 57.4 for April and 52.9 for March. The figure is now the highest since July, 1931. Last month's widest gain on a weighted basis was in cotton consumption, but freight car loadings, steel ingot production and electric power output contributed heavily to the rise.

Traders Like 1 Last Punch, Says Boxer

* *

It was the little fellow who was trying to run a few dollars up into a fortune who was responsible for the crackup in the market, according to some "wise" traders.

"There were too many guys in here with the baby's shoe money trying to run it into a fortune," one sad trader remarked. "Now they haven't even the price of a pair of laces for the shoes."

* *

"It is very obvious from the action of the market that stop loss selling has been mainly responsible and there have not been sufficient buyers on the market to cushion the shock."

T. W. Schultz, assistant professor of agricultural economics, Iowa State college, was responsible for the above from which one might get the impression there have been more sellers than buyers lately.

A grain man who has made the rounds of all leading exchanges to get a lineup on the movement of the new wheat crop, said his attention was called in Minneapolis to a woman in the gallery with a baby in her arms. "That woman," said a board member, "is speculating in wheat and is in here every day carrying the baby. Evidently she has no one to leave it with at home and is so interested in the market that she brings the baby along."

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES DROP IN HEAVY TRADE

Butter and egg futures fell again yesterday in a record total turnover of 1,300 cars on the Chicago Mercantile exchange.

Selling orders accumulated and the quick succession of transactions made it necessary to stop blackboard trading and open a pit until the market caught up.

October eggs sold off to 19 cents early in the session, off $210 per car, but firmed later to close at 19¾ cents against the preceding day's close of 20¾ cents.

November butter, after descending to 24¼ cents, off $280 per car, worked up to 25 cents at the close, down ¾ of a cent from the previous close.

RETAILERS TO RAISE PRICE OF CIGARETS 1 TO 1½ CENTS A PACK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—Retail prices for the standard brands of cigarets will be increased from 1 to 1½ cents a package on July 31, acording to information obtained today in authoritative quarters.

This will bring the price in New York to an average of 12 cents a package, or two packages for 23 cents, although some dealers will charge more and others less.

At the same time it was learned that the wholesale price will not be changed for some time, although the 10 cent brands of cigarets have been almost pushed out of the market.

The increased retail price will be national and preliminary agreements regarding it have been reached with retailers, most of whom now pay an 11 cent a package price.

Cigaret production in June totaled 12,462,929,787, a decline of 2.8 per cent from the May total of 12,822,972,513, which was a high record for all time, but 18.01 per cent over the 10,560,212,050 in June a year ago, according to the internal revenue bureau.

Total production for the first half of 1933 amounted to 57,709,213,137, a gain of 11.2 per cent over the 51,897,533,157 in first half of 1932.

TWO CLEVELAND BANKS BEGIN TO PAY DEPOSITORS

Cleveland, O., July 21.—(AP)—Four million dollars—the first part of a $57,000,000 payoff by two closed banks—went back in circulation today. It went to 325,000 depositors of the Union Trust company and the Guardian Trust company, now in liquidation.

Today's distribution went to depositors who had $100 or less in the two banks and the checks in no case were larger than $35. They represented a 35 per cent dividend to Union and 20 per cent to Guardian depositors. Next Tuesday the larger depositors will be able to obtain their dividends.

Payment of the $57,047,000, tied up since last Feb. 25, the final day the Guardian and Union operated on a 100 per cent basis, was made possible by loans advanced the two banks by the National City bank, which is taking over the more liquid assets of the two institutions, and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

CANADIANS FEAR WAR IN PRICES FOR NEWSPRINT

QUEBEC, Que., July 21.—[Special.]—With certain American concerns selling newsprint for $31 per ton, or $10 below the standard price charged by Canadian firms, there is every prospect for a price war, in the opinion of Col. J. H. Price, head of Price Brothers & Co., Canada's largest newsprint manufacturers.

"The main problem now facing the newsprint industry is the national industry recovery act in the United States," declared Col. Price. "We don't know how it will affect Canadian newsprint firms, but unless the break is put off there is every danger of lower newsprint prices."

Forecast Gasoline Demand Above Last Half of 1932

New York, July 21.—(AP)—The American Petroleum institute's committee on refinery statistics and economics, in its July forecast issued today, estimates that the total demand for motor fuel in the last half of this year will increase 2.9 per cent over the like period of 1932. In the May forecast it was estimated that the total demand for the middle six months, ending Sept. 30, would represent a decrease of about 3.4 per cent from the same period last year.

Dollar Takes Sudden Drop After Rally

New York, July 21.—The dollar fluctuated more erratically today than at any time since it was cut loose from gold. In trading of unusually large proportions it bounced about, first showing weakness, then sudden strength and finally sweeping downward at the close. At the close the dollar was valued at 70.97 cents in gold.

A final burst of liquidation was induced by rumors that President Roosevelt was contemplating early reduction of the gold content of the dollar as a measure of defense against the collapse of stock and commodity prices.

Worth 70.6 Cents in Gold.

Measured against the franc, the dollar fluctuated in gold valuation between 70.6 cents and 72.9 cents. The franc was quoted as high as 5.55 cents and as low as 5.38½ cents. It closed at 5.52 cents, up 3½ points.

The pound sterling opened here at $4.72½, about 8 cents higher than its previous close. After an hour of fairly steady quotations the pound began to slip, reflecting increasing strength on the part of the dollar. The movement gained momentum and carried sterling all the way down to $4.57, a drop of more than 15 cents from the high.

Dollar Plunges Down.

Then suddenly the trend turned. The dollar fell with even greater speed than it had risen; sterling rallied in a direct line to about $4.69 and closed at $4.68½, up 4½ cents on the day.

Dealers in foreign exchange could find no connection between the dollar's erratic fluctuations and the fall in the stock market except the influence that disturbances in one speculative market always have in another, due partly to psychological influences and partly to the common identity of speculators in both markets. Although large blocks of dollars were offered and bid for during the day, there continued to be no signs of official operations in the market.

TAX ON COTTON TO BE LEVIED ON KINDS IN PROCESS

Washington, D. C., July 21.—(AP)—Commissioner Helvering of the internal revenue today outlined the rates applicable to cotton products when the 4.2 cents a pound tax goes into effect upon processors on Aug. 1.

The 4.2 cents a pound rate will apply to cotton that has been ginned at the time it is put into processing or manufacture. All cotton in process at the moment the tax takes effect, including yarn, fabric, thread, twines, roving, silver, laps, and all other forms, will be taxed at the rate of 4.4184 cents per pound.

The same rate would apply to the cotton content of any processed product and on separate retail stocks of cotton products held by a retail dealer and not sold within 30 days.

STOCKS PLUNGE; OVER 9 MILLION SHARES TRADED

Rebound Near Close Lacks Strength.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—Another wave of liquidation swept over the stock market in the late dealings today, tumbling prices anywhere from $2 to $37 a share below the "shakeout" bottoms recorded in yesterday's frenzied selling.

It was the third big break to shake the market in as many days. Trading was on the heaviest scale since Oct. 30, 1929—the "climax" week of the big break—a total of 9,570,000 shares changing hands in the five hour session. The ticker was distanced more than thirty minutes, printing the last quotations at 3:43 p. m., a new record for lateness of the new "high speed" machine.

Pivotals Rebound from Lows.

Support appeared for some of the badly battered leaders toward the close and something that the street in its shaky mood accepted as a rally got under way, but it did not carry the mill run of the list very far above their lows of the day. Such pivotals as U. S. Steel, American Can, National Distillers, Westinghouse and the like however were boosted from 3 to 6 points or so from their worst prices.

Steel finished at 52½, off $5 a share on the day; Can at 84¼, off $3.25; American Telephone at 120, off $3.75; J. I. Case at 78, unchanged; Distillers at 67, off $6; Du Pont at 66, off $7.50; New York Central 38⅝, off $7.12½; Sears Roebuck 31, off $5.12½, and Western Union 55, off $5.50.

At the height of the selling bids were virtually lacking on many issues, prices dropping several points on more between sales. National Distillers, for example, again ran into a no bid area which lasted for forty-five minutes, and brought the price down on a single sale from 75 to 70. At one time Homestake Mining dropped from 235 to 212 on a single sale.

Report of Bear Curb.

Prices for many other stocks faded away as offerings, much of which was said to be for short account, failed to uncover bids. It was reported that the stock exchange authorities were considering revival of previous bear selling measures in order to halt that sort of activity.

As on the two previous days of the selling movement, the downward sweep touched off one level after another of "stop loss" orders, and this served to accelerate the rate of the decline. Margin accounts were wiped out by the hundreds as "shoestring" traders failed to get under the wire with additional margin demanded over night or by emergency telephone calls sent out during the morning.

Sales in Large Blocks.

Blocks of 5,000 to 15,000 shares came out on the racing tape one after another as specialists stampeded over one another to toss over their fast depreciating holdings.

Closing of the country's grain markets had a somewhat steadying effect on the farm implements and Case, one of the "weak sisters" of yesterday's market, held within a radius of two points of yesterday's closing level and finished unchanged.

Railroad issues were sold in heavy volume and Atchison, New York Central, Lackawana, Union Pacific and others tumbled 3 to 10 points.

Food, motor and copper issues were slaughtered with the rest. The utility group rated high among the big losers.

The late afternoon crash followed some three hours of fluctuating price movements featured in the early trading by what promised for a time to develop into an important rally.

Rally in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Cal., July 21.—(AP)—Encouraged by a closing rally on the New York Stock exchange, bargain hunters went cautiously into the market here this afternoon and bought enough stocks to lift prices on the average a little above the eastern finish.

Southern Pacific finished at $24 for a loss of $5.25, and down $1 from New York's last sale, but General Motors closed at $25.87, up $1.25 from the eastern finish. Edison, Radio, Montgomery Ward, and Aviation corporation all closed higher here than in the east.

Wild Gamble Caused Crash, Experts Say

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Not too far—but too fast.

That is what the experts are saying about the big advance in prices that ended so disastrously this week in a mad scramble to unload.

In that respect the market analysts agree with the politicians. Both argue that prices came down too fast because they had gone up too fast.

The market at the beginning of this week was topheavy because it had been built up by a horde of speculators who had no intention of staying in it after it ceased skyrocketing. When the upward movement ceased everybody tried to get out at once and the hole wasn't big enough. Prices dropped and at each succeeding level as they declined they uncovered another flood of stop-loss orders which helped shove prices further downward.

* *

It was a repetition in miniature of what happened in the fall of 1929. Too many stocks were being held by people who were just waiting for the time to unload. When stocks are held by investors who have tucked them away and are content to keep them for the income they yield, . . n the market is pretty well balanced When everybody is just waiting for a peak price at which to sell before it is too late, then the market is full of dynamite.

Why the break came this week is another matter entirely. It might just as well have come next month or several months' hence. The exact timing of a market collapse is usually a matter of mob psychology.

Had there been no unfavorable news this week the break might have been postponed. Prices might even have risen much higher.

It happened, however, that there was unfavorable news. It came suddenly and in a bunch, and most of it developed out of Washington.

* *

Regarded by many market observers as the most effective immediate contributory cause was a statement by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of national recovery. The general said that "the distortion of increased prices is so rapid and the lag of purchasing power so great that it is plain we can not stage industrial recovery with 12,000,000 men out of work."

Gen. Johnson was emphasizing the warning that the President and administration leaders have been giving for several weeks. The essence of this warning has been that the rise in prices of goods and securities has been too fast in view of the extent of business recovery. A gradual rather than a precipitous rise should occur, the politicians said.

But the speculators, large and small, weren't used to doing things gradually. They went on up until they were overextended and then they were "adjusted" with a bang.

* *

In Wall and La Salle streets brokers were convinced that the administration leaders did more than urge that the bull market be ended. They flatly expressed the opinion that the break was engineered from Washington.

Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co., in their regular market letter yesterday, said:

"Private Washington advices received through Wall street channels yesterday supported the view that a deliberate check had been applied to the stock and commodity markets through the medium of the federal reserve board, the latter, according to these allegations, working through the commercial banks which lend money on securities and commodities.

"These Washington advices, furthermore, alleged that the pressure emanated from high administration circles following receipt of nation-wide complaints from ultimate consumers that retail prices were advancing too fast in terms of reëmployment and wage increases. . . .

"The gist of these private advices was to the effect that a drastic decline in the markets would temper overspeculation; that it would solidify the market structure; and that it would pave the way for a sounder and steadier advance in the domestic price level."

* *

Indication that Washington was doing something besides urge moderation is seen in this week's reserve board figures. They show that the reserve banks, under treasury domination, reduced the amount of their purchases of government bonds, which purchases are considered inflationary and have a tendency to encourage market advances. They also show that the New York banks were reducing sharply their loans against security collateral.

The combined effect of the administration's pointed warnings and its action in virtually halting inflation, occurring at a time when the market was top heavy with speculators, was enough to bring about the "readjustment" which Washington had been saying was inevitable.

The readjustment accomplished. Washington is expected to encourage a moderate forward movement gauged more closely to the actual degree of upturn in business.

Despite the sudden and disastrous panic among speculators, the basic factors leading to business recovery still exist, it is pointed out.

* *

A speculative collapse wiping out newly made paper fortunes does not obliterate the fact that railroad car loadings have been steadily improving for many weeks and are now well above last year's levels; that the consumption of electric power is now roughly 16 per cent above 1932 levels; that corporations and railroads are reporting the first increase in earnings for several years; that hundreds of thousands of men have gone back to work, and that there is a severe shortage in almost every kind of farm produce.

Inflation, it is true, is still a bluff; but before the administration would permit a collapse that would endanger the newly announced national recovery plan it is presumed that some of the powers contained in the inflation act would be exercised.

Loadings on Union Pacific Continue Above Last Year

Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific railroad, said yesterday that the road's loadings in July have continued to run better than last year.

GRAIN MARKET WILL REMAIN CLOSED TODAY

Wheat Sells Lower in Winnipeg.

Directors of the Board of Trade voted last night to extend yesterday's prohibition on trading in grain futures through today. The only session will be one of fifteen minutes, from 11:45 to noon, to enable traders holding privileges to exercise them. Lard and provisions futures market also will be closed. The cash grain, cotton, and securities markets will be open, although the latter two will close an hour early.

PETER B. CAREY.

In making the announcement Peter B. Carey, president of the Board of Trade, said that Thursday's trades had not been cleared until 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It is believed the trading reached an all time record volume.

Following the lead of the Chicago exchange the Kansas City, Minneapolis and Duluth exchanges also forbade futures trading for today. Winnipeg and Liverpool will remain open.

Winnipeg a Little Lower.

With the Chicago futures markets closed yesterday a large business developed in the Winnipeg grain market, due to American operators' orders. The market was nervous, but wheat prices at one time up more than two cents, reacted sharply and closed ¼ to ⅞ cent lower. The range for the day was:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close Yest.	Close Thurs.
October	82	82¾	78½	80⅜	81¼
December	83¼	85	81	82¼	82

Liverpool was easy and closed 1½ to 2⅜ cents lower.

There was a feeling in the grain trade that there has been break enough, from 15 to 24 cents within a few days, in the most drastic liquidation that the trade has known. Both large and small owners are out of the market and not disposed to reenter until the situation is clarified.

Dollar Wheat "Not High."

With a crop below consumptive requirements in the United States and a prospect of a reduction in acreage in the leading exporting countries of the world next year, there is a disposition to go slower on the selling side. Wheat around a dollar a bushel and under is not regarded as high. It is said, however, it will require a few days for the market to right itself.

Trading in cash grain was under way in all the leading markets, especially in Chicago. Strength and an advance in cash wheat markets in other leading points necessitated leading cash wheat handlers to enter the market and pay premiums of 1 to 3 cents over the September for carlots, with millers taking the offers. Leading industries picked up the corn.

Rye Breaks in Winnepeg.

Winnipeg rye futures were heavy and closed 6½ to 14⅞ cents lower, the latter on July, which was 55⅛ to 55¼ cents, with October 57¾ cents, December 59 cents, and May 63½ cents. While rye in this market was weakening barley fell into line and closed 3 cents higher on October at 49¾ cents, with December 51⅛ cents. Flaxseed in Winnipeg dropped 24 to 28 cents for the day, with October at $1.33, December $1.36.

Prior to its order forbidding grain futures trading today, the Board of Trade yesterday had issued orders limiting price movements. One was similar to the order of the day before limiting fluctuations up or down in one sessions to 8 cents on wheat and rye, 5 cents on corn and barley, and 4 cents on oats.

In another order the members were informed that hereafter they are to make reports of open trades to the Grain Futures administration instead of to the business conduct committee of the Board of Trade.

Another order stated that beginning today and effective until further no-

Chrysler Boosts Pay of 45,000 Workers 10%; Will Cut Hours

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Affecting some 45,000 persons, the Chrysler corporation announced tonight a 10 per cent wage increase for all employés in the United States, effective with the current pay period. Walter P. Chrysler, announcing the wage increase, said:

"The purpose of this action is to put into effect immediately the most important part of the government's recovery program without waiting upon the adoption of an industry code.

"Effective July 31, the corporation will have completed and put into operation in all its Detroit plants a program of shorter hours upon which the management has been working several months."

Cuts Hours; Maintains Pay.

Wichita, Kas., July 21.—(AP)—I. A. O'Shaughnessy, president of the Globe Oil and Refining company, announced today that effective Aug. 1 approximately 500 employés would be placed on a six hour work day at the wage rate now paid for the eight hour day. Two hundred additional men will be employed to comprise a fourth shift.

"Unemployment with its attendant lack of buying power on the part of the public is the basic reason for the present unfavorable economic condition in the United States," Mr. O'Shaughnessy said. "The federal government should have launched three years ago on a plan of this kind. The industries would have followed the government's example."

Illinois Shoe Firm Acts.

Vandalia, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—The Johnson Stephens and Shinkle Shoe company, which employes 1,200 persons in the Vandalia factory, today announced a 7½ per cent wage increase. It is the second increase in the last few months. The first was 5 per cent.

Glove Plant Raises Pay.

Kewanee, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—The Boss Manufacturing company today announced a 10 per cent wage increase for piecework in all its cotton glove plants, effective July 24.

Garment Makers Grant Increase.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 21.—(AP)—A 20 per cent wage increase was announced today by officials of the H. D. Lee Mercantile company, manufacturers of union made garments. The increase will return the pay rate to the 1929 level. The 40 hour week, in force several years, will be continued, but the number of employés will be increased by 25 per cent. The company has more than 2,000 employés in plants in Trenton, N. J.; South Bend, Ind.; Minneapolis, Minn., and Kansas City, Mo.

Illinois Mines Resume.

West Frankfort, Ill., July 21.—[Special.]—For the first time in many months three Old Ben mines will start work next Monday. Officials said prospects are good for the mines to continue working throughout next week.

New York, July 21.—Bond prices broke from 1 to 10 points today under another broad selling wave. Selling struck both domestic and foreign issues and was coincident with a fresh plunge of prices on the stock market. As stocks rallied in the late trading, bonds also hardened.

Strengthening of the dollar against sterling and the gold currencies was a contributing factor in the decline.

Traders Hard Pressed.

Traders who accumulated large holdings in the recent rise were hard pressed as prices of high grade bonds weakened over a broad front, but notably in the public utility group. Prices backed off from fractions to more than a point.

Such leading industrial bonds as American Metal 5½s, Houston Oil 5½s, International Paper 5s and 6s, Keith corporation 6s, New York Trap Rock 6s, and U. S. Rubber 5s slumped heavily in keeping with the reaction in commodities and stocks. Other highly ranked issues hit by selling included American Telephone convertible 4½s, Brooklyn Union Gas 5s, Pacific Telephone refunding 5s and others.

Other Issues Drop.

Southern Railway 6s and 6½s, Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron convertible 6s, International Telephone convertible 4½s, Chicago and North Western convertible 4¾s, and St. Paul 5s dropped from 7 to 10 points before support checked the decline.

Early trading in foreign bonds was featured by strength in British government 5½s, but this gain disappeared in subsequent selling. Other foreign liens declined from 1 to 3 points. United States treasury bonds generally held firm against the trend.

Bangor and Aroostook.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me information on Bangor and Aroostook common?—B. H.

Answer: Bangor and Aroostook Railroad company is commonly known as the "potato road." Not only do potato shipments contribute close to 60 per cent of revenues, but the price of the commodity determines in large part the purchasing power of the territory it serves, which governs, to a large extent, the inward flow of traffic.

The company operates about 600 miles of road in northeast Maine. Earnings, in contrast to most United States roads, have been stable. They equaled $5.97 per common share during the first five months of 1933, against $6.99 during the first five months of 1932.

Per share earnings on the common in 1932 equaled $3.23, against $2.68 in 1931, $9.27 in 1930, and $8.30 in 1929.

In October, 1931, lack of ocean traffic resulted in lowering of steamship freight rates. A large amount of potatoes was routed via Bangor and Aroostook for shipment by water, instead of the usual route to connecting roads. This resulted in a 30 mile longer haul for the road.

Potatoes can be counted on to give the road sufficient traffic to more than cover charges. General upturn of business should increase transportation of other products, especially lumber and paper.

Dividends have been paid continuously on the common since 1904. The rate is now 50 cents a quarter.

Capitalization is conservative for a road with as good a record as this, funded debt constituting only about 63 per cent of entire capitalization.

70-Cent Dollars.

Investors' Guide: I notice our dollar is selling in France at a sharp discount. What procedure must be taken to buy the dollar there at a discount and realize one hundred cents on the dollar for it here? Can this be done?—J. A. J.

Answer: No. Inasmuch as all American money is selling at a discount in France you would not be able to exchange your United States dollars at par there, but would have to exchange them at a discount. At the end of the transaction you would find yourself with the same amount of money you started, less exchange commissions.

Since it is against the law to export gold you could not legally ship gold to France to purchase American dollars there.

CHICAGO STOCKS BREAK SHARPLY IN HEAVY TRADE

Rally Near Close After Day of Selling.

Shares on the Chicago stock exchange went into a tail spin yesterday in the most active day since June 10. Yesterday's volume reached 255,000 shares, compared with the total of 290,000 last June.

In the early hours of trading, prices were steady in sympathy with the action in New York and it was believed that the worst of the selling wave which developed on Wednesday was over. However, the last hour saw the decline set in again in earnest. Just before the close there was a slight rally, which permitted the market to end with prices above the low for the day.

Distress Selling a Factor.

As in the other markets distressed margin accounts of small operators helped to intensify the downward course of prices. Stop loss orders uncovered on the way down further accelerated the recession.

Losses of 4 points were common and no section of the market was immune from the selling wave.

Among the breweries Prima gave up 8 points to close at 20. Berghoff was down 2 in closing at 14, and Kingsbury slipped ¾ to finish at 10⅜.

Crane Slides 8 Points.

Crane preferred in closing at 41 lost 8 points, Kalamazoo Stove declined 4 points, Noblitt Sparks eased 3 points, and so they went. Marshall Field & Co., which yesterday gave out an earnings report showing an upturn in business, slipped 2⅛ to close at 12⅛. Wieboldt stores slipped 2 points to close at 9.

Swift was off 2 points at 18 and Swift International dropped 4 points to close at 23. Quaker Oats, the present aristocrat of the board, gave up 5 points to close at 135.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for the sale of a seat on the Chicago Stock exchange for $7,500, unchanged from the last preceding sale.

GRAIN FUTURES TRADING BAN IS EXTENDED A DAY

Wheat Sells Slightly Lower in Winnipeg.

Order on Trade Reports.

In the order regarding open trades reports, Fred H. Clutton, secretary of the board, states:

"I have been instructed by the business conduct committee to advise you that pursuant to a request from the secretary of agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, the reporting of open trades which has been made to the business conduct committee since Oct. 22, 1932, will be made to the grain futures administration beginning July 20, 1933.

"You will be notified by the grain futures administration as to whom and what type of open trades you are to report. When you resume reporting to the administration, you may discontinue reporting to the business conduct committee."

The huge volume of trading on Thursday piled up work in the various commission houses. Many clerks worked all night Thursday and until noon yesterday on their books and reports.

The grain futures administration employés had so much to do they were unable to get out the regular daily report.

Curb Coffee, Sugar Prices.

New York, July 21.—Directors of the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange today sharply curtailed the limit of fluctuations in commodities traded in. Daily changes in coffee futures will be limited to one cent a pound instead of two cents. Sugar to one-fourth cent a pound instead of one cent and molasses to one-half cent a gallon instead of two cents.

The governors of the cotton exchange will meet at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning to decide whether the cotton exchange will open Saturday as usual.

Chicago Board of Trade Seats Decline to $13,500

With a reaction in grain prices, Chicago Board of Trade memberships have also eased. A sale yesterday was at $15,000, and a second one at $13,500, the last previous transfer being at $15,900, a decline of $2,400.

COTTON DECLINES $6 A BALE, BUT RALLIES

Cotton was under pressure from sellers a large part of the day, with losses at the extreme of $4.75 to $6.00 a bale, or more than 1 cent a pound. Weakness in the stock market and unsettled feeling in grains with the Chicago Board of Trade closed brought selling pressure from a leading New York operator as well as from grain traders on the local market. Commission house buying was good and brought a rally of 46 to 70 points, with the close 40 to 51 points net lower, equal to $2.00 to $2.50 a bale.

Spinners' takings for the week as given by J. E. Bennett & Co. was 348,000 bales, against 364,000 bales the previous week and 205,000 bales a year ago. Into sight movement was 224,000 bales, against 217,520 bales the previous week and 49,011 a year ago. Prices follow:

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—Buying continued limited in most textile divisions today. The trade was reported holding aloof pending price readjustments upward shortly on many types of cotton goods to accord with added costs under the recovery act. Similar readjustments were reported being planned in other textile divisions.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable declined 90@115 points today under heavy general liquidation, promoted by the weakness of stocks, crude oil and cotton. There was heavy covering on the break, and partial rallies followed with the market closing 70@85 points net lower. Sales, 211 lots. Bleachable spot July and September closed 5.40c, December and January, 5.70c.

HOGS FIRM UP; RECEIPTS DROP AS GRAINS FALL

Average Up 5 Cts.; Cattle Rise, Lambs Steady.

Potential factors in hogs were conflicting yesterday, resulting in an exceptionally erratic market, with buyers and sellers divided in their opinions.

The grain and lard situation warranted lower prices, but, while lower grain prices this week proved a bearish factor, it also influenced live stock farmers to hold back supplies on feed that they had intended to ship. This shifted the advantage of light receipts to the selling side yesterday.

Considerable haggling slowed trading down at the opening and at times the market came almost to a standstill while sellers attempted to drive top grades back up to the $5 line, where they had been earlier in the week. Selected light butchers finally made $4.90, a 15 cent higher mark than on yesterday.

Hogs Average Higher.

The bulk of offerings changed hands on a rather "catch as catch can" trade that wound up about steady to 10 cents higher for the day. The general average price moved up 5 cents to the $4.55 line. Current quotations are 20 to 30 cents above the close of last week and within 10 to 15 cents of the highest point in seven weeks.

Receipts yesterday dropped below expectations. The Chicago run of 19,000, including direct shipments to packers, was the smallest for a Friday since May 26, and compared with 26,090 a week ago.

Cattle Prices Firmer.

Yesterday's small run of 1,000 cattle was soon out of first hands at the highest prices of the week, considering quality. Only a few loads of good to choice steers arrived, and these sold quickly at $7 to $7.25, the bulk of the crop consisting of the kinds selling at $5.50 to $6.50.

The general average price of beef steers is $1.70 above the low point of 1933, but there are many individual cases where $2 and more gain are found.

Lamb prices held the recent sharp gains on yesterday's session, in face of a slightly larger movement of stock. Both natives and westerns to packers and city butchers reached $8.60. Nothing comparable to the $3.75 lambs here on Thursday was available, but prices were fully steady, considering the quality of the run.

BUTTER AND EGGS WEAK

Butter and egg futures again weakened in another heavy turnover on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, Thursday's all-time trading records falling. Total sales were over 1,200 cars for a new volume record.

This was the fifth day in the exchange's history that sales have totaled over 1,000 cars and it was the only time in history that two consecutive day's trading have totaled over 2,000 cars. Yesterday's final total was 1,140 cars.

Open commitments of both butter and eggs have reached all time records with more than 2,000 cars of butter and nearly 4,000 cars of eggs open.

SUGAR RATES SHOW ONE FALLACY OF RAIL VS. BARGE ARGUMENT

BY H. A. LAIRD.

[Chicago Tribune Traffic Manager.]

The controversy between the barge lines operating on our inland waterways and the railways, continues to rage pro and con.

The railways claim the right to retain traffic by rate reductions, while the waterways accuse them of deliberately publishing noncompensatory schedules to put the water lines out of business; theoretically a comparatively simple operation because the railways can reimburse themselves by maintaining a high level of rates to the interior which the waterways cannot reach.

The railways have asked permission to publish a competitive rate of 30 cents per 100 pounds to apply on sugar from New Orleans to Chicago while maintaining rates of 65 cents to interior points.

Sugar rates offer the poorest possible basis for the contention of the water carriers. Sugar is produced at comparatively few points, and the consumption is nationwide. Its volume cannot be stimulated to any great extent by low freightrates and it has therefore always paid relatively high freight rates—usually on the full fifth class basis. On the other hand, it loads heavily, a box car is a convenient unit for its transportation, and if forced to do so the railways can quote rates as low as those applicable on raw materials.

That such rates could not be condemned as confiscatory must be evident from the fact that the rate on petroleum road oil in tank cars and on black strap molasses in tank cars from New Orleans to Chicago is also 30 cents per 100 pounds. Neither of these rates was established to meet water competition as barges will not accept liquids in bulk. It costs no less to handle a carload of these commodities than a carload of sugar. It might even cost more, if it were found necessary to return the tank car empty.

The real objective of the 30 cent rate has been overlooked in the controversy. The compelling reason was to enable New Orelans sugar refiners to compete with New York and Hawaiian sugar reaching Chicago via water routes from the Atlantic seaboard.

BIDS AND OFFERS

Owing to the decree by the board of directors of the Chicago Board of Trade, there were no bids or offers sold good for the Saturday session.

BRAND BREWERY SOLD AS NUCLEUS OF LIQUOR CHAIN

Eastern Company Buys Plant for $750,000.

BY AL CHASE.

One of Chicago's largest breweries, the 250,000 barrel plant of the Brand Brewing company at 2530 Elston avenue, was purchased yesterday by Brewery and Distillery Securities, Inc., of New York, for a reported $750,000, one-third of which is to be paid in cash and the balance within a year.

This is the first of a nation-wide chain of breweries and distilleries to be purchased by the recently formed Manhattan corporation. Negotiations are under way for breweries in Boston and New York and for distilleries in Pennsylvania and Kentucky.

Made Only Keg Beer.

The Brand plant was erected about twelve years before the prohibition era. It made only keg beer and had a capacity of a quarter of a million barrels annually. During the dry spell it was for a while leased to a near-beer manufacturing concern.

Title was conveyed to the New York group by the Brand company, of which Horace Brand and his brothers, Armin, who lives in California, and Philip, are the chief stockholders. Rosenberg, Corlett & Toomin were attorneys for the buyers.

Spend $250,000 on Plant.

According to Daniel S. Wentworth, who with Frank J. Snite and Ross & McConnell, was attorney for the sellers, the new owners contemplate spending a quarter of a million in remodeling the Brand plant. When the dry era forced it to close it was one of the most modern plants in Chicago, he said.

Title was taken for the New York syndicate by the Lake View Trust and Savings bank, as trustee. Thomas E. Sullivan & Co. were brokers in yesterday's transaction.
